- Grab, Move It roll out fuel discount, incentives for drivers amid soaring pump prices
(2026-03-15 03:14)

MANILA, Philippines — Ride-hailing and motorcycle taxi platforms Grab Philippines and Move It announced the rollout of a financial support package for their driver-partners as soaring fuel prices threaten the livelihood of transport workers who depend on the platforms for daily income. The companies said the program would provide fuel discounts, rebates, and additional incentives for tens of thousands of driver-, delivery-, and rider-partners nationwide as global oil prices continue to climb. The assistance comes as local pump prices recorded sharp increases in recent weeks amid supply disruptions linked to the ongoing conflict in the Middle East, with gasoline marking its ninth consecutive weekly increase and diesel posting double-digit price hikes in a single week. “Our immediate priority is to help ensure that our drivers continue to earn viably and fairly for their families, while preserving service reliability for passengers and the sustainability of the platform as we collectively navigate volatility in the global fuel market,” said Ronald Roda, Grab Philippines managing director. Roda said that maintaining driver earnings is critical as more commuters may turn to ride-hailing and shared mobility to cope with the rising cost of using privately-owned vehicles. Fuel discounts and rebates Under the program, driver-partners using four-wheel and two-wheel vehicles will be able to access fuel discounts of up to P4 per liter through partnerships with Seaoil Philippines, Caltex, and Blu Energy at participating stations nationwide. In addition, Grab Finance will offer a fuel rebate program for nearly 20,000 eligible drivers and riders using the Shell Fuel Card. Starting March 16 until the end of the month, partners who refuel using the card will receive a P3-per-liter rebate credited directly to their accounts. The companies are also introducing new incentives aimed at stabilizing drivers' take-home pay despite rising operating costs. GrabCar drivers will receive commission rebates under a revised incentive structure designed to return more value to drivers through per-trip cashback and targeted rebates during peak periods. Meanwhile, motorcycle delivery partners working with GrabFood will receive a P3 spot bonus for every completed delivery nationwide, regardless of the number of hours they spend online. Move It, which operates a motorcycle taxi service, is launching a separate initiative called Power Pasada, a fuel-resilience program tailored for rider-partners. The program includes monthly fuel allowances for consistently active riders and additional incentives during morning and evening peak hours. The platforms said they are also coordinating with regulators, including the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board and the Department of Transportation (Philippines), to address the impact of the fuel price surge on ride-hailing and motorcycle taxi operators. The government recently announced a P5,000 fuel subsidy for transport workers to be distributed by the Department of Social Welfare and Development in coordination with the transportation department. Transport network vehicle service (TNVS) drivers are among the beneficiaries. "We thank the DOTr and DSWD for recognizing TNVS professionals as equal partners in keeping the country's transport ecosystem alive," said Lisza Buscaino-Redulla, United Transportation Coalition Philippines president. Transport sector leaders also urged continued cooperation between government and private platforms as fuel prices remain volatile. "It is imperative that the entire transport ecosystem works together in finding the right support programs as we collectively try to survive this oil challenge," said Romeo Maglunsod, Motorcycle Taxi Community Philippines chairman. Grab and Move It said they will continue monitoring developments in global oil markets and may adjust their support programs as fuel prices evolve.

• Biazon summons Maynilad executives anew over water interruptions in Muntinlupa
(2026-03-15 01:48)

MANILA, Philippines — Muntinlupa City Mayor Ruffy Biazon has again summoned the top officials of Maynilad Water Services Inc. to explain recurring water service interruptions affecting residents in the city. In separate letters dated March 11, Biazon asked the concessionaire's senior management to attend a meeting with the local government and present a plan to address the problem. The letters were addressed to Maynilad President and Chief Executive Officer Ramoncito Fernandez and Chief Operating Officer Christopher Lichauco. Biazon said the water provider failed to give timely and adequate notice to customers about service interruptions, leaving residents unprepared. "It is lamentable that Maynilad is unable to properly inform its customers about the service interruption in a timely, efficient, and effective manner," he said. "The uncertainty of service restoration also causes undue stress, inconvenience, and lost productivity." The mayor also called on the concessionaire to provide compensation to affected consumers. "At the very least, there should be a rebate to customers who have been deprived of the quality of service Maynilad is obligated to deliver to the people,” he said. Biazon further criticized the company’s lack of coordination with the city government, saying local officials are often left unaware of the situation on the ground. “Government itself is not spared from this failure to communicate by Maynilad. We are also in the dark on what is going on, which necessitates us to initiate contact with Maynilad instead of Maynilad proactively engaging the local government,” he said. The mayor noted that the interruptions persist even as the company operates two water treatment plants drawing from Laguna de Bay. While Maynilad has said it deploys water tankers for emergency distribution during outages, Biazon said the measure has not been enough to serve affected residents. “While Maynilad claims to deploy tankers to provide emergency distribution, it definitely is not sufficient to support all subscribers and the impact is not significantly felt,” he said. Last month, Biazon convened a town hall meeting with Maynilad officials to discuss similar service disruptions. During the meeting, company representatives attributed the interruptions to operational challenges at one of its treatment facilities.

