Executive Summary

South Korea's security landscape from March 07 to March 14, 2026, was significantly shaped by the repositioning of US military assets from the Korean Peninsula to the escalating conflict in the Middle East. This development, including reports of Patriot missile batteries and parts of the THAAD system being moved, sparked considerable domestic debate and raised concerns about potential security vacuums, despite assurances from President Lee Jae Myung regarding South Korea's robust defense capabilities. Concurrently, the US and South Korea commenced their large-scale Freedom Shield joint military exercise, which is expected to elicit a strong reaction from North Korea. Diplomatically, Seoul continued its efforts to engage North Korea, even as Pyongyang maintained its hostile stance towards the South while hinting at conditional dialogue with the United States. The period also saw South Korea issuing a precautionary alert over energy security risks due to Middle East tensions and addressing rising AI-driven cyber threats.

Key Security Developments

- Military Activities and Exercises

The United States and South Korea initiated the large-scale Freedom Shield joint military exercise on March 9, 2026, involving approximately 18,000 South Korean troops, with US Forces Korea not confirming its troop numbers. This annual exercise, running through March 19, is designed to enhance the allies' combined defense posture, though North Korea routinely condemns such drills as invasion rehearsals. The timing of the exercise, amidst reports of US asset redeployments, underscores the allies' commitment to deterrence on the peninsula.

- Defense Policy and Strategic Shifts

The United States' 2026 National Defense Strategy (NDS) signals a significant shift in the South Korea-US alliance, moving from a peninsula-focused deterrence against North Korea towards a broader regional role in the Indo-Pacific. The NDS assesses that South Korea is now capable of taking primary responsibility for deterring North Korea, freeing US Forces Korea (USFK) to act as a more flexible regional asset, particularly in monitoring Chinese naval and air activity from bases like Camp Humphreys in Pyeongtaek. This strategic adjustment positions South Korea as a key security and defense production partner for US Indo-Pacific strategy.

- Diplomatic Relations (US-ROK) - US Asset Redeployment Controversy

Reports emerged that the US was redeploying some of its military assets, including Patriot missile batteries and parts of the Terminal High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) system, from South Korea to the Middle East to support its conflict with Iran. On March 10, 2026, President Lee Jae Myung confirmed that South Korea could not prevent Washington from relocating its own assets, despite Seoul's opposition. He maintained that the removal of these weapons would "not hinder deterrence strategy towards North Korea," citing South Korea's superior defense spending and conventional capabilities. This issue sparked a political clash within South Korea, with the People Power Party criticizing the government's "complacent and vague" response and the Democratic Party of Korea urging against stoking security anxieties.

- Diplomatic Relations (Inter-Korean) - Stalled Dialogue

North Korea continued its dismissive stance towards dialogue with South Korea, with leader Kim Jong Un having previously described South Korea as the "principal enemy" and ruling out negotiations with Seoul. However, Kim has indicated a possibility for improved relations with Washington under certain conditions, primarily if the US acknowledges Pyongyang's nuclear status and abandons its "hostile policies". Despite this, South Korean President Lee Jae Myung, on March 1, 2026, called for resuming dialogue and opening a "new era" of relations, emphasizing peaceful negotiations over weapons.

- Security Incidents and Threats - Energy Security

On March 5, 2026, the South Korean government issued a precautionary alert under its resource security monitoring system, citing concerns that escalating tensions in the Middle East could disrupt global energy supplies. The Ministry of Trade, Industry and Resources issued a "concern" level alert for crude oil and gas, acknowledging South Korea's heavy reliance on Middle Eastern imports and aiming to strengthen monitoring and preparedness.

- Cybersecurity - AI-Driven Threats and Guidelines

South Korea's National Intelligence Service (NIS) and the National Security Research Institute released comprehensive intelligent power grid cybersecurity guidelines on March 11, 2026. This follows earlier warnings from January 2026 by the Ministry of Science and ICT and the Korea Internet and Security Agency (KISA) about a sharp rise in cyber incidents in 2025 and the growing role of AI in cyber threats targeting networks, cloud environments, and digital services in 2026. The report highlighted increased sophistication in phishing and fraud using deepfake technology, as well as direct attacks on AI systems.

- Diplomatic Relations (South Korea-China) - Economic Cooperation

While not directly within the March 7-14 period, earlier diplomatic engagements in early March 2026 saw Chinese Ambassador to South Korea Dai Bing and South Korean Deputy Minister for Economic Diplomacy Park Jong-han agree to enhance communication and cooperation, building on the consensus reached by their state leaders. This follows President Lee Jae Myung's January 2026 visit to Beijing, where he aimed for a "full-scale restoration" of Korea-China relations, emphasizing economic pragmatism and regional stability.

Geopolitical Impact and Regional Dynamics

The redeployment of US military assets from South Korea to the Middle East during this period introduces a complex dynamic into regional stability. While President Lee Jae Myung asserted South Korea's capability to deter North Korean threats independently, the move raises concerns among some military analysts about potential miscalculation by Pyongyang, which could perceive the relocation as an opportunity for low-level provocations. This shift aligns with the US's 2026 National Defense Strategy, which reorients the US-ROK alliance from a purely peninsula-focused deterrent to a broader regional asset, integrating South Korea into the US Indo-Pacific strategy. This broader role, however, places Seoul in a delicate position, as it seeks to maintain its vital security alliance with the US while managing potential friction with China, a key economic partner and neighbor.

South Korea's efforts to restore and deepen economic and diplomatic ties with China, as evidenced by President Lee's January 2026 visit to Beijing and subsequent agreements on economic cooperation, are crucial for its economic prosperity but also highlight the challenge of balancing major power relations. Beijing remains wary of Seoul's military cooperation with the US, particularly regarding high-tech naval upgrades, and divergence persists on the terminology of "denuclearization" concerning North Korea. The ongoing Middle East conflict and the subsequent US asset shifts underscore the interconnectedness of global security, forcing South Korea to navigate a multi-faceted strategic environment where regional and global crises can directly impact its defense posture and economic interests, particularly energy security.

North Korea's continued rejection of dialogue with South Korea, coupled with its conditional openness to talks with the US, further complicates regional dynamics. Pyongyang's strengthened relations with Russia and China, along with its increased confidence due to stabilizing economic conditions, likely reduce its incentive for immediate dialogue with Seoul or Washington without significant concessions. This creates an environment where North Korea might use the perceived "fissures" in the US-ROK alliance, as highlighted by South Korean opposition parties, to its advantage.

Military and Defense Analysis

South Korea's military posture during this period is characterized by a declared confidence in its independent deterrence capabilities, even as US military assets are reportedly being redeployed from the peninsula. President Lee Jae Myung explicitly stated that the removal of some US weapons "does not hinder deterrence strategy towards North Korea," emphasizing South Korea's defense spending and conventional capabilities, which he noted far exceed those of North Korea. This assertion is supported by the US's 2026 National Defense Strategy, which assesses that South Korea is now capable of taking primary responsibility for deterring North Korea, a significant shift from the traditional USFK mission.

The ongoing Freedom Shield exercise, involving approximately 18,000 South Korean troops, demonstrates Seoul's commitment to maintaining a robust combined defense posture with the US, despite the external pressures. South Korea's modernization programs continue to be a priority, with the 2026 defense budget, finalized in December 2025 at KRW 65.8642 trillion, marking the largest increase since 2020. A substantial portion of this budget, KRW 19.9653 trillion, is allocated to force improvement programs, particularly strengthening the Three-Axis System (deterrence against North Korea's nuclear and WMD threats) with an 21.3% increase from the previous year. Key acquisitions include K2 tanks, Ulsan-class Batch III frigates, and a second batch of aerial refueling tankers. Furthermore, the military's 2026 plan emphasizes the expansion of unmanned forces, aiming to develop 500,000 military drones utilizing artificial intelligence and advanced science and technology, alongside manned-unmanned teaming systems. These developments underscore South Korea's strategic intent to enhance its self-reliant defense capabilities and adapt to future warfare paradigms.

Outlook and Forecast

Short-term trends (1-3 months): In the immediate future, South Korea will likely continue to navigate the implications of the US military asset redeployment, with ongoing domestic political debate and potential for North Korean reactions. The Freedom Shield exercise, concluding on March 19, 2026, will remain a focal point, and Pyongyang is expected to issue strong condemnations or even conduct its own military demonstrations in response. Diplomatic efforts to engage North Korea will persist from Seoul, though a breakthrough in inter-Korean dialogue appears unlikely given Pyongyang's current stance. South Korea will also maintain heightened vigilance regarding energy security, closely monitoring developments in the Middle East and their potential impact on global supply chains. Cybersecurity will remain a critical concern, with continued efforts to implement new guidelines and counter evolving AI-driven threats.

Critical flashpoints and risk areas: The primary flashpoint remains the Korean Peninsula, particularly any miscalculation by North Korea in response to the perceived weakening of the US-ROK alliance due to asset shifts. North Korean provocations, such as missile tests or border incidents, could escalate tensions rapidly. The ongoing Middle East conflict poses an indirect but significant risk, not only to South Korea's energy security but also by potentially diverting further US resources, thereby testing the resilience of the US-ROK alliance and its ability to deter threats in Northeast Asia. The domestic political divide in South Korea over security policy, exacerbated by the US asset redeployment, could also create internal instability and hinder a unified national response to external threats.

Indicators to monitor: Key indicators include any further confirmed movements of US military assets from South Korea, the nature and frequency of North Korean military activities (especially missile tests or border incursions), and the rhetoric from Pyongyang regarding both Seoul and Washington. The level of coordination and public statements from US and South Korean officials regarding alliance strength and deterrence capabilities will also be crucial. Furthermore, monitoring global energy market fluctuations and reports of significant cyberattacks targeting South Korean infrastructure will provide insights into the evolving security environment.

Strategic recommendations: South Korea should prioritize accelerating its independent defense capability enhancements, particularly in missile defense and intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance (ISR) assets, to mitigate any perceived gaps from US asset redeployments. Strengthening strategic communication and coordination with the United States is paramount to ensure a clear and unified deterrence posture against North Korea and to manage the evolving roles within the alliance. Seoul should also continue its pragmatic diplomatic approach with China, seeking Beijing's constructive role in de-escalating tensions on the Korean Peninsula while carefully balancing its security ties with Washington. Domestically, fostering a bipartisan consensus on national security policy is vital to present a united front against external threats and ensure consistent defense planning. Finally, continued investment in cybersecurity infrastructure and AI-driven defense mechanisms is essential to counter the growing sophistication of cyber threats.

“We weren’t even shaken during COVID. It somehow just passed us by,” said Joo Jung-hee, an 80-year-old restaurant owner. “That’s because of the factory workers.” Running a small restaurant in Ulsan, a city whose economy revolves around six major Hyundai Motor factories, Joo has rarely worried about sales. Even with pain-relief patches on hands darkened by age spots, she still smiles at the sight of customers streaming in each day, metimes swallowing a handful of painkillers before returning to work. Inside the modest 82-square-meter restaurant, ten steel tables fill quickly at lunchtime. Factory workers tired of cafeteria food come for Joo’s pollack stew or ft tofu up, and the place turns into mething like a neighborhood living room. Over the years serving out food, she now knows when the next seasonal promotion is. Restaurants nearby have changed owners several times in the past year alone. But Joo has held on to her spot, which sits directly across from the factory gates for three decades. For her, Ulsan was the city that made it possible to raise three sons. She arrived

The government will invest about 8.6 trillion won ($5.77 billion) this year to accelerate development across various fields, including semiconductors, artificial intelligence (AI), shipbuilding, energy and batteries, as it moves to strengthen Korea’s technological sovereignty and respond to intensifying global competition. The Ministry of Science and ICT announced Friday that the joint public-private Special Committee on the National Strategic Technology approved the 2026 implementation plan, mobilizing 23 ministries to coordinate research funding, policy tools and financial support. The plan is part of the government’s five-year national strategy for strategic technologies from 2024 through 2028, aimed at securing critical capabilities that are considered essential to national security and industrial growth. As part of the plan, the government has ramped up national strategic technology research and development (R&D) spending by 30 percent from last year to 8.6 trillion won in 2026. The fund will support coordinated government programs covering 513 designated technologies, which th

Internal turmoil within the main opposition People Power Party (PPP) is intensifying ahead of the June 3 local elections, as the chief of its nomination committee suddenly quit and the confrontation between party leader Jang Dong-hyeok and Seoul Mayor Oh Se-hoon is escalating. While the party is still dealing with internal disputes surrounding its ties with ousted former President Yoon Suk Yeol, fresh turbulence is threatening to disrupt preparations for the key elections. Lee Jung-hyun, who had been overseeing the party’s nomination process for the upcoming elections, announced his resignation Friday, saying he could no longer carry out the vision he sought to pursue during the selection process. “In the course of this nomination process, I strongly felt the need for change and reform, and I have tried to do my best in the role entrusted to me,” Lee said in a statement. “However, as I respected various opinions, I concluded that it had become difficult to push forward the direction I had envisioned. The former Itaewon Station chief said during an investigative hearing Friday that she would still not have ordered trains to skip Itaewon Station on the night of the 2022 Halloween crowd crush, drawing fury from bereaved families who accused her of abetting the disaster that killed 159 people. On the second day of fact-finding hearings by the National Commission for the Investigation of the Oct. 29 Itaewon Disaster in Seoul, questioning centered on Song Eun-young' s decision not to request trains skip Itaewon Station that night as well as Yongsan District Office' s failure to address illegal structures near the narrow alley where the crowd crush happened. Asked whether she would make the same choice again under identical circumstances, Song replied, “Yes, that’ s right,” prompting strong reactions from families in the audience. Some yelled, “If you stay in the post, people will die again,” and “What have you done for three years?” as the hearing briefly grew chaotic. Song, who now holds a different post with Seoul Metro, defended her decision by arguing station staff had

A lawmaker who led this week’ s ban on English level tests for preschoolers is now vowing to push a far more sweeping proposal that would sharply curb academic lessons for children at so-called “English kindergartens” and other private institutes in Korea. On Thursday, the National Assembly approved an amendment to the Private Teaching Institutes and Extracurricular Lessons Act in order to ban level tests used by private institutes to screen or rank preschool students for their programs. This law will come into force six months after passage. Only low pressure diagnostic checks will be allowed after a child is enrolled, and only with prior parental consent, using observation style activities intended to support learning rather than rank children. Detailed standards for these diagnostics will be set later by enforcement ordinances. A senior aide in the office of Rep. Kang Kyung-sook of the minor liberal Rebuilding Korea Party, who led the legislation effort, welcomed the passage but stressed that it represents only “half” of the lawmaker’ s early-childhood agenda. “The oth

- Police to deploy maximum security for BTS comeback show amid terror concerns (2026-03-13 11:57)

Police said Friday that they will deploy maximum security measures for K-pop group BTS’ concert at Gwanghwamun Square on March 21, citing the possibility of a terror attack amid intensifying tensions in the Middle East and worsening global security conditions. In a press release, the Seoul Metropolitan Police Agency said it will mobilize all resources to counter terrorism risks in and around the venue near City Hall in central Seoul, with over 200,000 fans expected to crowd the area for the concert. It also pledged a tough response to hoax threats. “If a bomb threat is reported on the day of the event, it could cause major disruptions,” the police said. “Anyone who causes delays or wastes police resources by making bomb threats will be subject to arrest and a full investigation until they are apprehended.” Police buses and water-filled barricades will be placed on surrounding roads to block access to the venue as part of the safety measures. Metal detectors will also be set up at 30 entrance points. Police asked visitors to pack light, saying that screening procedures could cau

- Women head chefs now helm 1 in 10 Michelin-starred restaurants in Korea (2026-03-13 05:57)

Women head chefs now lead 1 in 10 Michelin-starred restaurants in Korea, marking a symbolic crack in the industry’s long-standing glass ceiling even as stark gender gaps persist worldwide. The newly released Michelin Guide Seoul and Busan 2026 lists a record 46 starred restaurants, of which five are helmed by women, or about 10.9 percent, up from three out of 40 last year. That makes 2026 the first year, based on available data, that women have crossed the 10 percent threshold among Korea’s Michelin-starred chefs. At the global level, women remain badly outnumbered: A 2022 analysis of 2,286 Michelin-starred restaurants in 16 countries found only about 6 percent were led by women, with the figure still hovering between 5 and 10 percent in 2025. Michelin’s own leadership has publicly acknowledged the imbalance.

“Where are the women? Too few women are leading kitchens, despite the fact that more and more of them are working in kitchens,” international director Gwendal Poullennec said at the 2024 French edition of the ceremony, calling it “a reality we deplore.” For every woman

- Lee's approval rating hits highest level since inauguration: poll (2026-03-13 05:57)

President Lee Jae Myung's approval rating climbed to 66 percent, marking its highest level since he took office last June, a survey showed Friday. The survey by Gallup Korea, conducted Tuesday through Thursday on 1,002 respondents aged 18 and over, showed that the positive assessment of Lee's overall performance gained 1 percentage point from the previous week. The negative assessment fell 1 percentage point to 24 percent. Lee's economic policies were cited most frequently as the reason for the positive evaluation at 20 percent, followed by diplomacy at 10 percent. Following U.S.-Israeli strikes on Iran, the government rolled out a series of measures to stabilize the economy and help ease livelihood burdens stemming from the impact of the Middle East conflict, including a fuel price cap. Among the negative responses, concerns over the economy, including people's livelihoods and the high dollar-won exchange rate, stood at 16 percent, followed by his diplomacy and unilateral decision-making at 8 percent. The approval rating for the ruling Democratic Party of Korea rose 1 percentage point to

- KDCA safety net serves tuberculosis patients turned away by hospitals (2026-03-13 05:57)

One tuberculosis patient had his infection discovered during emergency surgery after a suicide attempt, with no guardian and a canceled resident registration. Another tuberculosis patient could not afford 31,630 won ($21) for a hospital visit. A homeless tuberculosis patient was refused help by his younger sister. These real cases are turned away by many hospitals. The Korea Disease Control and Prevention Agency’s (KDCA) Tuberculosis Relief Belt Project (TRBP), however, has stepped in. Launched in 2014, TRBP provides comprehensive support throughout the course of tuberculosis treatment, covering medical care, caregivers, hospital transfers and nutritional assistance. Operating through a network of 20 medical institutions, the program serves as a safety net for socially and economically vulnerable tuberculosis patients.