- Use of local gas to stabilize price of electricity - group (2026-03-15 01:33)

MANILA, Philippines — The Petroleum Association of the Philippines (PAP) urged power generation companies to maximize the use of domestic natural gas to help stabilize electricity prices, saying the country still has untapped indigenous capacity that could reduce dependence on costly fuel imports. Speaking during a Senate hearing on March 11, PAP Chairman Donnabel Kuizon Cruz said fully utilizing locally produced gas could significantly lower electricity generation costs for consumers. “There is an opportunity to fully implement the downstream Natural Gas law by maximizing the use of indigenous gas,” Cruz said. “We still have capacity there that we can use and push into our power generation companies so we can help reduce the price.” Cruz also serves as president and chief executive officer of Prime Energy, the operator of Service Contract No. 38 covering the Malampaya Deep Water Gas-to-Power Project, the country’s largest indigenous natural gas source and a critical supplier of fuel to several power plants in Luzon. The group called for the complete implementation of Republic Act 12120, or the Philippine Natural Gas Industry Development Act, which aims to strengthen the country’s downstream natural gas industry and encourage greater use of local gas resources. PAP noted that Section 38 of the law exempts the sale of indigenous natural gas and electricity generated from it from value-added tax (VAT), a provision that could deliver additional savings for electricity consumers if fully implemented. The group made the appeal as policymakers consider proposals to temporarily suspend petroleum taxes in response to rising global fuel prices and geopolitical tensions in the Middle East. Industry leaders say maximizing domestic natural gas use would provide a more sustainable and long-term solution to price volatility than temporary tax relief. Local gas cheaper Cruz said that electricity generated from gas supplied by Malampaya costs around ₱4.80 per kilowatt-hour, significantly lower than the ₱10.30 per kilowatt-hour cost of power generated from imported liquefied natural gas (LNG). “That’s how big the difference between our own fuel in the country is, compared to imported gas today,” Cruz told senators. Malampaya has been supplying natural gas to major Luzon power plants since 2001, providing fuel for facilities that account for a significant share of the island’s electricity supply. However, as the field matures and domestic production fluctuates, the Philippines has increasingly relied on imported LNG to meet growing energy demand. Cruz said recent geopolitical developments, including the war in Iran, highlight the need for the Philippines to strengthen domestic fuel supply and reduce vulnerability to global market shocks. “The Iran conflict underscores the importance of having our own resources—our own indigenous or domestic fuel sources such as indigenous gas, oil, and indigenous coal,” she said. She added that the government’s decision in 2022 to extend the Malampaya service contract enabled new upstream exploration efforts. “The government’s move to extend the license was very timely. This allowed us to start drilling for new wells, and we already had one discovery—with hopefully more to come.” Cruz also credited the Department of Energy for continuing efforts to expand the country’s indigenous energy resources, including awarding additional petroleum service contracts aimed at boosting domestic production and reducing reliance on imported oil and gas. Energy stakeholders are now coordinating with the DOE to manage the country’s fuel mix as global energy markets remain uncertain. “Under the leadership of the DOE, members of the energy sector have started to coordinate in this crisis and see how we can balance the fuel mix to help consumers during this time,” Cruz said.

MANILA, Philippines — The state-run weather agency said on Sunday that the northeast monsoon or ‘amihan’ would continue to prevail at least over the next two to three days in most parts of the archipelago. Weather specialist Aldczar Aurelio of the Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said it has not monitored any low-pressure area inside or outside the Philippine Area of Responsibility. He said in a 5 a.m. briefing that Bicol Region, Batanes, Cagayan, Isabela, Nueva Vizcaya, Apayao, Kalinga, Mountain Province, Ifugao, Northern Samar, and Eastern Samar would experience cloudy skies with light rain due to amihan. The same weather system is affecting Metro Manila, the rest of Luzon, the rest of Visayas, Northern Mindanao, Caraga, and Zamboanga Peninsula, where partly cloudy to overcast skies with isolated light rain would occur. Meanwhile, the rest of Mindanao will likely have partly cloudy skies with rain showers or localized thunderstorms, according to Pagasa. For the day's heat index, Pagasa said the highest temperature would be in Cotabato City and Maguindanao at 39 degrees Celsius, and 29 to 30 degrees Celsius may be recorded over the National Capital Region in the same period.

- Antipolo Special Election: Comelec ensures tight security for ballot transport (2026-03-14 19:58)

The Commission on Elections (Comelec) reported that election security and ballot transport during Saturday's special election in Antipolo City's second district proceeded without incident, ensuring the integrity of the vote-counting process. Comelec Chairman George Garcia said strict protocols were implemented to guarantee the safe and simultaneous transport of ballots and election results from individual precincts to the city's canvassing centers. "All Election Returns were collected and sealed with paper seals to prevent any tampering," he noted, adding that no incidents of lost or compromised ballots were reported. The measures included coordinated departures from precincts, with teachers and electoral staff accompanied by security personnel to safeguard ballots throughout the journey to canvassing centers. Garcia emphasized that the system was designed to prevent mishandling or unauthorized access, ensuring transparency and accountability. "These procedures were part of our commitment to maintain the highest standards of election integrity," Garcia said. He also confirmed that the meticulous handling of ballots contributed to the smooth conduct of the manual election, even in precincts located far from the city center. The Comelec chairman assured the public that all election paraphernalia, including ballots and Election Returns, were properly accounted for and delivered on time.

- US bombs rain on Iran's main oil hub (2026-03-14 16:14)

US PRESIDENT Donald Trump said Friday that the United States had heavily bombed military targets on Iran's oil hub Kharg Island and the US Navy would soon begin escorting tankers through the Strait of Hormuz. Several top Iranian officials joined a defiant pro-government rally in Tehran, meanwhile, marching alongside demonstrators waving banners reading "Death to America" and "Death to Israel." As the United States intensified its bombing of Iran, Tehran launched a new wave of drone and missile attacks on Israel and its Gulf neighbors. The war between Israel and Hezbollah in Lebanon continued to rage and the Lebanese health ministry said an Israeli strike on a primary health care center in southern Lebanon had killed at least 12 medical personnel on Friday. According to the Lebanese authorities, at least 773 people have been killed by Israeli attacks in Lebanon aimed at wiping out Iranian ally Hezbollah. In a post on Truth Social, Trump said military targets on Kharg Island, which handles almost all of Iran's crude exports, had been "totally obliterated" in "one of the most powerful bombing raids in the History of the Middle East." He said he had chosen not to target oil infrastructure on the island for now. "However, should Iran, or anyone else, do anything to interfere with the Free and Safe Passage of Ships through the Strait of Hormuz, I will immediately reconsider this decision," the US president said. With oil prices spiking, Trump was asked when the US Navy would begin escorting tankers through the Gulf's critical Strait of Hormuz. "It'll happen soon, very soon," he said. The United States and Israel have tread carefully around Kharg Island until now, but US officials have been reported as saying that capturing the island was potentially on the table. The Wall Street Journal and New York Times reported on Friday that the Pentagon had dispatched the Japan-based amphibious assault ship USS Tripoli to the region along with its complement of some 2,500 Marines. Heavy blasts shook Tehran late Friday after the United States vowed to step up air strikes and Iranian state media said a fresh round of missiles had been launched toward Israel. Israeli rescue workers said no casualties were reported. Blasts were heard in Doha early Saturday and Qatar's defense ministry said its military had intercepted missiles targeting the Gulf state. Saudi Arabia's defense ministry said its forces had intercepted dozens of drones on Friday and Turkey said NATO forces shot down a ballistic missile launched from Iran — the third such interception in the war. The Islamic republic is intent on showing it will come through the war intact and in control, despite its supreme leader Ali Khamenei being killed at the start of the US-Israeli campaign on Feb. 28. Khamenei's son Mojtaba Khamenei was named the new supreme leader, but has been absent from public view and is said to be wounded. The US government unveiled a $10-million reward for information about Mojtaba Khamenei's whereabouts. $100 a barrel US Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth told a news conference the US military would bombard Iran more heavily on Friday than any other day so far in the war. According to the Pentagon, the US and Israel have struck more than 15,000 targets in Iran over the past two weeks. Israel's military said it conducted 7,600 strikes on the country, most of them against its missile program. The conflict has sparked chaos in global markets and sent oil prices soaring. Brent contracts for a barrel of crude have soared more than 42 percent, leaving markets and governments everywhere skittish about energy supply and higher inflation. On Friday, oil stayed above $100 a barrel. Within Iran, the Revolutionary Guards have warned of an even stronger response to any anti-government protests, after ones in January in which several thousand people were killed. Iranian authorities have maintained an internet blackout since the war started. Iranians speaking to AFP under cover of anonymity have described a grim picture of cities in ruins and cash running short. A woman in Kermanshah, western Iran, told AFP that "countless" people from Tehran had come to seek refuge from the air strikes, adding to demand for food and scarce medicine, with prices "nearly doubling." The UN refugee agency has estimated that up to 3.2 million people have been displaced inside Iran since the war started. Iran's health ministry said on March 8 that more than 1,200 people have been killed, a figure AFP has not been able to verify independently. The US military has lost 13 personnel since the war started — including six members of a refueling aircraft that crashed in Iraq after an incident officials said was not caused by hostile fire. Iran's biggest weapon Long before the US and Israel attacked Iran, the Islamic Republic had devised its own weapon: holding the world's main oil lifeline hostage to offset its foes' military superiority, three regional sources familiar with Iranian planning said. For decades Iran has signaled that if pushed into a confrontation, it would restrict tanker traffic in the Strait of Hormuz, the choke point where its adversaries are most exposed because disruptions there reverberate instantly through global energy markets. With the Gulf's main export artery in the crosshairs, Tehran has turned the region's greatest economic asset into its most powerful deterrent, the sources said. About a fifth of global oil and liquefied natural gas normally passes through the vital Strait, and Iran, which lies on its northern coast, has now effectively closed it. Traffic via the strait has dropped by 97 percent since the war against Iran began on Feb. 28, according to United Nations data. Iran has used similar tactics before. In the “Tanker War” of the 1980–88 Iran-Iraq conflict, attacks on vessels turned the Gulf into one of the world’s most dangerous waterways, forcing Washington to escort tankers through the strait. But Iran now wields far more potent tools, including large arsenals of cheap missiles and drones capable of threatening shipping across a far wider area. Its attacks this month have shown how quickly Tehran can disrupt traffic through the strait without heavily mining it. Trump will blink first. “Iran is outgunned — there is no way it can defeat them in a direct confrontation,” said Ali Vaez, the International Crisis Group’s Iran project director. Anticipating further US-Israeli strikes after a 12-day war in June last year, Tehran examined how to extend any conflict “in time and space.” “If Iran takes the global economy hostage, Trump would blink first,” added Vaez. The regional sources, who declined to be identified as they were not authorized to speak publicly, said Iran’s powerful Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps (IRGC) had long prepared for a showdown with Israel and Washington. The Guards’ plan, which seeks to protect Iran’s 47-year-old system of rule by fiercely anti-Western Islamic clerics, was activated on Feb. 28, after Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei was killed on the first day of the conflict. The core of the strategy is a recognition of Iran’s military limits against superior forces, the sources said. Tehran’s planners instead seek to pressure oil flows while inflicting asymmetric attacks on US assets stationed across the region. The strategy seeks to conjure economic pressures — both at home and overseas — on President Donald Trump to halt the war. “This is asymmetric warfare par excellence, in which Iran achieves outsized, even global effects through a small number of attacks that impose painful costs,” said Michael Eisenstadt of the Washington Institute. “The goal is to create economic pain, further undermining support for the war in the United States and increasing pressure on Washington to end it.” Rather than concentrate forces on a single battlefield, Tehran is dispersing its campaign with waves of low-cost missile and drone strikes across the Gulf, of the kind once outsourced to Iran-allied forces in Iraq, Yemen, Syria and Lebanon. The approach reflects a doctrine shaped over decades by the IRGC, built on the assumption that a stronger foe would try to decapitate Iran’s leadership and command structure at the outset of any war, the sources said. The Guards are applying lessons from years of shadow conflict with the US, they said. But this time, instead of relying mostly on regional proxies that once formed its forward line of defense, Tehran is now executing the playbook itself. Wishful thinking. Ali Vaez said the US had entered the war unprepared, driven by “a lot of wishful thinking and not a lot of well-thought-through strategies.” Washington, he said, failed to anticipate drone attacks on Gulf states, disruptions to shipping lanes or the need to evacuate citizens, shortcomings he said reflected a failure to absorb lessons from the risk of drones in modern warfare. By contrast, Iran’s decentralized “Mosaic” doctrine — dispersing command and control to withstand decapitation — remains in place, under one coordinating hub. Even after Khamenei’s death, two sources said Parliament Speaker Mohammad Baqer Qalibaf, a former Guards commander, and Ali Larijani, head of Iran’s national security council, continued to direct the war effort from Tehran. Vaez argued that while the US can significantly weaken Iran, total defeat would need a land invasion involving up to a million troops operating in unforgiving terrain, a commitment