“The project, now in its 13th year, is a valuable initiative for the agency because it reflects voices from the field,” KDCA Commissioner Lim Seung-kwan said at a briefing for reporters Wednesday. “Work that requires sustained long-term effort and does not immedia

- Medical school admission quota rises to 3,548 for 2027 academic year (2026-03-13 05:57)

The nation's medical school admission quota for the 2027 academic year has been confirmed to be 3,548, an increase of 490 from the 2024 academic year, the education ministry said Friday. The decision follows significant conflict between the government and the medical community between 2024 and 2025 after the former Yoon Suk Yeol government had sharply raised the quota by 2,000 for the 2025 academic year to 5,058. The quota was adjusted later to 4,567 for that year before being reverted to 3,058 for the 2026 academic year. The government last month unveiled a plan to gradually increase the quota by an annual average of 668 through 2031. The education ministry said the universities with the largest increase in medical school enrollment next year will be Kangwon National University in the northeastern city of Chuncheon and Chungbuk National University in the central city of Cheongju, with an increase of 39 students each. The school with the smallest increase will be CHA University in Pocheon, northeast of Seoul, with only a net increase of 2 people, it noted, adding all 40 medical schools n

- Korea files objection to mediation over Japan-funded compensation for wartime slavery victims (2026-03-13 05:57)

The government has recently filed an objection to a court mediation for a now-defunct foundation established with Japanese funds to pay damages to a late victim of Japan's wartime sexual slavery, officials said Friday. Officials representing the Reconciliation and Healing Foundation submitted the objection last week against the mediation to pay 100 million won ($67,000) to the late victim's bereaved family member, surnamed Kim, according to the gender ministry and legal sources. Kim's side had earlier won a Korean court case to receive the amount in compensation from the Japanese government. They took further legal action for compensation to be made using the foundation's assets, which the Seoul Central District Court accepted. The gender ministry, which oversees the foundation, believes it does not need to pay damages on Japan's behalf. “The foundation has no need to preserve the plaintiff's claim on behalf of Japan,” a ministry official said when asked about the objection. The Japan-funded foundation was established in 2016 to support victims of sexual slavery during World War II under

- Lee calls for close monitoring of gas stations as fuel price cap takes effect (2026-03-13 05:57)

President Lee Jae Myung on Friday called for close monitoring of local gas stations to ensure compliance with a fuel price cap, as the government implemented the price ceiling to help ease burdens for consumers. "(The government) decided to set a ceiling on supply prices to curb fluctuating fuel costs stemming from uncertainty in the international situation," Lee wrote on X. Lee urged public participation to prevent potential profiteering by actively reporting cases of violations. "Public monitoring and participation are needed to prevent some companies from profiteering during this period of instability or taking unfair profits," he said. "If you find gas stations violating the (oil price cap) system, please report the cases to me without delay." It marks the first time since 1997 that Korea has enforced a price ceiling system under a provision in the Petroleum Business Act, which allows the industry minister to set a maximum sales price when oil prices fluctuate sharply and threaten economic stability.

- Police raid land ministry over Jeju Air crash (2026-03-13 05:57)

Police raided the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport on Friday to secure material for its investigation into the 2024 Jeju Air plane crash that killed 179 people. A special team handling the probe said it sent investigators to the ministry headquarters in the central administrative city of Sejong at 8:40 a.m. to seize supplementary material. Investigators are looking for leads on the cause of the crash at Muan International Airport on Dec. 29, 2024, and whether the responsible agencies handled it properly, it said. Four people were listed as suspects on the search warrant, all of whom worked for the ministry's air navigation and airport divisions at the time of the crash. Police have so far booked 64 people in connection with the tragedy on suspicion of occupational negligence resulting in death or injury and other charges. The investigation has been looking as far back as the start of the airport's construction in 1999 to determine whether there were any factors that contributed to the disaster. Some of the victims' remains were recently discovered at the site, prompting Presi

- Lee vows supports for industrial sectors in AI adoption (2026-03-13 05:57)

President Lee Jae Myung said Friday the government will step up coordinated efforts to advance artificial intelligence (AI) transformation across industrial sectors in partnership with the private sector. Lee made the pledge in a post on social media platform X, sharing a news report that the ministries of science and ICT, industry, and SMEs will jointly launch bids for major AI projects aimed at developing AI solutions and applying them in factories. "(The government) will bring together all our capabilities to swiftly push forward industrial AI transformation," Lee wrote. Lee said the initiative is possible because his administration has lowered barriers across ministries to promote interagency cooperation. The envisioned project is worth 432 billion won ($289.7 million) and includes programs to support smart factories, AI applications in manufacturing and their integration, with the government set to announce the bid next week. Under the initiative, the Ministry of Science and ICT will develop AI agents capable of managing or operating industrial processes, while also advancing AI inte

- Seoul mayor again delays PPP candidate registration for local elections (2026-03-12 11:57)

Seoul Mayor Oh Se-hoon said Thursday he did not register for the main opposition People Power Party (PPP)'s candidacy for the June local elections within the extended deadline, expressing dissatisfaction with the party leadership's lack of effort to clearly sever ties with ousted President Yoon Suk Yeol. The fourth-term mayor did not submit his registration for the Seoul mayoral race by the deadline set by the PPP — which had been extended from the original cutoff on Sunday — citing concerns over PPP leader Jang Dong-hyeok's vague stance on calls from within the party to distance itself from Yoon. The former president is currently jailed on insurrection charges related to his failed martial law bid in December 2024. "I regret to say that I was unable to apply for the party primary or candidacy registration ahead of the local elections today," Oh told reporters after an event held in central Seoul. His decision comes as the conservative party continues to struggle to regain public support amid a prolonged internal rift triggered by Yoon's short-lived martial law declaration. In an appa

- 5 Koreans flee from Iran amid Middle East conflict (2026-03-12 11:57)

Five Korean nationals have fled from Iran amid the widening conflict in the Middle East, the foreign ministry said Thursday, as Seoul continues to evacuate its citizens from Tehran and other regions under attack. Four Koreans crossed into Turkmenistan via a land route a day after leaving Tehran, the ministry said. Another Korean national is still at the border area with two family members and they are expected to arrive in Turkmenistan on Saturday. More than 6,000 Koreans have been evacuated from 14 countries in the Middle East since March 3, with the number of those remaining in the region standing at around 14,700, according to ministry data provided Monday. Roughly half of some 4,100 short-term travelers have left the region in the same period. The resumption of limited flights by the United Arab Emirates and Qatar has paved the way for broader evacuation efforts, following diplomatic talks with Seoul. A Qatari flight from Doha carrying 108 people, including 66 Koreans, landed in Incheon, west of Seoul, on Thursday.

- Lee orders thorough probe into belated discovery of remains of Jeju Air crash victims (2026-03-12 11:57)

President Lee Jae Myung on Thursday ordered a thorough investigation into the recent discovery of additional remains of victims of the Jeju Air plane crash in late 2024, voicing regret over their belated recovery. Last month, authorities discovered nine pieces of remains presumed to belong to the victims in a reexamination of the wreckage site, prompting the victims' families to protest outside the presidential office this week to condemn the disaster recovery process. Lee instructed a "thorough" probe to determine why the remains were not found in the early stages of the recovery process and why they were left at the site for more than a year, according to Lee Kyu-yeon, the presidential secretary for public relations. He also called for "severely reprimanding" those responsible and to swiftly carry out the ongoing investigation into the crash, the presidential aide said in a briefing. "Looking back, there were clear shortcomings. (We) will identify those responsible and make sure that this does not happen ever again," the aide said. The Jeju Air crash on Dec. 29, 2024, killed 179 passengers

- Incumbent Gov. Kim, six-term lawmaker Choo declare bids for Gyeonggi governor (2026-03-12 11:57)

Incumbent Gyeonggi Gov. Kim Dong-yeon and six-term lawmaker Choo Mi-ae of the ruling Democratic Party of Korea (DPK) on Thursday declared their bids for the June 3 Gyeonggi gubernatorial election. Kim, who is seeking reelection, vowed to work "on the ground" and in line with President Lee Jae Myung's vision during a press conference in Anyang Station, Gyeonggi Province. "My utmost priority is making the Lee Jae Myung administration a successful one," he said, pledging to construct around 800,000 housing units and attract 200 trillion won in investment during his term. Earlier in the day, Choo also announced her bid, vowing to make Gyeonggi Province a province where its residents can take pride in, while promoting AI-driven governance and youth job creation. The Gyeonggi Province governor race is shaping up as a five-way contest with the entries of Kim and Choo, who are widely seen as front-runners in the upcoming election. The DPK plans to hold a preliminary primary from March 21-22 to narrow the field to three candidates before holding the final primary from April 5-7.

- Complaint filed against top court chief justice for 'legal distortion' (2026-03-12 11:57)

A complaint was filed against Supreme Court Chief Justice Cho Hee-dae Thursday alleging distortion of legal principles in President Lee Jae Myung's election law violation case on the first day the legislation criminalizing such conduct went into effect. Lee Byung-chul, a lawyer, submitted the complaint against Cho and Supreme Court justice Park Young-jae, alleging intentional distortion of the criminal procedure law when the top court overturned Lee's acquittal by a lower court last May. The new law, which took effect earlier in the day, establishes a new criminal offense of "legal distortion" and punishes judges or prosecutors with up to 10 years in prison if they knowingly misapply legal principles. Police confirmed the complaint, adding that an investigation would take place in accordance with relevant procedures. The lawyer claimed in the complaint that Cho intentionally did not apply the principle of written proceedings in the case with the intent to harm others' rights. The Supreme Court at the time sent the case back to the Seoul High Court for review. The verdict, which came just

- National Assembly passes bill on \$350 bil. investment in US (2026-03-12 11:57)

The National Assembly passed a special bill on Korea's investments in the United States Thursday, establishing a legal framework to manage $350 billion worth of investment projects agreed upon by the two countries. Lawmakers passed the legislation after reaching a bipartisan agreement during a plenary session. Of the 242 lawmakers participating in the session, 226 voted for it and eight opposed, with another eight abstaining. The bill was passed around three months after the two countries signed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) on the investment and tariff issues, and about six weeks after U.S. President Donald Trump threatened to raise tariffs on Korean goods from 15 percent to 25 percent, citing "delays" in the legislation process. President Lee Jae Myung welcomed the passage of the bill. "The bill's passage is a meaningful example showing that there are no partisan divides when it comes to national priorities," he wrote in a post on X. "It establishes the legal and institutional foundation needed to implement the Korea-U.S. tariff agreement." Lee added that the government

- [\[EXPLAINER\] New law lets president pick 22 of 26 Supreme Court justices by 2030](#)

(2026-03-12 11:57)

Korea's judiciary has experienced its biggest upheaval in nearly four decades as a trio of judicial reform laws took effect Thursday, expanding the Supreme Court, creating a new constitutional appeals channel and criminalizing “distortion” of the law by judges and prosecutors. One of the key components of the reform is a revision of the Court Organization Act, which will boost the number of Supreme Court justices from the current 14 to 26 by 2030. This change would give President Lee Jae Myung sweeping influence over its future composition: By the end of his term in June 2030, he is expected to appoint 22 of the 26 justices. Beginning in March 2028, the court will add four new justices a year for three consecutive years, gradually building up to 26 seats while Lee fills each new vacancy as it opens. The government and the ruling Democratic Party of Korea (DPK) say the expansion is necessary to cope with a growing caseload, given that each justice currently handles an average of 3,478 cases a year. With more justices available, they argue, the Supreme Court can share the workload m

- [\[Roundtable\] Gauging impact of US-Israel war on Iran](#) (2026-03-12 11:57)

As the world attempts to make sense of the U.S.-Israel war against Iran, Korean experts are gauging when the conflict will end, as well as grappling with its economic and political ramifications, including the closing of the Strait of Hormuz and soaring energy prices. U.S. President Donald Trump on Wednesday (local time) said that Iran is facing imminent defeat and that the U.S. is willing to escalate its attacks. However, there is no sign that Iran is considering surrender or that the war will come to a swift conclusion. To better understand the issues, a panel of experts was invited to share their opinions at The Korea Times roundtable, "U.S.-Israel war on Iran and its impact on the Korean Peninsula," held Wednesday in Seoul. The Korea Times' chief editorial writer Shim Jae-yun moderated the event, which featured Kim Won-soo, former United Nations under-secretary-general and high representative for disarmament affairs and retired Lt. Gen. Chun In-bum, former commander of the Republic of Korea Army Special Warfare Command, along with Song Kyung-jin, senior fellow at the Asiatic Resear

- Soonchunhyang University launches college dedicated to int'l students (2026-03-12 11:57)

Soonchunhyang University announced Thursday that it will establish a new college dedicated exclusively to international students as part of a broader overhaul of its education system to cultivate global talent. The new college will operate as an independent academic unit exclusively for international students, with its own curriculum and administrative system rather than placing foreign students across existing departments. The college will offer several specialized majors for international students, including undeclared major programs, global health, global industrial engineering and global sports management. The program will adopt a phased curriculum that integrates Korean-language instruction with major coursework across each academic year. The initiative will also align with the university's strategic focus on AI-driven medical convergence. Leveraging its biomedical research infrastructure, affiliated hospitals and industry partnerships, the university plans to expand global programs in fields such as healthcare, medicine and industrial engineering. It aims to collaborate with local

- Itaewon tragedy hearing turns emotional as survivor recounts horror, police trade blame (2026-03-12 11:57)

The long-awaited public inquiry in the 2022 Itaewon crowd crush opened Thursday with tearful testimony from survivors and heated exchanges between police officials accused of mishandling emergency calls on the night of the disaster. The hearing came more than three years after the 2022 tragedy, following prolonged political gridlock, disputes over accountability and repeated delays in forming an independent investigative body. The National Commission for the Investigation of the Oct. 29 Itaewon Disaster, the special fact-finding group investigating the tragedy, began the first of two days of hearings in central Seoul. The session drew bereaved families and witnesses whose testimonies shed new light on a chain of failures preceding the crowd surge, resulting in the deaths of 159 people during Halloween celebrations. Tears filled the hall as Min Seung-ho, a survivor of the events, recounted the moments before the crowd crush in a narrow alley in Itaewon turned fatal. “From 10 to 11 p.m., there were at least three big pushes,” Min recalled. “No one was intentionally shoving, but people

- Sejong University to host startup, career forum for international students (2026-03-12 11:57)

Sejong University will host a career fair and startup forum aimed at supporting foreign students pursuing education and career opportunities in Korea. The university said it will hold the 7th International Student Career Fair & Startup Forum (ISF) at its Seoul campus, Mar. 25. The event will be jointly organized with international student platform Stuvisor and foreign student career platform Careertus. A university official said it is now imperative to include their workforce into the job market since Korea seeks long-term solutions to a worsening population decline and labor shortage. “Korea has been facing a severe demographic decline. The country’s total fertility rate fell to a record low of 0.72 in 2023 and remained around 0.80 in 2025, among the lowest in the world,” the official said. “The shrinking population has increasingly led to labor shortages across industries, prompting policymakers and institutions to consider attracting and retaining highly skilled foreign talent as a strategic alternative.” The school highlighted the government’s “Study Korea 300K” initiative

- Supreme Court finalizes loss of seat for ruling party lawmaker over fraud (2026-03-12 11:57)

The Supreme Court on Thursday finalized a ruling stripping Rep. Yang Moon-seok of his parliamentary seat after convicting him of fraud. Yang of the ruling Democratic Party of Korea had been sentenced by a lower court to 18 months in prison, suspended for three years, for taking out a fraudulent loan in 2021. The top court upheld the ruling. By law, members of the National Assembly are stripped of their seats if a criminal punishment of at least a prison term, including suspended ones, is finalized. The Supreme Court’s decision came on the same day a revised law took effect, allowing petitions to be filed with the Constitutional Court to review finalized rulings. Yang wrote on Facebook after the ruling that if it appears to have "overlooked the basic rights" of his family, he will consult his lawyers and "receive the judgment of the Constitutional Court." Yang and his wife, surnamed Seo, were indicted in 2024 on charges of fraud for allegedly taking out a 1.1 billion-won ($744,000) loan from a credit union under the false pretext of business operation funds for their college student child

- Ruling party, gov't agree to provide energy vouchers to vulnerable households amid Middle East crisis (2026-03-12 05:57)

The ruling Democratic Party of Korea (DPK) and government officials on Thursday agreed to provide energy vouchers to help vulnerable groups cope with rising prices amid an intensifying war in the Middle East. During a meeting of DPK lawmakers and energy ministry officials at the National Assembly, the ruling party urged the government to ensure that energy costs do not place additional strain on low-income households, Rep. Kim Ju-young told reporters. "The DPK asked that the government maintain a thorough emergency response posture to prevent public inconvenience caused by disruptions in the supply of electricity, while also calling for support in public welfare so that the rising energy costs do not further burden vulnerable households," he said. The government said it would launch an emergency response team, and work with state-run energy companies and private power generators to maintain a stable supply.