Washington has shown “it doesn’t have the stomach for.” Trump, who once promised to keep the US out of “stupid” military interventions, is now pursuing what many experts see as an open-ended war of choice that could be the biggest military campaign since those in Iraq and Afghanistan. Iran’s immediate objective is survival, Vaez said. Beyond that, its broader aim is to force Washington to accept that coercion, whether through military force, economic pressure or diplomatic isolation, does not work. Whether such a lesson is learned remains uncertain. But by weaponizing the world’s most critical energy corridor and stretching the battlefield far beyond Iran’s borders, Tehran is betting it can endure longer than a far stronger enemy.

- ‘3 months too long to wait before cutting fuel taxes, Lacson says (2026-03-14 16:13)

SENATE President Pro Tempore Panfilo Lacson is calling for amendments to the country’s tax laws to allow the government to immediately suspend excise taxes on fuel, warning that the current system could delay relief for consumers amid rising global oil prices. Lacson said a key safeguard under the Tax Reform for Acceleration and Inclusion Law, or Train Law, that allowed the suspension of fuel excise tax increases when global oil prices reached a certain threshold had already expired in 2020. Under Article 148 of the National Internal Revenue Code of the Philippines, the scheduled increase in excise tax on petroleum products could be suspended from 2018 to 2020 if the average price of Dubai crude oil reached or exceeded $80 per barrel for three months before the scheduled increase. The provision, however, is no longer in effect. In a radio interview on Saturday, Lacson said the government must now establish a faster and more flexible mechanism to address volatile oil prices, particularly with the war in the Middle East affecting global energy markets. “I am not just pushing for emergency powers but for a permanent amendment to the NIRC to shorten the ‘wait time’ to suspend excise taxes, especially with the situation now in the Middle East. We cannot wait three months before suspending the imposition of an excise tax,” he said in English and Filipino. Lacson said that under the current framework, authorities must wait for a three-month monitoring period before suspending the excise tax on fuel, a delay he said could render the measure ineffective during sudden spikes in oil prices. Instead, he proposed amending the law to grant the Department of Finance the authority to immediately suspend the excise tax when global oil prices breach critical levels. “This process should not be automatic. The proposed amendment should empower the Department of Finance to act right away rather than wait for three months. Waiting that long could be too late,” Lacson said. Meanwhile, the government has begun implementing measures to cushion travelers from rising transportation costs as global fuel prices spike amid the ongoing war in the Middle East, with regulators moving to ease pressure on airline passengers while probing a steep ferry fare increase in Zamboanga. The Department of Transportation (DOTr) said it was coordinating with the Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines (CAAP) and the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) to mitigate the impact of soaring jet fuel prices on airline fares. Government monitoring showed that jet fuel prices nearly doubled in recent weeks, rising from $90.87 per barrel on Feb. 19 to $188.20 per barrel on March 9. To help airlines manage higher operating costs, Transportation Secretary Giovanni

Lopez directed CAAP to reduce Passenger Service Charges (PSC) and airport navigation fees at airports operated by the aviation authority. The move is intended to lower operational expenses for carriers and help temper potential increases in ticket prices.

- Victims' lawyers urge ICC to reject defense appeal (2026-03-14 16:12)

(UPDATE) LAWYERS representing victims in the crimes against humanity case against Rodrigo Duterte have asked the International Criminal Court (ICC) to reject another attempt by the former president's defense team to bar them from the proceedings, accusing them of dilatory tactics. In a response filed on March 13, 2026 before ICC Pre-Trial Chamber I, victims' lawyers Joel Butuyan and Gilbert Andres urged the chamber to deny the defense's application for leave to appeal its earlier decision rejecting a bid to disqualify them as external common legal representatives for victims. The lawyers argued that the defense filing failed to meet the strict requirements for an interlocutory appeal under Rome Statute Article 82(1)(d), which allows appeals only when a ruling involves a clear legal issue that could significantly affect the fairness or outcome of proceedings. "The bulk of the defense's arguments focus on its disagreements with the submissions of Mr. Butuyan and Mr. Andres," the filing said. "Given this stark lack of reference to the actual, relevant parts of the impugned decision, the defense merely expresses its disagreement with the outcome of the Chamber's deliberation." The dispute traces back to a motion filed by Duterte's defense team on Feb. 11, seeking the disqualification of Butuyan and Andres after the ICC Registry appointed them as external lawyers representing victims in the case. On Feb. 20, the Pre-Trial Chamber rejected that request, ruling that the defense had failed to establish a sufficient legal basis for removing the two lawyers. Just hours later, Duterte's lead counsel, Nicholas Kaufman, filed an application asking the chamber to certify the issue for appeal before the Appeals Chamber. The defense's challenge centers on Nicolene Arcaina, who serves as case manager for the victims' legal team. According to the defense filing, Arcaina previously worked at CenterLaw, the law firm where Butuyan and Andres are partners, raising what the defense described as a potential conflict of interest.

- Asean calls for ceasefire in Mideast war, diplomacy (2026-03-14 16:11)

FOREIGN ministers from Southeast Asia expressed serious concern over the escalating war in the Middle East and called for an immediate cessation of hostilities during a special virtual meeting convened by the Philippines on Friday, March 13. Ma. Theresa Lazaro, secretary of the Department of Foreign Affairs, said the Philippines organized the Special Asean Foreign Ministers' Meeting on the situation in the Middle East in its capacity as chairman of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean). The meeting gathered foreign ministers from Singapore, Brunei, Indonesia, Laos, Thailand and Vietnam, along with senior officials representing Cambodia, Malaysia, Myanmar and Timor-Leste. Call for a ceasefire and diplomacy In a media briefing, Lazaro said Asean members emphasized the urgent need for de-escalation and diplomacy as violence in the Middle East continues to affect global stability. "We expressed serious concern over the situation in the Middle East and its impacts," Lazaro said. "We emphasized the importance of the immediate cessation of hostilities and called on all parties to exercise utmost self-restraint.” The ministers also urged all parties involved in the conflict to resolve disputes through dialogue and diplomacy while respecting international law, including the principles of the United Nations and its charter. Asean officials agreed to continue monitoring developments in the region and to coordinate responses to any potential effects on Southeast Asia. Concerns over energy During the meeting, ministers also discussed the broader economic implications of the war, particularly disruptions to energy markets and global shipping routes. Lazaro said Asean members underscored the importance of maintaining stable and reliable energy supply chains and keeping maritime trade routes open, as tensions in the Middle East could affect global oil supplies and transportation networks. To mitigate potential disruptions, the bloc highlighted existing regional cooperation mechanisms, including the Asean Framework Agreement on Petroleum Security, the Asean Power Grid and the Trans-Asean Gas Pipeline. Officials also emphasized the need to strengthen intra-Asean trade and expand the use of renewable energy as part of long-term strategies to reduce reliance on fossil fuels. The ministers further agreed to improve coordination between Asean’s foreign and economic sectors to enable faster and more coordinated responses to regional crises. Protection of Asean nationals Another key topic discussed during the meeting was the safety of Southeast Asian nationals living or working in the Middle East. Asean members are committed to improving coordination and information sharing among diplomatic missions in third countries to ensure timely assistance during emergencies. This cooperation will follow existing regional guidelines, including the Asean Declaration on the Guidelines on Consular Assistance by Asean Member States’ Missions in Third Countries to Nationals of Other Asean Member States and the Guidelines for the Provision of Emergency Assistance by Asean Missions in Third Countries to Nationals of Asean Member Countries in Crisis Situations. Lazaro also acknowledged the support extended by Asean member states in assisting citizens from neighboring countries when crises occur abroad.

- PH firm on economic reforms, Marcos tells IMF (2026-03-14 16:10)

THE Philippines remains committed to pursuing reforms and sound economic policies to ensure stability and resilience amid global uncertainties, President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. said on Saturday. On a Facebook post, Marcos shared details of his meeting with International Monetary Fund (IMF) Managing Director Kristalina Georgieva to discuss the Philippines’ economic outlook and reforms aimed at keeping the country’s growth trajectory stable. Marcos said the discussions covered the country’s economic priorities and ongoing efforts to sustain growth. He said cooperation with international partners, such as the IMF, plays an important role in supporting the country’s economic agenda. “With discipline, sound policy and cooperation with partners such as the IMF, we will keep the Philippine economy stable and growing,” he said. Marcos said the meeting also touched on the Philippines’ priorities for its chairmanship of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean). He stressed that policy discipline, structural reforms and strong international partnerships will help make the Philippine economy more robust. “I met with International Monetary Fund Managing Director Kristalina Georgieva to discuss the Philippines’ economic outlook, our priorities for our Asean chairship, and the reforms we continue to pursue to keep our nation on a steady path of growth,” Marcos said. In an exclusive interview with the Philippine News Agency, Georgieva said the IMF expects the Philippine economy to outperform the regional average growth of 4.3 percent, citing ongoing reforms that could unlock stronger long-term expansion. The IMF is a global financial institution that aims to promote international monetary cooperation, ensure financial stability, and facilitate sustainable economic growth among its 191 member countries.