- Record number of new PhD holders face low-wage trap in Korea (2026-03-12 05:57)

The number of new doctorate holders in Korea hit a record high of nearly 20,000 last year, but an increasing percentage of these highly educated professionals are taking low-wage jobs in a labor market structurally incapable of absorbing them. According to data released Tuesday by the Korea Education Statistics Service under the Korean Educational Development Institute, 19,831 individuals earned a Ph.D. from domestic graduate schools in 2025. This marks a 51.6-percent surge compared to 2015, the highest since the institute began tracking data in 1999. When records began in 1999, the country produced just 5,586 new doctorates annually. That number steadily increased, surpassing the 10,000-mark in 2010 before nearly doubling again over the following 15 years. Women largely drove the surge, accounting for a record-high 43.5 percent of all new Ph.D. recipients last year with 8,629 graduates. In 1999, only 1,144 women earned a doctorate, representing 20.5 percent of the total. The latest figure reflects a 7.5-fold increase over the past 26 years. Despite holding advanced degrees, a growing share

Veteran musical theater actor Nam Kyung-joo is facing charges of sexual assault after police referred his case to prosecutors. The Seoul Bangbae Police Station announced Wednesday that it referred Nam to the Seoul Central District Prosecutors' Office last month while he remains free pending trial. He is accused of sexually assaulting a woman late last year in Seocho-gu, southern Seoul. The victim directly reported the incident to the police via the 112 emergency hotline. Nam has denied the charges. Following the allegations, Nam deleted his social media accounts and severed ties with his agency. Nam debuted as a musical actor in the 1980s and has remained a highly influential presence in the Korean musical theater industry. He has starred in major productions including "Guys and Dolls" and "Chicago" and was routinely cast in lead roles until October last year. Nam has also been known as a major advocate for the arts in Korea. Last October, Nam made a high-profile appearance at a parliamentary audit before the Culture, Sports and Tourism Committee. During the session, he urged institutional

Prime Minister Kim Min-seok is set to depart for the United States on Thursday to promote Korea's bid to host a U.N. hub and meet with senior U.S. officials, possibly including Vice President JD Vance. Kim's weeklong trip, which will also take him to Geneva, Switzerland, comes as the government is bidding to host the tentatively named "U.N. AI hub," an initiative aimed at bringing together U.N. bodies, and Korea's private and public sectors to produce AI-based solutions to global issues. A meeting with Vance is being arranged for his stop in Washington, sources said, which he could use to discuss tariffs and other bilateral issues, including a bill supporting Korea's $350 billion investment commitment to the U.S. The bill is set to be passed by the National Assembly later Thursday. Kim and Vance previously met in January, also in Washington. From the U.S. capital, the prime minister will travel to New York, where he plans to visit the U.N., UNICEF and the United Nations Development Program to meet with heads of organizations, including U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres, to discuss t

Nearly 4,000 vehicles worth a combined 179.6 billion won ($121.2 million), mostly luxury models, were illegally exported to Russia from Korea over the past three years despite automotive sanctions, authorities here said Wednesday. A total of 3,705 cars were mostly falsely declared as being destined for countries neighboring Russia, including Kazakhstan and Kyrgyzstan, but were ultimately transported to Russia between 2023 and 2025, in violation of export controls imposed after the Russian invasion of Ukraine, the Korea Customs Service (KCS) said. Korea has banned exports of vehicles with engine displacements of 2,000cc or more, as well as luxury cars valued above $50,000, to Russia and Belarus, in line with similar sanctions imposed by major economies, such as the European Union and the United States. "As a responsible member of the international community, we plan to thoroughly investigate illegal exports that violate export controls and eradicate such practices to enhance national credibility and export competitiveness," said Lee Myeong-gu, a KCS chief, in a press release. The agency a

- Judicial reform laws take effect allowing constitutional appeals of court rulings, punishment for 'legal distortion' (2026-03-12 05:57)

A set of judicial reform laws were officially proclaimed Thursday, allowing constitutional appeals of Supreme Court rulings, punishment for judges who intentionally distort legal principles and an expansion of the top court. The reforms marked the first major overhaul of the current judiciary system since a constitutional amendment in 1987. The National Assembly, controlled by the ruling Democratic Party, passed the bills last month in a push for judiciary reform despite strong objections from the main opposition People Power Party and the judiciary, which argued they could undermine its independence. The laws on constitutional appeals and punishment for the offense of "legal distortion" will take effect immediately, while the increase to the number of Supreme Court justices will gradually take place starting 2028. Under the amended Constitutional Court Act, individuals can now file constitutional complaints against finalized rulings if they are deemed to be against Constitutional Court decisions, have not followed due process or infringed fundamental rights with clear constitutional vio

- National Assembly set to vote on bill on U.S. investment pledges (2026-03-11 23:57)

The National Assembly is set to hold a plenary session Thursday to vote on a special bill on South Korea's $350 billion investment pledge to the United States under a trade deal between the two nations after rival parties reached a bipartisan agreement earlier this week. On Wednesday, the ruling Democratic Party of Korea (DPK) and the main opposition People Power Party (PPP) approved the bill during a meeting of the parliamentary legislation and judiciary committee. Under the bill, a new state-run corporation specialized in implementing the investment package will be set up with a paid-in capital of 2 trillion won ($1.36 billion), fully financed by the South Korean government. The corporation will consist of a total workforce of 50 employees, and three members on the board of directors will be required to have at least 10 years of experience in the financial sector or strategic industries to prevent crony appointments. The bill was introduced by the DPK in November to carry out Seoul's investment pledges to the U.S. as part of a trade deal reached by the two countries last year. The legis

- Chonnam Nat'l University microfluidics study features on cover of leading journal (2026-03-11 23:57)

A research team at Chonnam National University has drawn international attention after its microfluidics study was featured as the cover paper of the 25th anniversary issue of a leading scientific journal. According to the university Wednesday, the team led by Park Jin-soo, a professor in the university's School of Mechanical Engineering, conducted the international joint research with scientists from Germany's Technische Universitat Ilmenau. The study appeared on the cover of Lab on a Chip, an international journal published by the U.K.-based Royal Society of Chemistry. Building on years of research in microfluidics, which examines how fluids behave at microscopic scales, Park's team investigated how biological particles such as cells, bacteria and microalgae move and interact in fluid environments. Many earlier studies treated biological particles as perfectly spherical when conducting theoretical or computational analyses. Yet such assumptions often failed to align with results observed in experiments and clinical settings. To address this gap, the researchers focused on the fact

- S. Korea to release 22.46 mil. barrels from oil reserves under IEA plan (2026-03-11 17:57)

South Korea plans to release 22.46 million barrels of oil from its strategic reserves in line with an agreement among International Energy Agency (IEA) members to make 400 million barrels of oil from their reserves available to the market, Seoul's industry ministry has said. The ministry announced the plan for the release on Wednesday, shortly after the 32-member IEA unanimously agreed to carry out the agency's largest-ever oil stock release in a collective action to help address disruptions in oil markets that stem from the ongoing war between the United States, Israel and Iran. The contribution of each country in the collective endeavor was calculated in proportion to its share of the member countries' total oil consumption. South Korea's planned release accounts for 5.6 percent of the total 400 million barrels to be released. " (South Korea) assesses that close cooperation with the IEA this time will contribute greatly to stabilizing the international oil market," an industry ministry official said. "Going forward, we plan to minimize the impact on the people's economy and prices by cl

- Cheong Wa Dae denies report on reviving open-to-all bar exam (2026-03-11 17:57)

The presidential office denied a news report Wednesday that the government is reviewing a plan to partially revive the open-to-all state-run bar exam, abolished in 2017, to license lawyers outside the law school system. Kang Yu-jung, a presidential spokesperson, made the remarks in a press notice after a local newspaper reported that the government is reviewing a plan to reinstate the bar exam to select 50 to 150 lawyers each year outside the law school system. The report said the plan will be reported to President Lee Jae Myung after a final assessment. Currently, the bar exam is limited to those who have studied law for three years at law schools. The previous one, which allowed non-law majors to take the exam, was abolished in 2017 with the introduction of law schools. The new system was intended to nurture judicial professionals from various backgrounds, but it has faced criticism that only those from wealthy families can afford law school. President Lee said in a town hall meeting in June that he "agrees to some extent" with the criticism that the law school system is favorable to t

- Gov't reviews crowd safety measures for BTS concert (2026-03-11 11:57)

The government has mapped out crowd safety measures for K-pop supergroup BTS' upcoming Seoul concert, the interior ministry said Wednesday, as a huge crowd is expected to gather at Gwanghwamun Square, the concert venue. The ministry said Minister Yun Ho-jung presided over a meeting of safety-related public institutions to review the duties of each organization in implementing crowd safety measures for the BTS concert slated for March 21. The concert is expected to attract a large crowd, including 22,000 domestic and international ticket holders. The government plans to preemptively issue a "caution" level warning for crowd disaster to prevent accidents caused by overcrowding, the ministry noted, adding the warning will be in effect for the central Seoul wards of Jongno and Jung during the concert day. The interior ministry and the police will form a situation management team, and the Seoul city government will operate a rapid response team to prepare for emergency situations. The culture ministry will provide advice on concert safety, and inspect stage facilities and seats, while the heal

- Is Middle East crisis casting shadow over annual S. Korea-US military drills? (2026-03-11 11:57)

A notable absence by the top U.S. military official in Korea at a command bunker during the start of this week's Freedom Shield joint exercises has fueled speculation about shifting priorities within the alliance. While U.S. Forces Korea (USFK) says the exercises remain on track, some experts suggest the move may reflect a broader shift in America's defense strategy toward what Washington calls "strategic flexibility." Analysts note that the United States is increasingly adjusting its force posture to manage multiple crises simultaneously in the Middle East while preparing for the long-term challenge posed by China's growing regional influence. A local media report citing an unidentified military official said Gen. Xavier Brunson, commander of United States Forces Korea (USFK) and the Combined Forces Command (CFC), did not enter the Command Post (CP) Tango bunker near Seoul until Tuesday evening — about 45 hours after the exercise began. Typically, the CFC commander and deputy receive operational briefings from the bunker at the start of the drill. But the report said only the

- Foreign residents should be included in state cash handouts, human rights watchdog says (2026-03-11 11:57)

The state human rights watchdog said Wednesday that the government should consider expanding eligibility for state relief funds to be more inclusive of foreign residents, citing concerns about discrimination. The National Human Rights Commission of Korea (NHRCK) said it had conveyed its opinion to the Ministry of the Interior and Safety and other relevant agencies, urging them to gradually broaden the scope of foreign nationals eligible for government support programs aimed at aiding households coping with economic hardship. The issue was raised in a complaint filed July last year by migrant worker groups, which argued that the government's voucher-based cash assistance program treated foreign residents unequally depending on their visa status and household composition. Last year's cash handouts were part of the government's emergency response to sluggish domestic spending. Under the scheme, all citizens and some foreign residents were eligible to receive 150,000 won ($100), with additional benefits for low-income households. Non-Korean citizens were in principle excluded from the initial

- 80,000 subcontracted workers seek bargaining rights on 1st day of 'yellow envelope law' (2026-03-11 11:57)

The first day after Korea's revised Trade Union Act — the so-called "yellow envelope law" — took effect saw more than 80,000 subcontracted workers at 221 parent companies and public institutions seek bargaining with what they consider their primary employers. Officials at the Ministry of Employment and Labor told reporters Wednesday that, as of 8 p.m. the previous day, a total of 407 subcontractor unions and branches, representing about 81,600 workers, had filed bargaining requests with 143 private firms and 78 public entities. Among the companies facing new union requests for talks are major employers such as Hyundai Motor Group, Hyundai Mobis, Hyundai Glovis, HD Hyundai Heavy Industries, Hanwha Ocean, GM Korea, Yonsei University, CJ Logistics, POSCO, Coupang CLS, Korea Railroad Corp. and Incheon International Airport Corp. Only five of them — Hanwha Ocean, POSCO, Coupang CLS, Hwaseong city government and Busan Transportation Corp. — have posted notices acknowledging the bargaining demands and begun the legal process to handle them, including deciding whether to unify bar

- THAAD redeployment sparks fears of high-altitude defense gap in South Korea (2026-03-11 11:57)

The reported redeployment of parts of the United States' Terminal High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) system from South Korea to the Middle East has raised questions about whether the move could affect missile defense readiness on the Korean Peninsula. Although experts say the move is unlikely to create a significant gap in South Korea's defenses, it reflects the growing flexibility in how U.S. military assets stationed here are used. The Washington Post reported Tuesday that the Pentagon was moving parts of a THAAD system from South Korea to the Middle East, citing two U.S. officials. The report said that the U.S. military is also drawing on its supply of Patriot interceptors, which are deployed in the Indo-Pacific and other regions, to strengthen defenses against Iranian drone and ballistic missile attacks. Military sources said six THAAD launcher vehicles that were recently moved from a base in Seongju, North Gyeongsang Province, to Osan Air Base in Pyeongtaek, Gyeonggi Province, have since returned to Seongju after unloading their interceptor missiles. The missiles are believed to

- Middle East crisis prompts honeymooners, church groups to rethink trips (2026-03-11 11:57)

Koreans planning honeymoons, pilgrimages and long-awaited overseas trips are scrambling to revise their itineraries as the conflict in the Middle East shuts down key transit hubs and throws global aviation into turmoil. For many engaged Korean couples, the crisis has hit hard. Over the past few years, Dubai has transformed from a mere layover into a standalone honeymoon hot spot for Koreans, marketed as "affordable luxury" and bundled with resort destinations like the Maldives and Mauritius. Its appeal has grown with K-drama shoots, social media buzz over Dubai chocolate and visa-free entry for Korean travelers, helping push Korean arrivals up 225 percent in 2023 and another 51 percent in the first half of 2024, according to Dubai's Department of Economy and Tourism. That booming demand is now colliding with anxiety over war. Since the U.S. and Israeli strikes on Iran in late February, Iran's retaliatory attacks have raised fears that major Middle Eastern cities could become targets, particularly after reports that United Arab Emirates air defenses intercepted missiles and drone

A retired admiral who served as the country's highest-ranking military officer has been banned from leaving the country over his alleged role in former President Yoon Suk Yeol's failed martial law bid, a special counsel team said Wednesday. Retired Adm. Kim Myung-soo, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS), and other former JCS officials have been booked and slapped with exit bans over their involvement in the short-lived imposition of martial law in December 2024, according to the team. "(We) have booked JCS officials at the time on charges of playing key roles in an insurrection and have imposed exit bans," assistant special counsel Kim Ji-mi said in a briefing. "There are plans to conduct witness questioning in connection to the officials soon." The other booked officials include Jeong Jin-pal, former JCS vice chairman, and Kang Dong-gil, who headed the JCS' directorate of military support at the time. They are accused of participating in an insurrection by forming the martial law command as they watched troops enter the National Assembly compound on the night of Yoon's de

- Korea's truth commission to open new bureau for overseas adoption cases (2026-03-11 11:57)

Korea's truth-seeking commission plans to establish a dedicated bureau to investigate alleged human rights abuses linked to the country's overseas adoption program and residential facilities, its chair said Wednesday, as complaints from adoptees continue to mount. Song Sang-kyo, chairperson of the newly launched third Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC), said the body will also step up efforts to help people living abroad submit complaints through Korean diplomatic missions. Complaints related to overseas adoption have flooded the commission. A total of 311 applications alleging misconduct in intercountry adoptions were filed on Feb. 26, the commission's launch day, and officials expect the number to rise as more adoptees living overseas learn about the process. "There have been continued calls, both within and outside the commission, to establish Investigation Bureau 3 dedicated to cases involving human rights abuses at institutional care facilities and in overseas adoptions," Song said at a press conference, his first since taking office on March 4. Legislation passed in Fe

- Multinational augmentees from UNC member states participate in Freedom Shield exercise (2026-03-11 11:57)

Multinational forces from member states of the U.N. Command (UNC) have participated in an annual springtime military exercise between Seoul and Washington as augmentees, according to the U.S. Indo-Pacific Command on Wednesday. To bolster the UNC Headquarters, augmentees from UNC member states have arrived on the Korean Peninsula, as the allies have been staging the Freedom Shield (FS) exercise from Monday for an 11-day run, according to a release uploaded on the command's website. "Their arrival underscores the international community's enduring commitment to maintaining the armistice and ensuring the security and stability of the region," the release showed. The multinational augmentees visited the Joint Security Area within the Demilitarized Zone and the War Memorial of Korea in central Seoul, as part of efforts to enhance their understanding of their mission. In a separate release, the Seventh Air Force said it has taken part in this year's FS exercise alongside its Korean

- Lee congratulates Kim Yun-ji on winning second medal at Winter Paralympics (2026-03-11 11:57)

President Lee Jae Myung on Wednesday congratulated para-athlete Kim Yun-ji on winning her second medal at the 2026 Milan-Cortina Winter Paralympics in Italy, calling her a "multiplayer on the snowfield." Lee wrote the message on his Facebook account after Kim clinched a silver medal in the women's cross-country skiing event at the Winter Paralympics on Tuesday (local time) after she won the women's individual sitting title in the 12.5-kilometer biathlon Sunday. "Following the precision she displayed in the biathlon, Kim also excelled in cross-country skiing, powering across the snow with explosive strength and emerging as a true 'multi-player on the snowfield,'" Lee wrote. Lee said her silver medal is particularly meaningful as it marks the first medal won by a Korean female cross-country skier in the history of both the Olympics and the Paralympics, adding that the result has helped the country surpass its previous best performance at the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Paralympics. "She is expanding the horizons of the Republic of Korea's winter sports with her outstanding talent," he added. Ki

- Gov't to provide free sanitary pads in public facilities (2026-03-11 05:57)

The Ministry of Gender Equality and Family will launch a pilot project to place sanitary pads in public facilities so all women can access menstrual products, marking the first such initiative by any Korean government. The ministry proposed the plan at a Cabinet meeting held at Cheong Wa Dae Tuesday. While existing support programs provide monthly vouchers worth 14,000 won ($10) to some low-income people aged between 9 and 24, the new plan would also install sanitary pad dispensers in public facilities for anyone to use. "The ministry will select 10 regions for the pilot program, taking into account factors such as population size and existing project conditions," said Gender Equality and Family Minister Won Min-kyung. Sanitary pads will be placed in public facilities such as community service centers, public health centers and family centers. In rural, farming and fishing areas, they will also be supplied to locations such as village halls to improve accessibility for residents. The ministry plans to conduct the program with a budget of about 3 billion won funded by the central gove

- Aging baseball stadium in Jamsil to be replaced with 30,000-seat dome by 2032 (2026-03-11 05:57)

The Seoul city government said Wednesday it plans to replace its decades-old baseball stadium in the southeastern district of Jamsil with a 30,000-seat dome arena by 2032 in a major redevelopment plan. The 25,000-seat Jamsil Baseball Stadium, home to the Doosan Bears and LG Twins of the Korea Baseball Organization, will close for the construction of the new stadium, which is planned to be the largest of its kind in the country, according to the city government. The construction will take place as part of a 3.3 trillion-won ($2.25 billion) project to redevelop the Seoul Sports Complex site — built for the 1986 Asian Games and 1988 Summer Olympics, and home to the baseball stadium. The city said it recently wrapped up negotiations over the project with its preferred bidder, a consortium led by Hanwha Corporation E&C Division, after 160 rounds of talks over four years. The project, which will be entirely funded by the private sector, includes plans to build an exhibition center, a five-star hotel and other commercial facilities at the 350,000-square-meter site. As construction takes place

The deterrence posture against North Korea will not be hindered regardless of a potential shift of military assets owned by the U.S. military stationed in South Korea, a senior official at Cheong Wa Dae said Wednesday, amid media reports that the U.S. Forces Korea (USFK) has shipped out some of its air defense assets from the Korean Peninsula. "Given our level of military capability, defense spending, defense industry capacity and the high morale of our troops, there is no problem with deterrence against North Korea regardless of whether some USFK assets are relocated overseas," the official said. The official, however, declined to comment on media reports that parts of a Terminal High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) system and other air defense units owned by the USFK were moved from South Korea amid a raging war in the Middle East. "It is not appropriate for our government to comment on military operations between Korea and the U.S.," the official said. The official said South Korea and the U.S. have remained in close coordination to maintain a robust combined defense posture. "Korea and

- Appeal trial begins for ex-PM Han over insurrection charges (2026-03-11 05:57)

An appellate trial for former Prime Minister Han Duck-soo began Wednesday on charges that he played a key role in an insurrection by abetting former President Yoon Suk Yeol's 2024 imposition of martial law. The first hearing opened at the Seoul High Court after both Han and special counsel Cho Eun-suk's team appealed a 23-year prison sentence handed down by a district court in January. Han was found guilty of taking part in an insurrection by proposing that Yoon convene a Cabinet meeting before declaring martial law on Dec. 3, 2024. He was also convicted of signing a revised proclamation after the decree was lifted six hours later, in a bid to give it a veneer of legitimacy, and separately lying under oath at the Constitutional Court. With the ruling, the former prime minister was placed in custody at the same detention center in Uiwang, south of Seoul, where Yoon has been held since last July. The morning portion of Wednesday's hearing will be broadcast using court equipment at the request of the special counsel team, the court said, adding it will review whether to allow broadcasting of

- Investigators again raid Shincheonji sect over alleged collusion with politics (2026-03-11 05:57)

A joint prosecution-police team investigating suspected collusion between politics and religion again raided the Shincheonji Church of Jesus, a nonmainstream religious sect, on Wednesday as part of a probe into its alleged ties to the main opposition People Power Party (PPP). Prosecutors and investigators from the team searched Shincheonji's headquarters in Gwacheon, just south of Seoul, in the morning to seize additional data related to suspicions of church members' collective affiliation with the PPP years ago. They already searched the Gwacheon headquarters and the residence of the church's founder, Lee Man-hee, in January. Lee and others are suspected of forcing church followers to join the PPP with the aim of influencing the results of the party's presidential primary in 2021 and the party's candidate nominations for the 2024 general elections.