• Slain OFW home from Israel (2026-03-14 16:09)

(UPDATE) THE remains of a Filipino caregiver who was killed by an Iranian missile strike in Israel at the start of the war in the Middle East arrived early Saturday, the government said. The Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) and the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA) said Mary Ann De Vera's husband, Bernie Lavarias, along with DMW Undersecretaries Barnard Olalia, Felicitas Bay, Dominique Rubia-Tutay; OWWA Administrator Patricia Yvonne Caunan; Deputy Administrator Ryan Vincent Uy; Israel Ambassador to the Philippines Dana Kursh; and Agimat party-list Rep. Bryan Revilla were present for the Filipina who died from shrapnel wounds in Tel Aviv. Kursh also offered her condolences to De Vera's husband. She met with Lavarias at the OWWA office in Pasay City. “Mary Ann De Vera, our kababayan who tragically lost her life in Israel, is remembered with profound respect. As her family mourns her passing, the people of Israel share in their grief. We extend our deepest sympathies and stand in solidarity with her loved ones during this time of sorrow,” the Israeli Embassy said on a Facebook post on Saturday. The OFW's remains, which arrived in the country at 4:30 a.m. on Saturday, were transported to Pangasinan, her hometown, where she will be brought to her family. In Israel, Lavarias met on Thursday with the country's president, Isaac Herzog, who expressed his condolences. “We are devastated by the terrible loss of Mary Ann. On behalf of the State of Israel, I send my deepest condolences to her family and the entire nation of the Philippines,” Herzog said in a statement. He then told Lavarias that Israel was grateful to Filipinos like De Vera. “Mary Ann was an angel. She was a hero, as she saved Mrs. Rachel Shihror during the missile attack. So many Israelis were hurt by and took to heart the loss of Mary Ann,” Herzog said. “I cannot change this terrible fate, unfortunately, but as a word of some remorse and condolences, I say thank you to you Bernie, and to what you have done. I also want to extend my deepest appreciation for the incredible work and contribution of the Filipino community in Israel. You are deeply respected and loved by the Israeli people,” he added. De Vera was taking care of Mrs. Shihror before the missile attack at an apartment complex in Tel Aviv. House Overseas Workers Affairs Committee chairman and Agimat Partylist Rep. Bryan Revilla hailed Filipino caregiver De Vera for her heroism and care for others. “While we mourn her passing, we honor her heroic act to save a life. Like many other OFWs, she deserves to be welcomed with dignity, respect and honor,” Revilla said. He added that De Vera's death underscores the growing risks faced by Filipinos working in regions affected by armed conflict and geopolitical tensions. Amid the ongoing war in the region, Revilla stressed the need to strengthen safety protocols and crisis response mechanisms for overseas Filipino workers deployed in high-risk areas.

- Rising Fish and Vegetable Prices in Manila Spark Calls for Ethical Trading (2026-03-14 16:08)

SEN. Bong Go urged traders to avoid hoarding and overpricing that could further burden consumers as a fuel crisis becomes imminent due to rising tensions in the Middle East. Go issued the appeal on Friday as food prices reportedly began increasing in several public markets ahead of major fuel price adjustments. At the Bulungan Seafood Market, the per-kilo price of lapulapu rose from P300 to P400, while bakoko increased from P250 to P400 per kilogram (kg). Similar developments were observed at Balintawak Market, where the price of a container of fish reportedly went up by P500. Go said that while higher fuel costs may affect the transport of goods, some traders may take advantage of the situation by prematurely raising prices or manipulating supply — practices that ultimately hurt ordinary consumers. “In times like these, we need to work together. Let’s not take advantage of the situation to make a lot of money while our people are struggling,” Go said. “Every peso, every cent is important, especially for families with low incomes.” The senator reiterated his long-standing stance against hoarding and supply manipulation, which he said contribute to price instability in the market. “As a member of the Committee on Agriculture, we must do two things. First, we must fight and go against hoarders and smugglers. Smugglers should not benefit from this,” he said in a previous interview. Some vendors have reportedly started selling fish in bundles instead of by the kilo so that customers can still afford them. Meanwhile, vegetable prices have also increased in some markets. The price of eggplant rose from P250 to P400 per pack, squash from P27 to P35/kg and calamansi from P100 to P120/kg. Traders said some produce is sourced from the Ilocos Region and warned that transportation expenses could rise further if fuel prices continue to climb. Transport groups have also cautioned that shipping fees may increase by as much as 20 percent to 30 percent, citing the heavy reliance of trucking operations on petroleum products. Despite these developments, Go called on traders, suppliers and other stakeholders in the food supply chain to practice fairness and responsibility in pricing. He emphasized that ethical trading practices are especially important during periods of economic strain when many households are already struggling to stretch their daily budgets. “Many families are tightening their spending. Some are buying only half a kilo, or just a few pieces so their money will be enough,” Go said. “I hope traders will also consider the situation of ordinary citizens.” Go added that food and other basic goods are necessities, making fair pricing a matter that directly affects people’s daily survival. The senator encouraged the public to remain mindful of their spending and to support vendors who continue to keep prices reasonable despite market pressures.