- Police refer lawmaker, ex-councilor at center of bribery scandal to prosecution (2026-03-11 05:57)

Police on Wednesday referred an independent lawmaker and a former Seoul city councilor to the prosecution following their arrest last week over bribery allegations linked to the 2022 local elections. Rep. Kang Sun-woo, formerly of the ruling Democratic Party of Korea (DPK), and Kim Kyung were sent to the prosecution on charges of violating political funds and anti-graft laws and others, according to the public crimes division of the Seoul Metropolitan Police Agency. Kim is accused of giving Kang a shopping bag containing 100 million won ($67,800) in cash in January 2022 ahead of the elections in June that year, allegedly in exchange for a DPK nomination for a councilor seat in the capital. The lawmaker served on the party's candidate nomination committee for the capital at the time. Kim ultimately received the nomination and won the election. Kang has claimed that she did not know the shopping bag contained cash, adding that she returned the money after later discovering it. Police believe Kang had met Kim with advance knowledge of the cash and spent it on a rental deposit. A court issued

Calls are growing to end direct contact animal experiences at zoos across Korea, as new findings show many facilities continue to defy a legal ban on riding, touching and feeding animals more than two years after it took effect. Animal welfare advocates and lawmakers said the gap between the law and practice is exposing animals to chronic stress and sending the wrong message to children about wildlife. At a National Assembly forum Monday, Animal Welfare Research Institute AWARE and the Animal Welfare Parliamentary Forum presented findings from an eight-month survey of 21 registered or licensed zoos and nine unlicensed facilities across the country. The study reviewed compliance with the revised Act on the Management of Zoos and Aquariums, which since late 2023 has prohibited zoos from allowing visitors to climb on, touch or feed animals for entertainment purposes. Despite the legal shift, 20 out of 21 surveyed zoos were still selling feed for animal encounters, and 15 imposed no limits on purchase frequency or feeding volume. In 18 facilities, visitors could touch animals at any time

- All-Korean band to perform Irish music for St. Patrick's Day Festival (2026-03-10 23:57)

One of the music acts set to perform at the St. Patrick's Day Festival this Saturday is the somewhat mysteriously named Gan Ainm. Gaelic for "without name," the band features four talented Korean musicians. This includes banjo player Darren Choi, fiddler Koh Hae-young, concertinist Koh Seulki and vocalist and guitarist Zee. This will be Gan Ainm's first appearance at the annual festival, organized by the Irish Association of Korea. When Choi, a Korean national whose real name is Jong-wook, joined the band in 2013, it wasn't all Koreans. He entered the picture when he attended a traditional music session and met Patricia Jones, the band's button accordion player. After the departure of some of the original members, it was down to him, Jones and Hae-young on fiddle. They went busking almost every weekend, and occasionally played other shows, including for charities. It was around this time when the band settled on Gan Ainm as the name, as they didn't want to spend too much more time thinking it over. "After much deliberation, Patricia, feeling a bit lazy about the whole process, simply sugg

Korea's top general on Tuesday visited key Marine Corps and Navy units to inspect their participation in an ongoing major exercise with U.S. troops, his office said. Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) Chairman Gen. Jin Yong-sung visited the Combined Marine Component Command and the Northwest Islands Defense Command and urged troops to verify wartime plans during the Freedom Shield exercise as Korea seeks to take back wartime operational control (OPCON) from the United States, according to the JCS. Jin also visited the Navy's 2nd Fleet headquartered in Pyeongtaek, about 60 kilometers south of Seoul, where he said the joint exercise serves as an opportunity for the allies to prove their capabilities, the JCS said. The allies' annual springtime exercise began its 11-day run on Monday, with this year's edition focusing on assessing conditions to achieve the transfer of wartime operational control from Washington to Seoul. Korea has been seeking a "conditions-based" transfer of wartime OPCON from the U.S. within President Lee Jae Myung's five-year term that ends in 2030.

More than half of foreign workers on so-called "professional" visas in Korea — holders of E-1 to E-7 work permits — now earn over 3 million won ($2,000) a month, according to new data released Tuesday. A survey published by the Ministry of Data and Statistics shows that among professional workers — including professors (E 1), foreign language teachers (E 2), researchers (E 3), tech experts (E-4), licensed professionals (E 5), artists and performers (E 6) and specific activity workers (E 7) — more than half reported a monthly income of at least 3 million won. Across all skilled foreign employees in the country, 50.2 percent earned between 2 million and 3 million won a month, while 36.9 percent took home more than 3 million won. However, among "non-professional" workers such as E-9 visa holders, 68.9 percent were concentrated in the 2 million to under 3 million won range. The survey also examined working hours. Among foreign workers overall, 58.1 percent said they worked between 40 and 50 hours per week. Another 17.8 percent worked between 50 and 60 hours, and

Convicted online sexual predator Cho Ju-bin faced intense public backlash after using an outside proxy to boast about receiving a prison award online, prompting the hosting platform to permanently suspend his account. The 31-year-old is currently serving a 47-year, four-month sentence for masterminding the notorious "Baksabang" Telegram sex blackmail ring. Cho had a post titled "About award acceptance" uploaded by proxy on his Tistory blog on Feb. 20. He attached a photo of an "Intensive Character Education Excellence Award" issued by the Gyeongbuk Correctional Institution where he is held. Displaying a lack of remorse, Cho wrote that he had told his family to "stick it on the house refrigerator for a bit." He justified the post by calling the certificate a "legitimate award" that included a prize of cup noodles. "An award is the fruit of my labor," Cho wrote. He further compared his situation to that of a struggling creative. "A solitary artist can use an award from a competition as a lantern to keep moving toward their dream," Cho wrote. "It is a treasure map. It is also a treasure that Subcontracted workers represented by unions across various industries are stepping up demands for direct talks with parent companies after Korea's so-called "yellow envelope law" came into force Tuesday, with labor leaders preparing strikes against firms that refuse to negotiate. Amendments to Articles 2 and 3 of the Trade Union and Labor Relations Adjustment Act took effect, expanding the legal definition of an employer to include firms that exercise significant control over working conditions, even without a direct employment contract with subcontracted workers. The Korean Confederation of Trade Unions (KCTU), a powerful umbrella labor organization with more than 1 million members, expects a major wave of bargaining demands from these workers in the coming weeks. The KCTU and its partner unions have begun sending bargaining notices to companies that oversee subcontracted work on behalf of nearly 140,000 subcontracted workers, with plans to present the overall scale of the campaign at a press briefing later this month. "In line with the purpose of the law, the real employer mus

The last remaining resident of South Korea's easternmost islets of Dokdo has died, leaving the outcroppings without a registered dweller, officials said Tuesday. Kim Shin-yeol, who along with her husband, Kim Sung-do, had lived on Dokdo since the late 1960s, died March 2 at age 88, according to the Ulleung county government. Her husband died earlier in October 2018 at the age of 79. The couple made a living from fishing and became symbols of South Korea's control of the islets, which Japan has consistently laid claim to. During elections, they voted by absentee ballot. Kim Shin-yeol had largely been away from Dokdo since a typhoon damaged her house in 2020. As her health deteriorated, she mostly stayed with her daughter until her death. Officers of the Dokdo Security Police and county employees have been stationed on the islets but none are registered residents. A county official said the local government will not take immediate steps to fill the vacuum out of respect for the bereaved family but will consult with the North Gyeongsang provincial government in the future regarding the next

President Lee Jae Myung on Tuesday urged large corporations and small and medium enterprises (SMEs) to work more closely together to sustain the Korean economy and deliver broader growth, describing such collaboration as a “smart survival strategy” for businesses. Lee made the remarks while presiding over a meeting with business leaders at Cheong Wa Dae, the presidential office. The gathering brought together representatives from 10 major corporations — including Hanwha Ocean, Samsung Electronics, SK SUPEX Council and Hyundai Motor — along with 10 SMEs that partner with them. The event aimed to promote mutually beneficial cooperation between large companies and smaller firms. “Cooperation between large corporations and SMEs is not charity but an investment. Put more bluntly, it could even be a survival strategy,” Lee said at the meeting. Lee underscored that cooperation should extend beyond corporate partners, saying that regional youth, small-business owners and investors can also become long-term sources of corporate competitiveness. He noted that companies increasingly fa

The government will establish the presidential "Committee of Light" to honor the dedication and spirit of people who contributed to protecting the Constitution and democracy during the Dec. 3, 2024, martial law, the interior ministry said Tuesday. The Cabinet meeting approved a bill earlier in the day on the establishment and operation of the Committee of Light, the ministry said. It will consist of no more than 35 members, including experts in the fields of the Constitution and democracy. The panel will establish basic directions for the spread of Korean-style citizen participation democracy, and issue and award the "certificate of light" to people who contributed to the protection of democracy during the martial law imposition. The government plans to establish the criteria on the issuance of the certificate after deliberation by the committee. The committee will also pursue projects to inherit the spirit of democracy, such as collecting opinions on whether to designate a national commemorative day related to the "revolution of light," which refers to the citizen-led pro-democracy move

- Concrete mound at Muan airport built to save construction costs: audit (2026-03-10 11:57)

A concrete mound blamed for the deadly 2024 plane crash at Muan International Airport was found to have been built in order to save construction costs, the state auditor said Tuesday. The mound was raised near the end of the runway at the airport some 290 kilometers south of Seoul to support a localizer, which sends signals to help aircraft find the middle of the runway.

On Dec. 29, 2024, a Jeju Air jet from Bangkok crashed into the structure after making a bellylanding, killing 179 passengers and crew members on board. According to the Board of Audit and Inspection (BAI), which inspected aviation safety measures and related maintenance, personnel and control, the terrain on which the runway and the adjacent Runway End Safety Area were built was sloping. In order to save construction costs from reshaping the terrain, a concrete mound was built to raise the localizer above the runway, the BAI said. The auditor also found that the Korea Airports (KAC) demanded a review of the mound's construction in 2007 after it was approved by the land ministry in 2003 without a vulnerability assessment.

- US moving parts of THAAD anti-missile system from S. Korea to Middle East: report (2026-03-10 11:57)

The United States has been moving parts of its Terminal High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) anti-missile system from South Korea to the Middle East, the Washington Post reported, citing two officials. The reported movement of parts of a THAAD missile defense system comes amid media reports that the U.S. military stationed in South Korea has shipped out some of its military assets amid an intensifying war in the Middle East. "The Pentagon is moving parts of a Terminal High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) system from South Korea to the Middle East," the report said. The THAAD batteries, which smash enemy missiles during their final phase of flight, have been deployed in South Korea to better cope with North Korea's missile threats. Earlier in the day, President Lee Jae Myung told a Cabinet meeting that a potential relocation of military assets owned by U.S. Forces Korea will not affect the deterrence posture against North Korea.

- PPP's break with Yoon sparks conservative rift ahead of local elections (2026-03-10 11:57)

The main opposition People Power Party's (PPP) decision to formally distance itself from former President Yoon Suk Yeol is exposing deep divisions within Korea's conservative bloc as the country approaches the June 3 local elections. The party adopted a resolution Monday rejecting calls for Yoon's political comeback, marking its clearest attempt yet to separate itself from the so-called "Yoon Again" movement that has gained traction among some conservative supporters following the former president's conviction over his Dec. 3, 2024, martial law declaration. Political observers say the move reflects growing concerns within the party about its electoral prospects, particularly in the Seoul metropolitan area, where public sentiment toward conservatives has deteriorated sharply. At an emergency meeting of lawmakers, the PPP apologized for the turmoil caused by Yoon's martial law declaration and said that it opposes "all claims calling for the former president's political return." The resolution was issued in the name of all PPP lawmakers. Seoul Mayor Oh Se-hoon welcomed the

- Busan launches infectious disease testing service for foreign residents (2026-03-10 11:57)

Busan is rolling out an infectious disease testing program for foreign residents through a pilot program set to launch this month, bringing preventive on-site testing to centers serving foreign residents across the city. The Sunday infectious disease testing services reflect a broader push by the southeastern port city to expand health care access for foreign residents who face language barriers and struggle to find time on weekdays, as the city's foreign population rises. Busan Metropolitan City said Tuesday the program will offer foreign residents testing for diseases including Hansen's disease, tuberculosis, HIV/AIDS, sexually transmitted infections, parasitic infections and hepatitis B and C. It aims to detect infections early and provide follow-up care for those who test positive. "While the city's Korean population declines, the number of foreign residents in Busan continues to rise," an official at Busan's infectious disease control division told The Korea Times, emphasizing the rising importance of early detection of major infectious diseases among foreign residents

- S. Korea regrets transfer of USFK air defense assets to Middle East, Lee says (2026-03-10 11:57)

The Korean government has expressed its opposition to the transfer of some U.S. Forces Korea (USFK) air defense weapons to the Middle East, President Lee Jae Myung said Tuesday, but stressed that the move will not weaken the country's deterrence against North Korea. Speaking at the beginning of a Cabinet meeting in Cheong Wa Dae, Lee addressed the growing debate over reports that some U.S. air defense batteries stationed in Korea have been transferred abroad. "We have expressed opposition to USFK transferring some air defense weapons according to its own military needs, but it is also the reality that we cannot fully enforce our position," the president said. Lee emphasized that the transfer will not significantly affect Korea's ability to deter any potential aggression from North Korea. "If you ask whether this creates serious obstacles for our deterrence strategy against North Korea, I can say with certainty that it does not," he said. He noted that South Korea's defense spending ranks among the highest in the world, adding that some estimates place the country's annual

Korea University pledged to expand the university's role in addressing the climate crisis and restoring ecosystems during a "Nature Positive" declaration ceremony at its Sejong campus last Thursday. A Korea University official said the event aimed to extend the university's social responsibility beyond carbon reduction to broader environmental restoration initiatives. Korea University Kim Dong-one said during his welcome address that universities must go beyond their traditional role as institutions of knowledge and act as a community, taking practical steps to address the climate crisis. "Universities must now lead efforts to solve the climate crisis that threatens the survival of humanity," Kim said. "Korea University will pioneer a 'Nature Positive' path that contributes not only to carbon neutrality but also to the recovery and enhancement of nature, leaving a healthy planet and a sustainable campus for future generations." Former United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon also delivered congratulatory remarks via video, expressing strong support for the initiative

- 'Lee' or 'Yi?' Korean court rejects passport surname spelling change (2026-03-10 05:57)

A Korean court ruled that passport holders cannot change the Romanized spelling of their surname solely based on personal preferences if there is no practical inconvenience in daily life. According to legal sources on Monday, the Seoul Administrative Court ruled against the 36-year-old plaintiff surnamed Lee in a lawsuit filed against the foreign minister to overturn the government's refusal to change the spelling of his passport surname from "Lee" to "Yi." Lee filed a suit after his request to change the Romanized spelling of his surname on his passport was rejected. He argued that he had long used the spelling "Yi" since childhood, including in financial transactions, English ability tests and company ID cards, and that his passport spelling should reflect the same spelling. The plaintiff also claimed that when he applied for the passport, he spelled his surname "Yi," but a government official changed it to "Lee" before issuing the document. He said he requested his name to be spelled "Yi" when he applied for the passport a second time, but was told the change

- DPK, gov't mull buying over 6 mln barrels of crude oil from foreign refiners in S. Korea (2026-03-10 05:57)

The ruling Democratic Party of Korea (DPK) and the government are considering exercising priority purchase rights to secure over 6 million barrels of crude oil from foreign refiners stored in South Korea, officials said Tuesday, amid the widening conflict in the Middle East. DPK lawmakers and government officials reviewed the plan during an inaugural meeting of a task force launched earlier in the day to assess the economic impact from heightened tensions in the region and discuss response measures. "South Korea can exercise priority purchase rights over crude oil jointly stockpiled by foreign companies in the country at market prices," Rep. Oh Gi-hyoung said during a briefing. The plan will allow Seoul to secure 6.86 million barrels of crude oil owned by foreign refiners that are stored at domestic facilities. The officials also discussed ways to diversify imports of crude oil and liquefied natural gas to regions beyond the Middle East, while exploring ways to supply crude oil via alternative routes without passing through the Strait of Hormuz, which has effectively been shut down due to

Former President Yoon Suk Yeol on Tuesday refused to meet with representatives of a special investigation committee on the 2022 crowd crush who visited the Seoul Detention Center to persuade him to attend a hearing. The National Commission for the Investigation of the October 29 Itaewon Disaster is scheduled to hold the hearing Thursday and Friday to uncover the truth behind the crowd accident that killed 159 people in the central Seoul district in October 2022, when Yoon was serving as president. Wee Eun-jin, standing commissioner of the commission, told reporters that she was unable to meet with Yoon because of his refusal, and he said through his lawyers that it would be difficult to attend the hearing due to trial preparations. Wee said she instead met with the head of the detention center and requested his cooperation in having Yoon attend the hearing Friday morning. Yoon has been in custody while standing trial over his failed bid to impose martial law in December 2024 and other charges. Wee said she still believes Yoon's detailed explanation of what happened the day of the disaster

- S. Korea providing supplies to its stranded vessel in Strait of Hormuz: official (2026-03-10 05:57)

South Korea is in the process of providing supplies to one of its ships stranded in the Strait of Hormuz amid the conflict in the Middle East, a foreign ministry official said Tuesday. The vessel is among some 20 ships stranded in the key waterway where roughly 20 percent of global oil and gas pass through. The shipping channel has effectively been shut down as the war between U.S.-Israeli forces and Iran intensified. About 180 South Korean seafarers are currently aboard the 20 vessels, according to the ministry. While most of the ships have enough supplies to last several weeks, one ship needs additional supplies, mainly food and other necessities, a ministry official said. "A situation has arisen requiring the vessel to enter port and receive supplies, and we are working with the host country to ensure it can dock without difficulties," he said. The official said consultations with relevant countries in the region, excluding Iran, are under way regarding the provisions, but declined to give further details citing safety concerns and diplomatic reasons. The Strait of Hormuz is located betw

- Assembly speaker urges rival parties to form special committee on constitutional revision (2026-03-10 05:57)

National Assembly Speaker Woo Won-shik on Tuesday called on rival parties to form a special committee to ensure that a national referendum to revise the Constitution is held along with the upcoming local elections. Woo made the call during a press conference at the National Assembly, stressing that a bill to revise the Constitution must be proposed by April 7 for a national referendum to be held on the day of the June 3 elections. "If we miss this timing, it is uncertain when the next opportunity will come," Woo said, urging the ruling and opposition parties to create the committee before next Tuesday. Woo added that the revision is aimed at establishing institutional safeguards to prevent illegal declarations of martial law, referring to former President Yoon Suk Yeol's short-lived martial law declaration in December 2024. Under the Constitution, a constitutional amendment bill should be put on public notice for at least 20 days and put to a vote during a parliamentary plenary session within 60 days of the public notification. The bill can be passed with the approval from at least two th

As artificial intelligence (AI) reshapes how universities teach and learn, Chungnam National University is setting its sights on becoming a leader in AI-driven education in Korea. University President Kim Jeong-kyoum said the central question for higher education institutions is how they understand and approach artificial intelligence, urging them to embrace the sweeping changes the technology is expected to bring. "AI will undoubtedly bring significant changes across industries and in our daily lives," Kim told The Korea Times in a recent interview.