- Gatchalian calls for Senate probe into Anti-Hazing Law enforcement (2026-03-14 16:07)

SEN. Sherwin Gatchalian has called on the Senate to conduct an inquiry into whether the country’s anti-hazing law is being properly implemented. The senator raised concerns after 19-year-old maritime student Kenneth Alcedo died from injuries reportedly sustained during a hazing incident. Authorities said several members of the Tau Gamma Phi fraternity, which has been linked to the case, have surrendered to investigators. Gatchalian noted that despite the ban imposed under Republic Act (RA) 11053, hazing incidents continue to occur and are reported almost every year, raising concerns about gaps in the law's enforcement. Gatchalian, one of the law's co-authors and co-sponsors, said the continued occurrence of hazing-related violence highlights the need to review how the legislation is being implemented and whether stronger safeguards are needed. The senator said the proposed inquiry should also examine hazing incidents occurring within government-run institutions, including the Philippine National Police Academy and the Philippine Military Academy." It's sad to think that hazing is happening right within our own government institutions that should be setting a good example," Gatchalian said. "If our own institutions are violating our own laws, we have a big problem." He added that institutions tasked with upholding the law should be the first to comply with it." I think this time we should also focus on our own government institutions. This shouldn't be happening in the institutions we trust to enforce the law against hazing," the senator said. RA 11053 strengthened earlier laws against hazing by imposing stricter penalties, regulating initiation rites, and holding fraternity officers and school officials accountable for violations. Despite the measure, several hazing-related deaths and injuries have continued to surface in recent years, prompting renewed calls from lawmakers and advocacy groups for stricter enforcement and cultural reforms within fraternities and similar organizations.

- CPD: New Legislation Needed to Curb Rising Philippine Teenage Pregnancies (2026-03-14 16:06)

THE Commission on Population and Development (CPD) on Saturday urged Congress to pass legislation aimed at curbing the rising number of teenage pregnancies in the country. According to the Philippine Statistics Authority, the birth rate among girls ages 10 to 14 increased to 8.9 percent in 2024, with a total of 3,612 registered births. Data also showed that of that number, two girls were only 10 years old. In a statement, CPD Undersecretary Lisa Grace Bersales said such cases highlight the need for stronger measures to prevent adolescent pregnancies." Preventing adolescent pregnancy is about protecting the future of young Filipinas — ensuring that they can become the leaders, professionals and changemakers our nation needs," Bersales said. The highest numbers of adolescent births were recorded in Region 4A (Calabarzon), with 474; Region 3 (Central Luzon), 445; National Capital Region, 374; and Region 12 (Soccsksargen), 302. These regions, which are among the most populous in the country, face significant challenges in providing young people with access to age-appropriate information and health services." These numbers tell us that the problem is widespread and deeply rooted. Population size partly explains the numbers, but they also show where we must intensify information campaigns and youth-friendly health services," Bersales said. As the nation celebrates National Women's Month, Bersales told Congress it is high time to fast-track and pass the Adolescent Pregnancy Prevention Bill, which aims to institutionalize comprehensive reproductive health education and expand adolescent-friendly health services in remote areas. The commission is also supporting a proposal to create a quintet committee to harmonize the various versions of the bill. Besides legislative measures, Bersales stressed that preventing adolescent pregnancies starts at home." We need parents who can talk openly with their children. We need teachers who are trained and supported. We need communities that choose to protect their young people. It really takes a village to raise a child. We cannot allow more children to lose their childhood because they were forced into motherhood,” Bersales said.

- MMDA eyes ‘sponge city’ systems vs flood (2026-03-14 16:05)

(UPDATE) THE Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA) is advancing the Metro Manila Sponge City Project to improve flood management in parts of the capital region through nature-based solutions and integrated sponge city systems. The agency announced on Friday evening that MMDA Chairman Don Artes and Finance Secretary Frederick Go led discussions on next steps and preparations before the project implementation, with support from the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB). In the past few days, the AIIB and the MMDA conducted discussions, site visits and courtesy calls with partner local governments to gather insights into flooding and possible solutions under the sponge city approach. The sponge city concept integrates distributed green-blue systems with existing drainage infrastructure to help absorb, store and control rainwater from heavy rainfall. Artes described the concept as a “new approach” to flood management that allows rainwater to be managed more naturally through landscape-based interventions while easing pressure on conventional drainage systems. The initiative is anchored on building resilient, integrated infrastructure systems aligned with the Philippine Development Plan. Officials said the project is expected to run for about five years and is targeted to begin next year. The program will include several components, such as water-retention interventions and the development of green public spaces, designed to help manage stormwater. As part of these efforts, the MMDA is developing a linear park along the San Juan River easement, wherein nature-based flood management solutions will be incorporated. The agency is also coordinating with various sectors to identify locations for rainwater-impounding facilities for excess rainwater during periods of heavy rainfall.

- PH commits to peaceful use of nuclear energy (2026-03-14 16:04)

THE Philippines reaffirmed its commitment to nuclear disarmament, non-proliferation, and the peaceful use of nuclear technology during the recent meeting of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) board of governors held from March 2 to 6, 2026. The statement came as the Philippines continues its two-year term as a member of the IAEA’s 35-seat governing board, following its election in September 2025. During the meeting at the agency’s headquarters in Vienna, Evangelina Bernas, the country’s permanent representative and ambassador to the IAEA, highlighted the Philippines’ ongoing efforts to promote the safe and peaceful applications of nuclear science and technology. “These initiatives demonstrate the country’s commitment to advancing the safe, secure, and peaceful applications of nuclear science and technology,” Bernas said. New nuclear safety law Bernas cited the enactment of Republic Act (RA) 12305, signed by President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. in September 2025, as a key milestone in strengthening the country’s nuclear governance framework. The law establishes the Philippine Atomic Energy Authority (PhilATOM), an independent regulatory body tasked with overseeing all nuclear and radiation-related activities in the country. PhilATOM will ensure that nuclear energy development in the Philippines complies with the highest international safety and security standards set by the IAEA. The legislation forms part of the government's broader effort to explore nuclear power as a potential source of clean and secure energy as the country transitions toward more sustainable energy resources. Bernas also highlighted the Philippines' hosting of the International High-Level Forum on Nutech Plastics held on Nov. 23–24, 2025, in Pasay. The forum gathered more than 400 participants, including 140 delegates from 59 countries and high-level representatives from Indonesia, Hungary, Kuwait, South Africa and Thailand. The event focused on the use of nuclear science and related technologies to address plastic pollution, including techniques that can track microplastics in marine environments and improve plastic recycling processes. Officials said the forum also promoted partnerships among governments, scientists and industry stakeholders in advancing circular economy practices and environmental sustainability.

- Comelec to release teacher honoraria on election day, scrap 15-day wait (2026-03-14 16:03)

THE Commission on Elections (Comelec) said it will adopt a policy to ensure teachers receive their honoraria on election day, rather than waiting 10 to 15 days after the polls close.” In fact, in the next elections, that is what we will do. The 10 to 15 days will be gone. At the time that the equipment is being delivered, the teachers’ honoraria should also be given,” Comelec Chairman George Erwin Garcia said on Saturday during the special election for the 2nd Congressional District of Antipolo City. Election officials and teachers began preparing precincts before dawn Saturday, as the special polls aimed to fill the congressional seat left vacant following the death of former representative Romeo Acop in December 2025. While voting continues to be conducted manually in the district, Garcia emphasized that the timely release of honoraria reflects the commission’s commitment to modernizing administrative processes without compromising election integrity. Garcia assured public school teachers serving in the Antipolo special election that their honoraria would match what they received during the May 2025 National and Local Elections.” We decided that whatever honoraria the teachers received during the previous election last May 12 of the National and Local Elections, that is also what our teachers here in the special election in Antipolo will receive,” Garcia said. He added that the initiative is part of broader efforts to refine election procedures and improve operational efficiency. By ensuring that election personnel are promptly compensated, the poll body hopes to encourage participation and maintain high standards of professionalism among teachers who serve as board members.

- Some Pasay, Manila roads to close early Sunday for running event (2026-03-14 16:02)

SEVERAL roads in Pasay City will be temporarily closed today, March 15, for the 2026 Sante Barley Trilogy Run, according to the city’s Traffic and Parking Management Office. Road closures will take effect from 1:30 a.m. until 7 a.m. to ensure participants’ safety and for the smooth conduct of the event. Among the roads affected in Pasay are SM MOA Block 16/20, Seaside corner Macapagal Avenue, Diokno Avenue, Buendia Extension with zipper lane, Jalandoni Street northbound, Sotto Street with zipper lane, Roxas Boulevard southbound going to Manila and Atang Dela Rama Street with zipper lane on the PICC side. The Manila Police District Public Information Office said additional road closures will also be implemented on several major Manila roads that form part of the race route. These include the northbound lane of Roxas Boulevard from Quirino Avenue to Katigbak Drive and the southbound lane from P. Ocampo Avenue to Katigbak Drive. Also affected are the westbound lanes of Quirino Avenue from Adriatico Street to Roxas Boulevard and TM Kalaw Avenue from MH del Pilar Street to Roxas Boulevard, as well as portions of P. Burgos Avenue from Roxas Boulevard to Jones Bridge southbound. Other roads included on the list of closed roads are Bonifacio Drive from Anda Circle to Katigbak Drive, Maria Orosa Street from P. Burgos Avenue to Kalaw Avenue, Finance Road from P. Burgos Avenue to Taft Avenue, Victoria Street from P. Burgos Avenue to Muralla Street, the southbound lane of Jones Bridge and Magallanes Drive fronting the Bureau of Immigration. The MPD-PIO said the closing and reopening of affected roads will depend on the actual traffic situation during the event. Authorities also released rerouting measures for motorists traveling through the affected areas. Vehicles coming from the McArthur and Quezon bridges, intending to use Roxas Boulevard southbound, will be diverted to P. Burgos Avenue toward Taft Avenue, while vehicles from Kalaw Avenue heading to Roxas Boulevard southbound will be directed to turn left to MH del Pilar Street. Motorists coming from Maria Orosa Street and A. Mabini Street will be directed to Kalaw Avenue toward Taft Avenue, while vehicles from UN Avenue intending to use Roxas Boulevard will be diverted to the Roxas Boulevard service road. Vehicles from Bonifacio Drive will be required to turn around at Anda Circle, and those coming from Plaza Cervantes intending to use Jones Bridge will be redirected through the Escolta underpass or San Vicente Street toward MacArthur Bridge. Authorities also advised heavy vehicles coming from Osmeña Highway northbound or Roxas Boulevard northbound to turn right onto President Quirino Avenue. Truck drivers coming from Mel Lopez Boulevard (R-10) heading to Roxas Boulevard will be diverted via Capulong Street, Yuseco Street and Lacson Avenue, which authorities identified as the old truck route. In a Facebook post, the MPD advised motorists to familiarize themselves with the road closures and the routing schemes during the event. It added that the opening and closing of the roads will depend on vehicular traffic flow.

- PH, Singapore to boost trade, investment, AI, clean energy (2026-03-14 14:15)

MANILA, Philippines — The Philippines and Singapore have agreed to strengthen cooperation in trade, investment, and key industries such as artificial intelligence (AI) and clean energy, President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. said