"Universities need to approach this shift with an open mindset and be ready to accept it. I want Chungnam National University to become a university that uses AI better than anyone else." While acknowledging that the term "AI-leading university" has become something of a cliche, Kim said the university's real focus is on integrating AI meaningfully into education. "We want to teach students how to use AI effectively in practice," he said, adding that the university is considering incorporating AI-related elements into more

- Number of foreign residents in Korea nears 1.7 mil. in 2025 (2026-03-10 05:57)

The number of foreign nationals residing in Korea approached 1.7 million as of May last year, government data showed Tuesday. The total number came to 1.69 million, up 8.4 percent from a year earlier, according to data released by the Ministry of Data and Statistics. The figure refers to foreigners aged 15 and older who have resided in the country for more than 91 days. By category, Koreans with foreign nationalities accounted for the largest share at 24.2 percent, followed by non-professional employment visa holders at 19 percent, the data showed. International students accounted for 14 percent and permanent residents at 9.6 percent. Among foreign nationals, ethnic Koreans with Chinese nationality accounted for 29.9 percent of the total, followed by those from Vietnam with 16 percent, the data showed. The data also showed that 65.5 percent of foreign nationals had jobs. Among those employed, 10.8 percent of foreign workers said they were seeking new jobs, with most citing low income as the main reason. About 32 percent of foreign nationals reported earning a monthly income between 2 milli

- Indians in Korea celebrate spring's colorful Holi Hungama festival in Seoul (2026-03-09 23:57)

Spring arrives this year in an explosion of colors with Holi Hungama, a major Hindu festival celebrated mainly in India and Nepal and by diaspora communities worldwide. Participants throw colored water and powder at each other in a celebration symbolizing the victory of good over evil, the arrival of spring and the celebration of love, unity and renewal. For anyone in Korea interested in taking part in this high-energy festival, the Indian community here is organizing its own Holi Hungama event. Organizers highlighted that Holi celebrations in Korea began informally within the Indian community in the early 2000s. Over time, through the structured efforts of Indians in Korea (IIK), a registered nonprofit organization and community chamber established in 2002, the festival has evolved into a well-organized multicultural event in Seoul and other cities. IIK President Nagendra Kumar Kaushik, a professor at Kwangwoon University, told The Korea Times about the festival's origins. "Holi has deep roots in Indian mythology," he explained. "One of its most significant origins is linked to th

- Japan's Melt-Banana returns to Korea after 17 years (2026-03-09 23:57)

The legendary Japanese noise rock band Melt-Banana is finally coming back to Korea for the third time, 17 years after their last show. The band had its first show here in January 2005, and returned for a second show in August 2009. "This time will be our third visit," said Yako, the duo's lead vocalist. "I clearly remember how cold it was the first time we went, and I remember that everything we ate tasted incredibly good." "The second time, we also visited a recording studio in Korea, and we had a bit more time to relax," said Agata, the other half of the duo. "We went to a building that had a lot of musical instrument shops, and I ended up making a bit of an impulse purchase. Both stays were really enjoyable." Finally, after years of scheduling conflicts and the pandemic, Melt-Banana is ready to return to Seoul. Melt-Banana's origins date back to 1991, when Yako started it with the name Mizu. Soon she recruited Agata, and in 1992 the band name changed to Melt-Banana. "There isn't really a deep meaning behind it," Yako said. "Maybe at the time I just liked the combination of the word 'm

- Infanticide conviction exposes vacuum in Korea's abortion law (2026-03-09 17:57)

A murder conviction in a case involving an infant who died immediately after birth during what is called a late-term abortion procedure has cast fresh light on the legal void surrounding abortion in Korea. This comes nearly seven years after the Constitutional Court of Korea struck down the country's ban, as the issue remains unresolved amid a prolonged political stalemate. Last week, the Seoul Central District Court sentenced the director of an obstetrics clinic in Incheon, identified by the surname Yoon, to six years in prison for murder in a case widely referred to as the "36-week abortion case," along with a fine of 1.5 million won ($1,000). Judges also ordered the forfeiture of 1.15 billion won in proceeds that prosecutors said the director had earned over the years by performing illegal abortions on hundreds of patients. The operating surgeon, identified only by his surname Shim, was sentenced to four years in prison, while the mother, surnamed Kwon, received a three-year sentence suspended for five years after the court found her guilty as an accomplice to murder. The jud

- PPP adopts resolution opposing ex-President Yoon's political comeback (2026-03-09 11:57)

The main opposition People Power Party on Monday apologized for the 2024 martial law declaration by then President Yoon Suk Yeol and pledged to sever ties with him amid an ongoing internal feud ahead of the June 3 local elections. The announcement came in a resolution issued in the name of all party lawmakers, as the party grapples with falling public support after Yoon's martial law attempt and internal divisions over its political direction and ties with the former president. Some party members have called for a clear break from Yoon, while others back the so-called Yoon Again movement. "We once again sincerely apologize to the public for the great confusion and disappointment caused by the wrongful declaration of the Dec. 3 martial law," the resolution read. "We clearly oppose any calls for Yoon's political comeback." The resolution was read by floor leader Rep. Song Eon-seog, while all lawmakers attending the meeting, including party leader Jang Dong-hyeok, stood in support.

- Top presidential aide voices hope 'yellow envelope act' to promote labor-management dialogue (2026-03-09 11:57)

President Lee Jae Myung's chief of staff said Monday the revised labor law aimed at broadening workers' bargaining rights should serve as a starting point for promoting dialogue and co-prosperity between labor and management. Kang Hoon-sik made the remark during a meeting with senior presidential aides on the eve of the implementation of the so-called yellow envelope act, which is designed to guarantee bargaining rights for indirectly employed and subcontracted workers and prohibit companies from filing damage claims against unionized workers. "The act should become a new starting point for co-prosperity between workers and management," Kang said. The pro-labor bill will take effect after passing on a third attempt, following two vetoes by former President Yoon Suk Yeol, who argued it would make it difficult for companies to hold unions accountable for illegal strikes and could hamper business activities. "It will serve as an important turning point that removes the shackles of retaliatory damage claims threatening workers' right to live and opens the door to dialogue," Kang said. He call

The U.S. Army based in South Korea began taking part in an annual springtime military exercise with the ally's forces Monday with a focus on enhancing readiness and modernizing the South Korea-U.S. alliance, the Eighth Army said. The U.S. Eighth Army has joined the Freedom Shield (FS) exercise, which kicked off earlier in the day and will run until March 19, as the ground component for U.S. Forces Korea (USFK) and the Combined Forces Command, according to U.S. military officials. During the joint drills, the allies will train under complex scenarios, including a combined live-fire air assault exercise, a combined wet gap crossing and a joint medical evacuation exercise, the Eighth Army said in a statement. All of the Eighth Army's major subordinate commands, including the 2nd Infantry Division, the 19th Expeditionary Sustainment Command and the 65th Medical Brigade, will participate in the FS exercise. The U.S. 11th Airborne Division deployed from Alaska will be engaged in a combined airborne operation in which paratroopers will perform a strategic airborne insertion into the Korean thea

The industry ministry said Monday it will create a team dedicated to managing South Korea's investment projects in the United States as part of a trade deal between the two countries, vowing to develop projects that benefit Korean companies. The Ministry of Trade, Industry and Resources unveiled the plan in a policy briefing to the National Assembly as the rival parties have agreed to pass a special bill to support Seoul's investment in U.S. through the parliament this week. The bill was designed to support the implementation of Seoul's $350 billion investment pledge to the U.S. made under its trade deal with Washington finalized late last year in return for tariff cuts. The envisioned investment will comprise $150 billion for shipbuilding cooperation and $200 billion for projects in strategic sectors. The ministry said the team will be in charge of identifying potential investment projects with "commercial rationality," where the participation of Korean companies and investment recovery is assured. For example, for shipbuilding cooperation, the team plans to pursue low-risk projects, inc

- Police crack down on software-enabled scalping ahead of BTS concert (2026-03-09 11:57)

Police have opened an investigation into the alleged use of automated “macro” programs and ticket scams ahead of BTS’ s comeback concert at Gwanghwamun Square on March 21. The city-sponsored performance, which is expected to attract more than 200,000 fans from across Korea and overseas, requires advance reservations to secure seats, resulting in a surge in black market trading and fraud cases. Speaking to reporters Monday, Park Jeong-bo, chief of the Seoul Metropolitan Police Agency, said officers are currently investigating three criminal cases tied to ticket sales for the event, after ticketing operator Nol Universe filed a complaint over suspected “macro driven” bulk purchases. Macros are automated scripts that refresh pages and enter login and payment details at high speed, allowing users to snap up tickets far faster than ordinary buyers. Using macros or other tools to hoard tickets for resale at higher prices is illegal in Korea. Park urged fans not to trust brokers who claim they can secure tickets using macros or offer “proxy ticketing” services. He warned that tho

- Mount Gwanak becomes Seoul's new viral spring hiking spot (2026-03-09 11:57)

Mount Gwanak, a granite peak that forms the southern ridgeline of Seoul, has quietly watched over the city for centuries. This spring, it is transforming into something else entirely: a viral “energy hotspot” where hikers line up for over an hour at the summit marker, hoping to soak up good fortune along with the skyline views. On recent weekends, the narrow path to Yeonjudae, the cliff-top hermitage near the 632-meter summit, has turned into a human queue that can stretch more than 100 meters. Many in their 20s and 30s say they are not just there for the workout. Posing for “proof shots,” visitors post captions that read like whispered prayers: “Let this year go well,” “Please let me get a job,” “Let me come back here with good news.” Among them are Lee and Park, Seoul residents who climbed Mount Gwanak with their friends recently. “In the past I would have gone to a fortune teller, but now I’ d rather hike, clear my head and ask the mountain for help,” said Lee, a 31-year-old job seeker who wrote her employment wish in the caption of a summit selfie she posted o

The bereaved families of the victims of the Jeju Air plane crash in late 2024 on Monday protested the recent discovery of additional remains and belongings of the victims in the wreckage. They held a news conference in front of Cheong Wa Dae, the presidential office and residential compound in central Seoul, to condemn the "sloppy" disaster recovery process and demand an investigation into the truth and punishment for those responsible. A Jeju Air jet from Bangkok erupted into flames on Dec. 29, 2024, after crashing into the localizer's concrete mound when it made an emergency belly landing at Muan International Airport, about 290 kilometers south of Seoul, claiming the lives of 179 passengers and crew members. Government officials and police investigators discovered nine pieces of remains presumed to belong to the crash victims during their reexamination of the wreckage on Feb. 26. Among them, one 25-centimeter-long bone has been confirmed to be the remains of a victim. "The discovery of additional remains of the victims more than one year after the disaster demonstrates the absence of

(2026-03-09 11:57)

Prosecutors on Monday released the identity and mug shots of a 20-year-old woman arrested for allegedly murdering two men with laced drinks. The mug shots of Kim So-young were made public by the Seoul Northern District Prosecutors Office after undergoing a review by a dedicated committee on such disclosures. Kim is accused of handing the drinks containing benzodiazepine, a depressant, to three men on separate occasions between last December and last month, resulting in the two deaths. One of the three men recovered after treatment. Kim has admitted to giving the drinks to the men but has said that she did not know it would lead to their deaths. Police, however, referred the case to the prosecution on murder charges after determining that Kim had intent to commit murder. Police took Kim into custody last month after one of the victims was found dead. Kim has been diagnosed as a psychopath after she met the criteria for antisocial personality disorder in a Hare Psychopathy Checklist-Revised test administered by police.

(2026-03-09 11:57)

The main opposition People Power Party (PPP) is facing growing strain ahead of the June 3 local elections after several political heavyweights opted out of the party's primary races, potentially weakening its chances against the ruling Democratic Party of Korea (DPK). According to the party's primary registration list that was finalized Sunday night, candidate sign-ups were weak across key regions, including the Seoul metropolitan area and South Chungcheong Province. Seoul Mayor Oh Se-hoon, considered one of the party's most prominent figures, opted out of the PPP's Seoul mayoral primary. His announcement, made just hours before the registration deadline, came as a surprise to many as he previously hinted he would seek a fifth term. His decision comes amid a widening rift with the PPP leadership. Oh has publicly urged PPP chairman Rep. Jang Dong-hyeok to clarify the party's political direction and distance its leadership from supporters of former President Yoon Suk Yeol and his martial law debacle, saying it would improve the party's chances in local elections. Rep. Na Kyung-won, a

- PM to attend Boao Forum in China this month (2026-03-09 11:57)

Prime Minister Kim Min-seok plans to attend the Boao Forum for Asia in China later this month, his office said Monday. Kim is scheduled to deliver a keynote speech at the annual conference slated to be held in Boao, Hainan Province, from March 24-27, the office said in a press release. This will be the prime minister's second trip overseas since he took office, following his visit to Washington in January, where he met with U.S. Vice President JD Vance. Kim is likely to use his trip to China to meet with senior Chinese officials as the two countries seek to strengthen ties following President Lee Jae Myung's state visit to Beijing in January. Also a factor in the decision to attend the forum was that former U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon currently serves as chairman of the organization, sources said.

- K-water showcases AI-powered hydro management tech at MWC 2026 (2026-03-09 11:57)

Korea Water Resources Corporation (K-water) showcased its artificial intelligence (AI)-based water management technology at MWC 2026 in Barcelona last week, highlighting its competitiveness in the sector. The initiative reflects the corporation's strategy under K-water CEO Yun Seog-dae to strengthen water management policies aimed at addressing the climate crisis while expanding overseas, as the state-run utility this year launched a global push for AI-driven water management. K-water aims to expand into the high-value AI and digital markets with three core technologies: water management digital twins that replicate dam operations in a virtual environment, supporting decision-making; AI-powered water treatment plants enabling autonomous operations through algorithm analysis; and Smart Water Network Management (SWNM), which uses Internet of Things technology to reduce leaks and stabilize pipelines. K-water's SWNM was selected as a winner at this year's Global Mobile Awards, held during MWC, marking the first time a Korean public institution has received the honor and underscoring i

- Gov't to implement price cap system for petroleum products this week (2026-03-09 11:57)

The Korean government plans to introduce a temporary price cap on petroleum products as early as this week to curb surging fuel costs triggered by escalating tensions in the Middle East, the presidential policy chief said Monday. The system will allow the government to set an upper limit on retail fuel prices for a fixed period to prevent sharp spikes. Presidential chief of staff for policy Kim Yong-beom said at a briefing that the government will work fast to complete administrative steps, including issuing a ministerial notice, so the cap could take effect within days. He said officials had discussed detailed measures to prevent abnormal pricing of petroleum products and improve price predictability in the market, adding that the Ministry of Trade, Industry and Resources will move quickly to finalize procedures needed to introduce the system. Earlier Monday, President Lee Jae Myung convened an emergency economic meeting and ordered the immediate introduction of the price cap, along with a crackdown on price manipulation, to shield the public from economic fallout linked to the Middle

- Hyundai Rotem, gov't agency set 2035 target for hypersonic missile development (2026-03-09 05:57)

Hyundai Rotem, the defense and rail subsidiary of Hyundai Motor Group, aims to mass-produce hypersonic missiles by 2035 in cooperation with the state-run Agency for Defense Development (ADD) — weapons widely regarded as a key element of modern warfare. The plan reflects South Korea's broader push to secure advanced strike capabilities as neighboring countries develop or already operate hypersonic weapons that are difficult for existing missile defense systems to intercept. With speeds faster than Mach 5, or about 6,120 kilometers per hour, hypersonic missiles are capable of striking targets worldwide within hours. Their extreme speed and maneuverability make them difficult for existing missile defense systems to intercept. The United States, Russia and China currently operate hypersonic missiles, while several other countries, including North Korea, India and France, are developing their own capabilities. According to defense industry sources, Sunday, Hyundai Rotem and ADD recently acquired a key early-stage technology for stable propulsion in hypersonic vehicles. The system allows

- Gov't to refer Nonghyup chief to police over alleged embezzlement, bribery (2026-03-09 05:57)

The government said Monday it plans to refer the chairman of NongHyup, the country's agricultural cooperative and banking group, to the police for investigation over allegations of embezzlement and bribery. The plan was announced by an interagency team, comprised of the Office for Government Policy Coordination, the agriculture ministry, the Financial Services Commission and the Financial Supervisory Service, following a special audit of NongHyup (the National Agricultural Cooperative Federation), its affiliates and member cooperatives that began Jan. 26. The team said it found various irregularities, such as possible embezzlement of public funds, preferential loan agreements and accounting fraud. Of them, the team plans to refer 14 major cases to the police for investigation, while ordering NongHyup to devise remedies or improvements for a tentative 96 additional cases. According to the findings, NongHyup Chairman Kang Ho-dong embezzled the funds of an affiliated foundation in 2024 and 2025 with the help of one of its senior officials to procure 490 million won ($327,000) worth of gifts

President Lee Jae Myung convened an emergency economic meeting Monday, ordering the immediate implementation of a maximum price system for petroleum products, along with a crackdown on price manipulation, to shield the public from turmoil in the Middle East. Warning that the regional crisis had created “extraordinary” uncertainties for the energy-dependent country, Lee also directed officials to secure alternative supply routes that bypass the Strait of Hormuz, while vowing to strictly punish any hoarding or collusion in the market. “As the situation surrounding energy supply and household economic anxiety is serious, extraordinary countermeasures commensurate with the circumstances are needed," Lee said during the meeting. "In cooperation with our strategic partner countries, we should swiftly identify alternative supply routes that do not pass through the Strait of Hormuz." He also called for strict enforcement against illegal practices in the domestic oil market, including collusion among refiners and gas stations, hoarding and speculative stockpiling. "Illegal activities su

Korea and the United States kicked off their major spring joint Freedom Shield exercise Monday amid speculation that U.S. Forces Korea's (USFK) Patriot missiles have been deployed to the Middle East as regional tensions rise. The 11-day exercise, which runs through March 19, involves about 18,000 personnel and incorporates lessons drawn from recent wars to reflect evolving and realistic threats in its operational scenarios, according to Korea's Joint Chiefs of Staff. With Seoul and Washington accelerating efforts to transfer wartime operational control to Korea, this year's drills are also expected to focus on assessing and verifying whether conditions for the transition have been met. The exercise comes amid rising indications that Patriot missile systems operated by USFK have been redeployed to the Middle East, as demand for interceptor missiles and air defense systems grows following the Feb. 28 U.S.-Israeli strikes on Iran. Several U.S. military transport aircraft have been seen arriving at and departing from a U.S. air base in Pyeongtaek, just south of Seoul, in recent days, fueling

- Gov't to crack down on illegal foreign delivery riders (2026-03-09 05:57)

The government will initiate an intensive crackdown on foreigners who work illegally as delivery riders, the Ministry of Justice said Monday. The crackdown will be implemented for two months until April 30, and foreigners caught will face fines and forced deportation, the ministry said. Cases of illegal work in the delivery industry by foreigners residing in Korea are increasing, and illegal acts such as driving motorcycles without a license are emerging as social problems, it noted. Recent reports say that some foreign students borrow Korean names to sign up on delivery platforms. The ministry said those who lend their delivery platform accounts to foreigners will also be reported to the police and other relevant authorities. A ministry official said the government will do its best to protect the jobs of Koreans and establish the order for foreigners staying here by cracking down on those working illegally in the delivery industry.

YEONGJONGDO — More than 200 Korean nationals who had been stranded in the United Arab Emirates (UAE) due to the escalating U.S.-Iran conflict returned home Monday aboard a chartered flight. The Etihad Airways plane, carrying 203 Koreans and three family members of other nationalities, arrived at Incheon International Airport, west of Seoul, in the early morning, about 8 hours after departing from Abu Dhabi. It marked the first chartered flight organized by Seoul to bring back Korean nationals from the UAE amid the widening conflict that has disrupted air traffic in the region. The foreign ministry estimates about 1,400 Koreans remain in the UAE as short-term travelers. It expects them to gradually return home as commercial flights resume. Families embraced each other as they were reunited at the airport, with a 4-year-old shouting, "Daddy," as he ran to his father, who had been waiting for his arrival. The boy's mother, Kim Bora, who arrived back home with her son, said she was able to book the chartered flight after getting in touch with the foreign ministry the previous day. "While eva

President Lee Jae Myung on Monday urged caution in pushing ahead with reform measures to minimize potential side effects, suggesting a "surgical correction" approach where necessary. Lee reaffirmed his commitment to carrying out reform initiatives to address problems across various sectors, but stressed the need to avoid discouraging or hurting many members who are not involved in causing those problems. "Reform often requires surgical correction," Lee wrote on social media platform X. "To resolve problems, it is essential to accurately identify their root causes and clearly distinguish what is right from what is wrong." "Whether it is prosecution reform, labor and economic reform, media reform or judicial reform, that is how I believe reform should be approached," he added. Even when pursuing necessary reforms, Lee said the government should avoid indiscriminately condemning everyone or treating all as targets of reform, warning against "burning down the whole house to catch a flea." "No matter how difficult reform may be, we must never give up on it, but we must proceed with great cauti

- Seoul goes green for St. Patrick's Day Festival (2026-03-08 23:57)

It's that time of year again — the ice melts, the sun sets later and the greens come out. It's time once again for St. Patrick's Day, including the big annual festival at D-Cube City Plaza in southwestern Seoul this Saturday. Under this year's theme of "Seoul's Going Green," the plaza will be transformed into a lively showcase of Irish heritage and contemporary culture, highlighting the deep and growing tie between Ireland and Korea. "St. Patrick's Day has been a staple in Seoul for many years now, and what makes it special is the feeling of Irish hospitality and community on display for all to see," said Alan Leavy, chairman of the Irish Association of Korea (IAK), the main organizer. "It's not just for Irish people. We really want it to be open to anyone who wants to come along, take part and enjoy themselves. St. Patrick's Day is among the most widely celebrated national days in the world, and here in Seoul it's a great day out for the whole family and a chance to experience a bit of Irish culture." - Chartered plane departs from UAE to bring home 203 Koreans: ministry (2026-03-08 11:57)

A chartered plane departed from the United Arab Emirates on Sunday to bring home hundreds of Koreans stranded in the Middle Eastern country amid the escalating conflict between Iran and the United States and Israel, the foreign ministry said. An Etihad Airways chartered flight carrying 203 Koreans and their three foreign spouses departed from Abu Dhabi at 5:35 p.m., according to the ministry. The plane was expected to arrive at Incheon International Airport at around 2 a.m. Monday. Korea has been seeking to bring home some 3,000 nationals stranded in the UAE due to flight disruptions amid escalating tensions in the Middle East after U.S.-Israel strikes against Iran began in late February. Around 1,500 Koreans, including those aboard the chartered plane, have left the UAE since flights heading to and departing from the country resumed. The foreign ministry has dispatched a joint rapid response team to the UAE to assist evacuation operations. The Korean Embassy in the UAE began receiving applications early Saturday from Korean nationals wishing to board the chartered plane.

Seoul Mayor Oh Se-hoon on Sunday did not register his candidacy for reelection with the main opposition People Power Party (PPP) by the deadline, according to his aides. Oh did not register as a PPP candidate for the Seoul mayoral race in the June 3 local elections by the deadline set for 6 p.m. Sunday, as he thinks the party should prioritize severing ties with former President Yoon Suk Yeol ahead of the polls, according to his aides. Oh has been calling for PPP leadership to shift the party line to distance itself from Yoon, who is now in jail over the December 2024 martial law crisis.

Korea marked this year's International Women's Day with rallies, awards and renewed political pledges over the weekend, underscoring both the gains women have made and the persistent gender gaps in the country. Korean Women's Association United hosted the 41st Korean Women's Rally in central Seoul on Saturday, turning the Gwanghwamun area into a purple-hued sea of celebration and protest ahead of International Women's Day on Sunday. This year's Women's Movement of the Year award symbolically went to all women who advocated for gender-equal democracy during the rallies calling for the impeachment of former President Yoon Suk Yeol, with organizers rolling out a red carpet for participants to pose with bouquets and mock trophies. Women of all ages attended in the event's dress code of purple, long been used globally as a suffragette color symbolizing justice and dignity. It also became the trademark hue of Korea's feminist movement in recent years, from annual women's marches to #MeToo protests. Participants chanted, "Complete the revolution of light!" and "Gender eq

- Seoul launches crackdown on lodging violations ahead of BTS concert (2026-03-08 11:57)

City authorities in Seoul have started a crackdown on lodging facilities near Gwanghwamun ahead of K-pop group BTS' comeback concert on March 21, uncovering a string of violations including hotels operating without posting mandatory room rate information. During its special inspections carried out in central Seoul between Feb. 25 and March 4, 18 hotels and other lodging facilities had violated regulations by failing to display official room rates or business registration certificates, the Seoul Metropolitan Government said Sunday. Under the Public Health Control Act, hospitality business owners have to display their business registration certificate inside the premises and post a room rate table at the reception desk. The city's special judicial police bureau, working in cooperation with the Seoul Metropolitan Police Agency, will formally book all 18 offending establishments and conduct investigations. Depending on the findings, the violators could face up to six months in prison or fines of up to 5 million won ($3,400). City officials will also ask Jongno and Jung district offices to

The appearance of the Rising Sun flag during a World Baseball Classic (WBC) game between Korea and Japan has sparked criticism after Japanese spectators were seen displaying the controversial symbol at Tokyo Dome. The flag, widely associated with the Imperial Japanese Army and Navy, is viewed by many throughout Asia as a symbol of the country's militaristic colonial past, including its 35-year rule over Korea. The incident occurred during the 2026 WBC match played Saturday. Seo Kyoung-duk, a professor at Sungshin Women's University, said he sent a protest email to the tournament's organizers after reports showed several Japanese fans holding and waving the controversial flags before entering the stadium. "Some Japanese fans were openly displaying the Rising Sun flag and cheering before entering Tokyo Dome," Seo wrote on social media Saturday, citing footage reported by broadcaster JTBC. "The Rising Sun flag is a symbol of Japan's militarism and imperialism," he said. "Using it while cheering denies the history of Japan's past wars of aggression and reminds many Asians

- Korea to allow Iranians to overstay visas until conflict eases (2026-03-08 11:57)

Korea will allow Iranians to remain here beyond their visa limits on humanitarian grounds, as the U.S.-Israeli war on Iran intensifies in the Middle East. In response to inquiries from The Korea Times regarding Iranian nationals in Korea, the Ministry of Justice said those whose visas cannot be extended under ordinary rules will be permitted to stay until war-related risks are deemed to have subsided enough to allow safe travel. As of January, 2,133 Iranian nationals were residing legally in Korea. "The Ministry of Justice plans to allow Iranians who are currently staying in Korea legally, but can no longer extend their visas or change their status, to remain here on humanitarian grounds until the situation stabilizes," a ministry official said. This measure comes as some other countries are moving to ease immigration rules or grant temporary protections to Iranians who would face heightened danger if forced to return. At least two countries — Canada and Japan — have so far announced special measures allowing Iranians to extend their stay rather than forcing them to return to a w

- Lee to preside over emergency economic meeting on Middle East tensions (2026-03-08 11:57)

President Lee Jae Myung will preside over an emergency meeting with related ministries on Monday to review the economic impact from heightened tensions in the Middle East and discuss response measures, Cheong Wa Dae said Sunday. The meeting will bring together ministers and senior officials from the finance, industry, climate and energy, budget planning and agriculture ministries, as well as the Korea Customs Service and the Fair Trade Commission, according to presidential spokesperson Kang Yu-jung. Lee is expected to review global financial markets and oil prices and assess their effect on the domestic stock market, the foreign exchange market and inflation. Lee previously reviewed the latest developments in the Middle East during an extraordinary Cabinet meeting on Thursday, following U.S.-Israeli strikes on Iran and Tehran's retaliatory attacks in the region. Korea, which relies heavily on energy imports, is particularly vulnerable to external price shocks, which often drive inflation.

- Experts see growing links between European, Asian security amid Ukraine war (2026-03-08 11:57)

Security developments in Europe and East Asia are becoming increasingly intertwined in the wake of the Russian invasion of Ukraine, experts said at the Inaugural Strategic Dialogue in Seoul last week. Participants said the war had accelerated debate over whether to view crises in different regions as part of a broader strategic environment rather than isolated regional challenges. They also pointed to growing pressure from the United States for allies to assume greater responsibility for their own defense, as well as expanding opportunities for Europe-Asia cooperation in fields such as defense and advanced technologies. The discussion took place at the Korea Military Academy, where the International Policy Studies Institute (IPSI) and Hungary's Danube Institute jointly hosted the event, titled "Changing Dynamics of Geopolitics in Europe and East Asia: Assessing Constraints and Opportunities for Cooperation." Hong Kyu-dok, president of IPSI, said the forum was intended to promote deeper exchanges between experts from Europe and Asia as geopolitical risks continue to grow. "This fo

- Airlift operations at USFK base signal possible shift of assets to Middle East (2026-03-08 11:57)

Recent U.S. military airlift activity at a major air base in South Korea has drawn attention to the possibility that air defense assets assigned to United States Forces Korea (USFK) have been redeployed to the Middle East. According to the real-time flight tracking website Flightradar24 Sunday, U.S. Air Force C-5 and C-17 transport aircraft that landed at Osan Air Base in Pyeongtaek, Gyeonggi Province, in late February departed in a series of flights earlier this month. Particular attention has focused on the C-5 Galaxy, which is larger than the C-17. At least two C-5 aircraft arrived at the base in late February and were seen departing on Feb. 28 and last Monday. Their final destinations were not listed, but flight records indicate journeys lasting more than 14 hours, raising the possibility that they continued on to the U.S. mainland or the Middle East. While C-17 aircraft routinely stop at Osan to transport U.S. troops and equipment, the arrival of the much larger C-5 aircraft is considered unusual. Reports earlier indicated that USFK had relocated some Patriot air defense systems fro

- Ruling party seeks stricter corporate penalties for customer data breaches (2026-03-08 11:57)

The Korean government and the ruling Democratic Party of Korea (DPK) are moving to advance a second revision of the country's Personal Information Protection Act that would strengthen corporate liability for large-scale data breaches. The proposed amendment is intended to enhance compensation and relief for victims of large-scale data breaches. However, industry insiders warn that the measures could impose excessive burdens on companies. Discussions at the National Assembly are focusing on amendment bills introduced by several DPK lawmakers, political sources said Sunday. The proposals share a central provision: eliminating the requirement to prove “intent or negligence” in compensation claims stemming from cases of compromised user data, a change that would broaden corporate liability. The push for stricter liability follows a series of high-profile data breaches in Korea, including a recent case involving Coupang, the country’s largest e-commerce platform. Authorities said the incident may have exposed personal information linked to a large number of user accounts, intensifying

President Lee Jae Myung will meet with senior officials from major conglomerates and small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) this week to discuss ways to promote a co-prosperity business model, Cheong Wa Dae said Monday. Lee plans to host the meeting with business and government officials on Tuesday to encourage mutually beneficial cooperation between large companies and SMEs and to share best practices, presidential spokesperson Kang Yu-jung said in a press notice. Senior executives from Samsung Electronics, Hyundai Motor, SK Group, Hanwha Ocean and Naver as well as representatives from SMEs and experts will participate, alongside Finance Minister Koo Yoon-cheol, SME Minister Han Sung-sook and senior presidential aides, Kang said. Participants will introduce examples of cooperation between large corporations and smaller firms and discuss ways to build a co-prosperity business ecosystem, Kang said.

- Bureaucratic hurdles undermine Korea’s ambitions to attract int’l students (2026-03-08 11:57)

Korea’s drive to attract and retain international students is hitting a roadblock at immigration offices, a place many students now view as a source of fear rather than support. Even as universities expand recruitment and the government pledges to ease visa rules, inconsistent administrative practices and constantly shifting guidelines at immigration offices are emerging as major hurdles to the country’s study-to-settlement pathway for foreign students. All students interviewed by The Korea Times for this article requested that their names not be used. One Iraqi student said she nearly lost an internship due to a delayed decision on her part-time work permission. She received an internship offer from a tech company building apps for foreign communities in Korea and was scheduled to begin work on Jan. 5. She applied for part-time work authorization on Dec. 20 last year, and received a text message six days later stating the application had been “accepted by an appropriate department.” There was no further notice for about a month, until the immigration office informed her on Jan. 2

- Tablets replace heavy textbooks at universities as e-book sales quadruple (2026-03-08 05:57)

University students in Korea are increasingly swapping heavy printed textbooks for tablets and laptops, as e-book sales of course materials have more than quadrupled in the past four years, data showed Sunday. Kyobo Book Centre said e-books accounted 29.9 percent of its online and offline university textbook sales by value last year, up from just 7.1 percent in 2021. The share has climbed steadily — 8 percent in 2022, 15.2 percent in 2023 and 23.1 percent in 2024 — even though print still generates more than three times the sales of digital textbooks. Considering that e-books remain under 10 percent of overall book sales, the shift in the higher education textbook segment is particularly striking, the retailer noted. Behind the trend are the literal burdens of printed books. One top-selling e-textbook, “Electronic Engineering Experiment 1” from Kyungpook National University Press, runs 602 pages and weighs about 1.5 kilograms. Many students say it's no longer practical to carry several such “brick books” across sprawling campuses. Improved e-book platforms, which offer search

- Lee pledges to promote gender equality on International Women's Day (2026-03-08 05:57)

President Lee Jae Myung on Sunday pledged to advance gender equality and foster a more inclusive society, marking International Women's Day. "I will fulfill my given role and responsibility to ensure that the Republic of Korea is reborn as a gender-equal society," Lee wrote on his Facebook page, referring to Korea's official name. Lee said gender equality policies were scaled back under the previous administration, which had pledged to abolish the Ministry of Gender Equality and Family but failed, noting that his administration will work to restore and strengthen those efforts. "(The government) is reversing that trend by restoring gender equality policies to their rightful place, filling the gaps left in the past and moving step by step toward a gender-equal society," he said. Reflecting on the long journey of those who have worked to advance women's rights, Lee reviewed the remaining tasks needed to achieve gender equality and protect the rights of those who have been discriminated against or marginalized. "We will build a society where differences do not lead to discrimination and divide

- US transport aircraft spotted departing Osan Air Base amid Patriot relocation speculation (2026-03-08 05:57)

U.S. military transport aircraft have been spotted arriving at and departing from a U.S. air base in Korea over the past week, raising speculation that the U.S. Forces Korea (USFK) may be deploying some of its assets to the Middle East amid the escalating conflict involving Iran. According to the real-time flight tracking website Flightradar24, C-5 and C-17 U.S. transport aircraft have landed at Osan Air Base in Pyeongtaek, south of Seoul, since late last month and departed between Wednesday and Saturday. At least two C-5 aircraft arrived at the air base in late February and were spotted departing last Saturday and Monday, while C-17 aircraft departed between Tuesday and Saturday, with six confirmed to be heading to Anchorage, Alaska. The C-17 aircraft regularly stopped at the key U.S. base to transport U.S. assets and personnel, but the arrival of the C-5 appears to be rare. The latest move has fueled speculation that the USFK may be preparing to move Patriot missile defense systems, as it is known to have recently relocated some Patriot batteries to Osan Air Base from other U.S. bases.

The number of drug addicts receiving treatment in Korea surged 48.7 percent from 2020 to 2024, driven by a sharp increase among people in their 20s and 30s, data showed Sunday. The number of patients who received treatment stood at 828 in 2024, up from 557 in 2020, according to the data compiled by the state-run Health Insurance Review and Assessment Service (HIRA). By age group, patients aged 20-29 jumped 139.1 percent over the period to 275 in 2024, while those aged 30-39 rose 89 percent to 223, HIRA said. Male patients accounted for 606 cases in 2024, compared with 266 female patients, though the rate of increase over the period was faster among women. Meanwhile, the total cost of treatment doubled to about 1 billion won ($67,340) during the cited period, it noted.

Gender Equality Minister Won Min-kyong issued an apology to former sex workers Saturday whose rights were violated in now-defunct brothels built around American military bases, marking the government's first official apology. "As the gender minister dealing with gender equality and women's rights, I offer my sincere apologies to the victims for the state's actions that violated their human rights at the Gijichon," Won said in a message marking International Women's Day, which falls Sunday. "We will make every effort necessary to ensure that the history of human rights violations suffered by the victims is not forgotten and that they live the rest of their lives with dignity and fully restore their damaged honor," she added. The apology came more than three-and-a-half years after the Supreme Court in 2022 ordered the state to pay between 3 million and 7 million won ($2,086-$4,866) in compensation each to a total of 95 former sex workers from brothels at villages around U.S. military bases, known as "base villages" or "Gijichon" in Korean. The victims filed the suit in 2014, claiming the g

The Miari Texas Sex Worker Relocation Committee held its 69th and final regular weekly rally on March 5 in front of Seongbuk District Office, after achieving a hard-fought relocation support agreement with the redevelopment association for the Sinwolgot District 1 urban renewal project in northeastern Seoul. Miari Texas is the name given to Seoul's last remaining large-scale red-light district, which operated for nearly seven decades in the Hawolgok-dong neighborhood near Gireum Station on Seoul Metro Line 4. Now that it faces redevelopment, its evicted residents face the challenge of relocating elsewhere. Committee members, activists and citizen supporters had staged weekly rallies since November 2023 in front of the district office, demanding relocation compensation and defending their right to a livelihood. Ultimately, the agreement had to be made with the redevelopment association, as only landlords and brothel owners were legally eligible for government support. For the workers and residents of Miari Texas, largely middle-aged and elderly women, their most desperate need is stabl

(2026-03-07 05:57)

Rep. Kang Sun-woo, an independent formerly affiliated with the ruling Democratic Party of Korea (DPK), was questioned by police Saturday over bribery allegations linked to the 2022 local elections. Police said they began questioning Kang early Saturday, four days after she was arrested Tuesday following the passage of her arrest motion in a plenary vote at the National Assembly. Kang left the DPK in January to become an independent in the wake of the snowballing scandal. Kang is accused of receiving 100 million won ($68,200) in cash from former councilor Kim Kyung ahead of the 2022 elections allegedly in exchange for her support for Kim's nomination as a DPK candidate for the Seoul city council at the time. Kim ultimately was nominated and won a city council seat in the elections. Police believe Kang had met Kim with knowledge of the cash in advance and spent the money on a rental deposit. Kang has rejected accusations that she accepted the money, claiming she belatedly learned of her aide's receipt of the cash.

- Chartered plane to bring home Koreans from UAE on Sunday: ministry (2026-03-07 05:57)

A chartered plane to evacuate South Koreans from the United Arab Emirates (UAE) will take off this weekend amid escalating violence in the Middle East, the foreign ministry said Saturday. The ministry said it is arranging a 290-seat Etihad Airways chartered flight, set to depart from Abu Dhabi at noon Sunday (local time). Starting early Saturday, the South Korean Embassy in the UAE will receive applications from South Korean nationals wishing to board the plane, with priority given to critically ill patients, people with severe disabilities, pregnant women, the elderly and children. The planned departure comes as Seoul seeks to bring home some 3,000 nationals stranded in the UAE due to flight disruptions amid the escalating conflict between Iran and the United States.

The 2026 K-Culture Starter Pack is remarkably predictable: K-Pop, K-Drama, and the inevitable, “K-Han.” Mention Korea in any international setting and it is only a matter of time before someone drops the H-word with a knowing nod. It has become the ultimate shibboleth for those to prove they have done the requisite cultural homework. Korea, they will helpfully explain, is powered by this ancient and "untranslatable" melancholy, an endless reservoir of longing that supposedly animates everything

- Korean won falls against dollar amid oil price surge over supply concerns (2026-03-13 00:31)

The South Korean currency fell against the US dollar Friday as global oil prices surged amid heightened tensions in the Middle East. The won opened at 1,490.6 per dollar, down 9.4 won from the previous session. The weakness came as global oil prices spiked again overnight, hovering around $100 per barrel, after Iran's new leader, Mojtaba Khamenei, warned that the Strait of Hormuz would remain closed, raising concerns about supply disruptions and escalating tensions in the Middle East. The foreign

South Korea's Supreme Court upheld a three-year prison sentence for a YouTuber accused of blackmailing fellow creator Tzuyang, confirming a lower court ruling that found him guilty of extorting tens of millions of won by threatening to expose alleged personal scandals. The highest court on Thursday dismissed an appeal by Lee Jun-hee, better known online as Gujeok, finalizing the prison term handed down by lower courts. Lee was indicted in August 2024 on charges of extortion after prosecutors said

- Guilt trap: Opposition faces call for 'more sincerity' after martial law apology (2026-03-12 08:19)

South Korea's political arena is once again facing an "apology trap," where rival parties and factions take issue with the sincerity of an apology for political events. On Monday, the conservative opposition People Power Party adopted a resolution apologizing for former President Yoon Suk Yeol's declaration of martial law, after months of internal discord and indecision. The party's on-the-fence position on Yoon and his supporters was most notable in the actions of party chair Rep. Jang Dong-hye

- The calculus behind Pyongyang's support for Tehran (2026-03-12 06:39)

North Korea's swift backing of Iran after joint US-Israeli strikes appears to serve purposes far beyond routine diplomatic solidarity. By rallying behind Tehran, Pyongyang is signaling its intention to draw closer to Russia, Iran's key partner, through carefully calibrated messaging that keeps it at arm's length from the conflict. From the standpoint of regime security, the Kim Jong Un regime's denunciation of the strikes as a violation of sovereignty functions as preemptive political signaling

- Seoul urges US not to let Section 301 probe affect summit commitments (2026-03-12 06:38)

South Korea has called for ensuring that the US investigation into 16 economies to uncover "unfair" trade practices does not negatively affect the implementation of commitments outlined in the ROK-US Joint Fact Sheet, a Foreign Ministry official said Thursday. The remarks addressed the Office of the US Trade Representative's latest move to launch a Section 301 investigation under the 1974 Trade Act into South Korea, China, Japan and 13 other economies to examine alleged unfair trade practices

In 1984, a Korean television drama called "Apricot in the Snow" aired what can only be described as a creative betrayal of the historical record. Its subject was the Gyeyujeongnan — the 15th-century coup in which Grand Prince Suyang (later King Sejo) deposed his 12-year-old nephew Danjong, banished him to a remote mountain village and eventually had him killed. In the TV drama's telling, Suyang was something close to a reluctant hero. His victims, the loyalists who died defending the boy king, w

US cosmetics giant Estee Lauder Companies is pulling its men’s skin care brand Lab Series from South Korea’s traditional retail channels after more than three decades, shifting its focus to online and multibrand outlets, industry sources said Thursday. The brand is set to exit all domestic department stores this year — including Lotte Department Store Myeongdong by August — ending a run that began with its debut at the same retailer in 1991. The move marks a retreat for a label that once defined

- Why Korean memory giants aren't rushing to expand DRAM supply (2026-03-12 05:55)

The world suddenly cannot get enough memory chips. Artificial intelligence data centers are consuming unprecedented volumes of DRAM, pushing prices higher and squeezing supply for everything from smartphones to laptops. The two companies at the center of that boom, Samsung Electronics and SK hynix, earned more than 72.1 trillion won ($48.7 billion) in operating profit last year. And yet the shortage continues. The question seems obvious. If demand is booming and profits are soaring, why not simp

When a private English academy in South Korea abruptly terminated a 30-year-old American instructor's contract, her first thoughts were about her visa and her pay. "I remember going blank, thinking about what was going to happen to my visa, and whether I would be able to receive my severance pay," said the instructor, who asked to remain anonymous. Her concerns are shared by many foreign national teachers working in South Korea. As of 2024, 13,443 instructors were residing in the country under t

- Short-form platforms push K-pop songs to get shorter (2026-03-12 05:25)

Short-form video platforms are increasingly reshaping the structure of K-pop songs, with brief moments designed as viral hooks often determining a track's success. In the past, the overall flow and musical development of a three- or four-minute track were key factors in determining a song's success. Today, however, a roughly 15-second viral hook — the segment most likely to spread through short-form videos and dance challenges — can make or break a song's popularity. As a result, the average run

- Quiet comeback of Lee Na-young, the A-list mystique (2026-03-12 05:10)

In the Korean entertainment scene, few married couples command as much fascination, or maintain as much distance, as Lee Na-young and Won Bin. Despite their status as perennial A-listers, the two are famously selective about their work, often letting years pass between projects. While Won Bin has remained on a cinematic hiatus since his 2010 blockbuster "The Man from Nowhere," Lee recently ended her own seven-year television drought with the ENA legal drama "Honor." The series proved to be a rat

Starbucks Korea said Thursday it will introduce Seoul-themed beverages — Seoul Makgeolli Cold Brew and Seoul Sunset Omija Fizzio — at 100 stores across Seoul starting Monday. The drinks reinterpret traditional Korean elements, including the aroma of makgeolli, a traditional Korean rice wine, and the sunset over palace ponds. The rollout will begin at stores in major tourist districts such as Myeong-dong, Gwanghwamun and Gangnam, as the number of foreign visitors to Korea reached a record 18.7 mi

- Arctic sea ice among lowest on record: AFP review of US data (2026-03-12 03:55)

Arctic sea ice is headed for one of its smallest winter peaks on record, an Agence France-Presse review of US data showed Wednesday, as climate change shrinks the region's frozen cover and heightens geopolitical tensions. Formed when ocean water freezes, Arctic sea ice melts naturally in summer and reforms in winter, but the amount that returns has been declining due to human-induced planetary warming. The maximum sea ice extent in the Arctic reached nearly 14.22 million square kilometers on Mar

- [\[Sara Albrecht\] Refund tariffs the right way](#) (2026-03-11 20:30)

When the US Supreme Court ruled that the administration's tariffs were unlawful, it resolved a constitutional question. What it did not resolve is how to unwind the economic damage. Gov. JB Pritzker has called for roughly $1,700 per Illinois household — about $8.7 billion total — arguing that families effectively paid an illegal tax through higher prices and deserve direct reimbursement. It may be appealing math. But it is not how tariffs work — and it is not how refunds should work. Tariffs are

- [\[Wang Son-taek\] The hidden cost of war: Public diplomacy](#) (2026-03-11 20:30)

Military power often produces a moment of triumph. Precision strikes dominate headlines, targets are destroyed and political leaders present the operation as evidence of resolve and strength. In the short term, such actions can create the appearance of decisive leadership. Yet the longer-term perspective often tells a very different story. History repeatedly shows that military success does not necessarily translate into strategic success. When a war is launched without plausible cause or clear

- [\[Moon Yewon\] Delays at Incheon Airport immigration](#) (2026-03-11 20:30)

If you visited Incheon Airport after Jan. 14, you may have noticed that the airport feels noticeably more crowded than before. While the steady growth of international travel naturally fills terminals, the most visible congestion now appears at immigration checkpoints. In the past, it typically took less than 30 minutes to process about 100 arriving passengers. Recently, however, the same number of passengers can take close to an hour to clear immigration — sometimes even longer during peak periods.

- In Busan's Gijang, spring comes with anchovies (2026-03-11 07:57)

Spring comes in many forms: cherry blossoms, pale pastel outfits appearing after months of winter drab, or the first green shoots on the dinner table. In a fishing town of Gijang, Busan, however, the season announces itself with a far more pungent sign: the salty, briny smell of fresh anchovies. Dae-byeon Village and its bustling namesake port account for about 60 percent of South Korea's anchovy catch, harvested using drift-net fishing. Anchovies, which live for only one year, are caught primarily

- Why did Heeseung leave Enhypen (2026-03-11 07:56)

Heeseung of Enhypen announced his sudden departure from the boy group to pursue his own solo career through agency Belift Lab on Tuesday — raising questions across the industry about the rare circumstances surrounding the move. Departures from idol groups are not uncommon, but it is highly unusual for a member of a thriving group to leave the band specifically to pursue a solo career while remaining under the same agency. Speculation has quickly spread within the K-pop community, ranging from possible

The fifth solo set from Shinee’s Onew debuted atop the iTunes Top Albums Chart in nine regions, his agency Griffin Entertainment said Wednesday. His five-track EP “Tough Love” rolled out on Monday. Onew co-wrote all five tracks on the album, including the title track — a first for the veteran idol — which landed atop the real-time songs chart on Bugs. A pop-up store is running in Seoul through March 15 to mark the album’s release. Onew released his first solo album in 2018 and has since put out

- Shooting at US consulate in Toronto prompts increased security (2026-03-11 01:57)

Two men fired multiple shots at the US consulate in Toronto early Tuesday in what police described as a "national security incident," prompting beefed-up protection for US and Israeli diplomatic buildings in the Canadian city. The individuals approached the consulate in downtown Toronto at around 4:30 a.m., exited a white SUV and fired several rounds from a handgun at the consulate, Toronto police deputy chief Frank Barredo told reporters. There were people inside at the time, but "this building

- Airlines raise fares as Middle East conflict lifts fuel costs (2026-03-11 01:45)

Some airlines in Asia and Europe raised fares, added fuel surcharges or adjusted schedules Tuesday as the Middle East conflict drove jet fuel costs sharply higher and disrupted key air routes. Australia's Qantas Airways, Scandinavia's SAS and Air New Zealand were among the carriers that announced price increases, while others warned the crisis could threaten fuel supplies or force further schedule changes. Jet fuel prices, which were around $85 to $90 per barrel before US-Israeli strikes on Ira

Recently, Netflix added the Jurassic World collection to its film repository. We all remember the worldwide excitement when the epoch-making film "Jurassic Park" was released in 1993. Directed by legendary filmmaker Steven Spielberg and based on Michael Crichton's bestselling novel, the movie led to two sequels: "The Lost World: Jurassic Park" and "Jurassic Park III." In 2015, "Jurassic World," directed by Colin Trevorrow, reignited nostalgic feelings of "Jurassic Park" fans. "Jurassic World" ha

- [\[Allison Schrager\] US human capital is eroding](#) (2026-03-10 20:30)

America is having a collective freakout about jobs — specifically, that soon AI will do everything and leave everyone unemployable. This concern is not necessarily misplaced, but it is better understood as part of a larger worry: that one of the country's most critical resources, human capital, is eroding. A large, diverse and highly skilled labor force is what made the US an economic powerhouse. Now, both the stock and value of its human capital are degrading, and almost no one is doing anything

PAPHOS, Cyprus (Reuters) -- France was deploying about a dozen naval vessels, including its aircraft carrier strike group, to the Mediterranean, Red Sea and potentially the Strait of Hormuz as part of defensive support to allies threatened by the conflict in the Middle East. Speaking in Cyprus before visiting the Charles de Gaulle aircraft carrier, which arrived over the weekend in the eastern Mediterranean, President Emmanuel Macron sought to reassure his Cypriot counterpart after drones were

- China exports surge into 2026 after record year (2026-03-10 04:51)

BEIJING (Reuters) -- China roared into 2026 with exports far outstripping forecasts, fueled by red-hot electronics demand, putting the economy on track to top last year's record $1.2 trillion trade surplus and blunting the blow from the war in Iran. Outbound shipments from the world's second-largest economy grew 21.8 percent in US dollar terms in the January-February period, sharply up from the 6.6 percent increase recorded in December and blowing past the median forecast in a Reuters poll of Jeju will begin offering stipends to grandparents caring for their grandchildren starting in March, following strong public approval of a similar program in Seoul. A survey conducted by the Seoul Metropolitan Government in February found that 99.2 percent of guardians were satisfied with the program, while 99.5 percent said they would recommend it to other caregivers. “I want to give my parents money for taking care of my children, but I’ m glad the city is supporting them on my behalf,” said a p

- Foreigners through eyes of media: Does coverage lead to prejudice? (2026-03-10 04:32)

Crimes committed by foreigners account for only a small share of offenses in South Korea. But news coverage and public debate often make them appear far more common than the numbers suggest. As of 2024, the number of “foreign residents” — defined by the Interior Ministry as foreign nationals staying in Korea for more than 90 days, naturalized citizens and their children — surpassed 2.58 million, the highest figure on record. They now make up roughly 5 percent of the population. Despite this demo

Brazil's Carnival, the greatest party on earth, ended last month. For those who have never been, no description does it justice. The blocos playing in the streets, the samba schools parading through Rio de Janeiro's Sambadrome, the drumlines, the costumes, and the collective joy of millions of people constitute a spectacle unto itself. In dark and divided times, Carnival reminds us that participation, creativity and shared celebration are not peripheral to economic life. They are part of what ec

- [\[Lim Woong\] Becoming 'New Lee Jae Myung'](#) (2026-03-09 20:30)

Modern Korean presidential history often reads like a long-running case study in leadership types. Over the decades, the office has been occupied by a variety of figures in style and ambition, yet many shared an implicit premise: The president stands apart from the public, legitimized not so much by higher statesmanship as by extreme ideology, elite credentials, regional identity and ties to wealth and status. President Lee Jae Myung appears, at least so far, to break with that pattern. He proje

Lee Mi-hyang has claimed her third career LPGA title in China, ending a long winless drought in the process. Lee won the Blue Bay LPGA at Jian Lake Blue Bay Golf Course in Hainan Island, China, on Sunday by shooting an 11-under 277. The 32-year-old South Korean held off Zhang Weiwei of China by one stroke and earned $390,000 in prize money. Lee struggled to a final round of one-over 73. She had two double bogeys, two bogeys and two birdies on the chaotic front nine, but recovered with three bird

- Gender pay gap hovers near 30% in Korea: report (2026-03-08 08:34)

The gender pay gap at South Korea's major conglomerates still hovers near 30 percent while women make up roughly one-quarter of the workforce, a report showed Sunday. According to an analysis of the 2024 business report by the Korea CXO Institute, women accounted for 25 percent of employees at 150 major conglomerates across key industries. The figure marks a 0.3 percentage point increase from 24.7 percent in 2023. From a year earlier, the number of female employees increased by 2,876 while their

- Shin Yoo-yeol steps into spotlight as Lotte's biotech bet tests heir (2026-03-08 08:03)

The message from Chairman Shin Dong-bin at the start of this year was blunt and poignant: Lotte Group cannot preserve its empire without shedding old habits. That mandate for renewed innovation and tighter capital discipline now seems to fall squarely on his eldest son, Shin Yoo-yeol, at the helm of the group's future-growth agenda. Just three months after the 39-year-old took charge of Lotte Biologics, the conglomerate's contract development and manufacturing arm, expectations are gathering aro

- Koreans flee Middle East conflict, government pledges further support (2026-03-08 07:50)

South Koreans escaping the conflict in the Middle East have begun arriving back in Korea, with the government pledging to direct all necessary resources to ensure the safety of Korean nationals in the region. A direct flight carrying South Korean nationals departed Dubai International Airport at 3:50 a.m. local time Sunday, scheduled to arrive at Incheon Airport at around 5 p.m. Korea time. Another commercial flight that had been urgently arranged earlier left Abu Dhabi and landed in South Korea

- KCA issues consumer safety warning over Dubai Chewy Cookie (2026-03-08 07:43)

The Korea Consumer Agency on Sunday issued a consumer safety alert over the Dubai Chewy Cookie after confirming cases of allergic reactions and tooth damage linked to the product. The agency said 23 cases were reported to its Consumer Injury Surveillance System between January and February. Of those, 11 involved allergy symptoms after consumption, while five reported digestive disorders. Four cases involved tooth damage caused by hard foreign substances, two reported finding foreign matter in th

- Seoul plan to create forest near Cheong Wa Dae scrapped: report (2026-03-08 07:33)

A Seoul city government plan to create forest areas and restore waterways near Cheong Wa Dae has effectively been scrapped, local media reported Sunday. According to Korea Herald sister paper, the Herald Business, authorities decided not to pursue projects to redevelop areas around Cheong Wa Dae, including Hyoja-ro, Cheongwadae-ro, Samcheong-ro and Jahamun-ro. The government also halted plans to restore historic waterways such as Baegundong Stream and Samcheongdong Stream. The original plan call

- Speculation grows over possible USFK redeployment to Middle East (2026-03-08 06:30)

Recent military movements in South Korea are raising questions over whether some United States Forces Korea assets could be redeployed to the Middle East as tensions between Washington and Tehran intensify. The speculation comes as the conflict in the Middle East appears increasingly likely to drag on, potentially increasing demand for US military assets and prompting the Pentagon to draw on forces stationed overseas. Such a scenario carries particular weight in Seoul. The “strategic flexibility

- Pulmuone showcases K-food, plant-based products at US expo (2026-03-08 06:29)

Korean food company Pulmuone showcased traditional Korean cuisine alongside its latest plant-based innovations at Natural Products Expo West 2026, held March 4-6 in Anaheim, California. The leading tofu maker has participated in the exhibition since 2003, introducing plant-based convenience foods such as tofu, plant-based meat, dumplings and fried rice to local consumers. At this year’s booth, the company highlighted tofu and kimchi, underscoring both its leadership in the tofu market and its ro

- Ruling party chair calls for probe of prosecution (2026-03-08 06:28)

South Korea's ruling party is increasing pressure on the prosecutors' office, accusing it of fabricating evidence against President Lee Jae Myung and calling for a parliamentary probe into the issue. Democratic Party of Korea chair Rep. Jung Chung-rae told a press conference Sunday that the ruling bloc would spare no efforts to achieve prosecutorial reform, calling it "a symbolic representation of the Lee administration and the Democratic Party." The party passed legislation last year to split u

- Media artist Cha Jae-min wins 21th Hermes Foundation Missulsang (2026-03-08 06:21)

Korean media artist Cha Jae-min has won the 21st Hermes Foundation Missulsang for her distinctive approach to media art — listening to marginalized voices and building relationships through “essay films.” While her earlier work raised critical voices about structural conditions and power dynamics in society, her recent practice seeks to bring forth the voices of those who remain unheard. “After extensive and passionate discussions regarding the many outstanding candidates the jury of the 21st He

- Time to buy Korean won: FX strategist (2026-03-08 06:09)

The Korean won is poised for a rebound, making the deeply undervalued currency an appealing bet for investors, particularly when paired against the overvalued Thai baht, according to a seasoned foreign exchange strategist. Before the US-Israeli strikes on Iran that rattled global markets earlier this month, the Korean equity market had been booming; the benchmark Kospi briefly topped the 6,300 level for the first time, roughly doubling from a year earlier. Despite the rally in stocks, the local

- Korea moves to curb 'excessive' celebrity security disrupting airport passenger flow (2026-03-08 06:05)

South Korea has long grappled with airport congestion caused by the large entourages and security details accompanying celebrities traveling overseas. The issue has persisted for years, with fans and security personnel frequently crowding airport passageways and delaying travelers trying to catch flights on schedule. That situation may soon change. Earlier this week, the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport commissioned a research project titled "A Study on Crowd Safety Management Meas

- Iran war puts Korean drugmakers on edge (2026-03-08 05:52)

Unease centered around the Iran war is keeping Korean drugmakers and health device companies on their toes amid growing concerns over supply chains and exports. The Korea Pharmaceutical and Bio-Pharma Manufacturers Association has warned that product supply schedules could be disrupted if the conflict in the Middle East leads to reduced flights, altered flight routes or closed airways. Delayed payments could also pose risks for companies, the business lobby said. “Disposable culture bags, filter

- Samsung SDI to unveil AI solution for ESS battery safety (2026-03-08 05:41)

Samsung SDI will unveil an AI-based battery safety solution for energy storage systems at InterBattery 2026, the company announced Sunday. Samsung Battery Intelligence uses artificial intelligence to diagnose the overall health of batteries, including their condition and potential anomalies, allowing operators to detect and predict safety risks in advance. Drawing on operational data from more than 1,400 ESS deployment sites worldwide, the system learns from large datasets accumulated over time.

- Renault Filante crossover blends hybrid power with sedan comfort (2026-03-08 05:40)

Renault Korea has launched the Filante crossover — the second model in its Aurora Project lineup — aiming to build this year’s sales momentum much like the Grand Koleos SUV did last year. Developed entirely at Renault Korea’s R&D center in Yongin, Gyeonggi Province, the new hybrid flagship builds on its smaller sibling Grand Koleos’ dynamic performance while adding sedan-like comfort, offering a fresh interpretation of Renault Group’s crossover DNA. Compared with the Grand Koleos, Filante takes

- Gas price surge takes toll on truck drivers (2026-03-08 05:39)

The recent surge in gas prices has slowed, but prices still hover near six-year highs, placing a heavy burden on truck drivers amid tensions in the Middle East. As of Sunday morning, South Korea's average diesel price rose 4.8 won from the previous day to 1,915.4 won ($1.29) per liter, while average gasoline prices increased 3.9 won to 1,893.3 won, according to industry data. The pace of increases has slowed significantly compared with recent days, when prices had been rising by several dozen won

- Local elections revive international school pledges, but will it work? (2026-03-08 05:30)

The establishment of international schools is re-emerging as a major education pledge ahead of the local elections across Korea scheduled for June 3. Supporters of the plan cite the example of Jeju Island, which hosts four international schools and has used them to help revitalize rural areas, presenting international schools as a way to transform local communities. They say the schools could provide an environment attractive to global talent and draw Korean demand for overseas education back to

- Lee Jae Myung's war on housing speculation (2026-03-08 05:19)

President Lee Jae Myung has declared war on housing speculation, using X as both a megaphone and a pressure tool. "For the sake of a sensible and prosperous nation, I will rein in, by any means, real estate speculation that can ruin the country," Lee wrote in an X post on Feb. 3. In just over a month, he has posted more than two dozen times on real estate, framing it not as a narrow property issue but as a broader distortion of the national economy. "Housing speculation robs young people of hope

- Korea moves to ban deepfake use in education superintendent elections (2026-03-08 05:02)

South Korea is moving to ban the use of deepfake content in the upcoming regional education superintendent elections slated for June 3, 2026. According to the National Assembly's legislation information system, a bill to amend the Act on Local Education Autonomy passed the Education Committee's bill review subcommittee on Feb. 26. The bill seeks to apply deepfake regulations under the Public Official Election Act to local superintendent elections, and was first introduced by Rep. Kim Moon-soo of

- Seoul cracks down on hotels near BTS comeback concert (2026-03-08 04:34)

The Seoul Metropolitan Government said Sunday that it has uncovered multiple violations of lodging regulations near the venue of an upcoming concert by BTS, as authorities step up inspections ahead of the group's comeback event scheduled for March 21 in Gwanghwamun Square. According to the city, 18 out of 83 accommodation facilities inspected in the Jongno-gu and Jung-gu districts were found to violate lodging regulations, mainly for failing to display required price lists or business registrati

- Flash floods in Nairobi kill 23 (2026-03-08 04:03)

NAIROBI, Kenya (AFP) -- At least 23 people have been killed in flash flooding in Nairobi, police said Saturday, as search and rescue operations continued amid widespread devastation. Torrential rains lashed the Kenyan capital late Friday, turning major streets into rivers and flooding thousands of homes and businesses. Rescue teams were still pulling out bodies and rescuing trapped residents on Saturday, while Agence France-Presse reporters saw heavily damaged roads and infrastructure from the c

- Iranian clerics seek swift naming of new supreme leader (2026-03-08 04:01)

Hard-line clerics have called for the swift selection of a new supreme leader to help guide Iran, Iranian media reported on Saturday, as the Islamic Republic reels under a new wave of US and Israeli strikes. The calls suggest some in the clerical establishment may be uncomfortable leaving power in the hands of the three-man council put in charge temporarily after the killing of Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, who had the final say in all matters of state. US President Donald Trump has

- Protesters come out amid war in Iran (2026-03-08 03:59)

PARIS, France (AFP) -- Lion-emblazoned flags of pre-revolution Iran fluttered in cities across the world on Saturday as demonstrators took to the streets a week after the start of the war in the Middle East. Some protesters came out in support of Reza Pahlavi, the US-based son of the country's late shah, while others denounced the option. Others demonstrated against the war and some in support of Iran's late supreme leader Ali Khamenei, who was killed in the first US-Israeli strikes of the confl

- At least 10 killed in Ukraine's Kharkiv (2026-03-08 03:58)

KYIV, Ukraine (AP) — Two children were among at least 10 people killed on Saturday in a Russian missile that hit a five-story residential building in Ukraine's second-largest city, Kharkiv, officials said. Sixteen others were wounded. President Volodymyr Zelenskyy condemned the attack and called for an international response. He said that Russia struck Ukraine overnight with 29 missiles and 480 drones, targeting energy facilities in Kyiv and other central regions and with damage reported in at l

- Tehran residents keep up semblance of normality (2026-03-08 03:57)

TEHRAN, Iran (AFP) -- For a moment Tehran resembled a city at peace, with birdsong, joggers and tranquil views of the snow-capped Alborz mountains in the distance. Then the sound of another explosion ripped through the air. A week ago, opening strikes by the US and Israel killed Iran's supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, upended residents' lives and transformed the city streets into a battleground. In Tehran's west, a block that belonged to the security forces had been blasted apart, and the

HD Hyundai Electric said Sunday that it held a groundbreaking ceremony on Friday for a second plant at its North American production base in Montgomery, Alabama, HD Hyundai Power Transformers USA. Construction is scheduled for completion in April next year. The new facility will span about 29,000 square meters within the existing site and is expected to generate roughly 200 billion won ($134 million) in annual revenue. The company plans to invest about $200 million to boost production of extra-h

- Top 3 universities see highest freshmen vacancies in 6 years (2026-03-08 02:28)

The number of unfilled freshman seats at South Korea's top three universities has tripled over the past six years, apparently driven by continued preference for medical schools and last year's expansion of medical school admission quotas, data showed Saturday. According to an analysis by Jongro Academy based on the state-run Higher Education in Korea university information disclosure system, freshman vacancies at Seoul National University, Yonsei University and Korea University rose from 21 in b

- Iran's president apologizes for strikes on neighbors (2026-03-08 02:12)

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Iran's president apologized Saturday for attacks on "neighboring countries," even as its missiles and drones flew toward Gulf Arab states and hard-liners asserted that Tehran's war strategy wouldn't budge. A rift between more pragmatic politicians looking to deescalate the weekold war and others committed to battling the US and Israel could complicate efforts to end the fighting. Conflicting statements involved two of the three members of the leadership council

- Lee pledges to promote gender equality on International Women's Day (2026-03-08 02:11)

President Lee Jae Myung on Sunday pledged to advance gender equality and foster a more inclusive society, marking International Women's Day. "I will fulfill my given role and responsibility to ensure that the Republic of Korea is reborn as a gender-equal society," Lee wrote on his Facebook page, referring to South Korea's official name. Lee said gender equality policies were scaled back under the previous administration, which had pledged to abolish the Ministry of Gender Equality and Family but

- S. Korea mulls adopting oil price cap system for 1st time in 30 yrs: sources (2026-03-08 02:09)

The government is considering adopting a price cap system for oil for the first time in nearly 30 years, sources said Sunday, amid concerns over rising energy prices following the escalating conflict in the Middle East. Officials began reviewing the possibility after surging global crude prices were reflected almost immediately in domestic fuel prices, rather than after the typical two-week lag, following US-Israeli strikes on Iran and Tehran's retaliatory attacks in the region. South Korea, whi

- Canadian PM supports removing Andrew from royal line of succession (2026-03-08 02:03)

TOKYO (AFP) -- Canadian Prime Minister Mark Carney said on Saturday that former prince Andrew should be removed from the line of royal succession over his "deplorable" behavior. Andrew Mountbatten-Windsor is being investigated for alleged misconduct in public office following revelations about his dealings with the late US sex offender Jeffrey Epstein. He was arrested and released in February on suspicion of having passed confidential information to Epstein during his 2001-2011 role as a UK trad

- US transport aircraft spotted departing Osan Air Base amid Patriot relocation speculation (2026-03-08 01:58)

US military transport aircraft have been spotted arriving at and departing from a US air base in South Korea over the past week, raising speculation that the US Forces Korea may be deploying some of its assets to the Middle East amid the escalating conflict involving Iran. According to the real-time flight tracking website Flightradar24, C-5 and C-17 US transport aircraft have landed at Osan Air Base in Pyeongtaek, south of Seoul, since late last month and departed between Wednesday and Saturday

CHICAGO (Reuters) -- Former US Presidents Joe Biden, Barack Obama and Bill Clinton joined thousands of mourners at a public memorial service for Jesse Jackson in Chicago to honor the longtime civil-rights activist and Democratic political leader. Jackson, who died last month at the age of 84, was a leading advocate for voting rights and desegregation. The memorial on Friday at the House of Hope, a 10,000-seat venue on Chicago's South Side, was celebratory, with a choir performing rousing gospel

- Chartered plane to bring home S. Koreans from UAE on Sunday: ministry (2026-03-08 00:57)

A chartered plane to evacuate South Koreans from the United Arab Emirates (UAE) will take off this weekend amid escalating tensions in the Middle East, the foreign ministry said Saturday. The ministry said it is arranging a 290-seat Etihad Airways chartered flight, set to depart from Abu Dhabi at noon on Sunday (local time). Starting early Saturday, the South Korean Embassy in the UAE will receive applications from South Korean nationals wishing to board the plane, with priority given to critica

- S. Korean bats start off hot, cool off later vs. Japan (2026-03-08 00:55)

The South Korean bats started off hot before cooling off considerably in a deflating 8-6 loss to Japan at the World Baseball Classic on Saturday. The first three South Korean batters of the game each hit a single off starter Yusei Kikuchi, with Lee Jung-hoo capping that run with an RBI knock to left. Three batters later, Moon Bo-gyeong, an offensive hero with a grand slam in the team's 11-4 win over Czechia on Thursday, delivered a two-run double to center to give South Korea a 3-0 lead. South K

- Lee lauds 'The King's Warden' on surpassing 10 mln admissions (2026-03-07 07:28)

President Lee Jae Myung on Saturday congratulated the South Korean historical film "The King's Warden" for surpassing the 10 million-admission mark, praising the achievement as particularly meaningful as it comes two years after the last film to reach the milestone. Directed by Jang Hang-jun, the period film depicts an unlikely friendship between village chief Eom Heung-do (Yoo Hai-jin) and the deposed King Danjong (Park Ji-hoon) during the latter's exile in the village. It reached 10 million ad

- The women behind Korea' s fight for equality (2026-03-07 07:00)

Alongside South Korea' s rapid modernization, women's lives have been profoundly transformed. Korean women continue to face structural barriers, including one of the widest gender pay gaps among members of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development and persistent gender-based violence. The push for equality has also fueled intense debates over feminism and gender relations in Korean society. Yet there have been major gains in education, employment and political participation. Samsung Electronics is moving quickly on its next flagship smartphone chip, preparing production-ready samples of the Exynos 2700 by midyear as the company seeks to expand the use of its own processors in future Galaxy devices and reduce reliance on Qualcomm. Industry sources said this week that Samsung aims to complete production-ready samples of the Exynos 2700 between May and June. The chip is widely expected to power a significant portion of the Galaxy S27 lineup scheduled for release early

- Your spring wardrobe refresh starts here (2026-03-07 07:00)

As temperatures rise and winter layers begin to disappear from closets, spring fashion this year is defined less by entirely new pieces than by subtle styling shifts. From oversized shirts and revived check patterns to playful scarves and fresh denim formulas, the season' s must-have items show how familiar wardrobe staples can be reimagined with a modern twist. Fashion insiders say this year's spring style is less about buying new clothes and more about updating how classic pieces are worn. Over

ULJIN, North Gyeongsang Province — Early spring arrives quietly along Korea' s East Sea. The wind still carries a trace of winter, fishing boats return to port with the season' s prized catch, and seaside towns begin to stir after the colder months. In Uljin, that seasonal rhythm revolves around one thing: crab. Although the annual Uljin Snow Crab and Red Snow Crab Festival recently wrapped up in Hupo Port, the town' s seafood culture continues well beyond the event itself. Visitors arriving after
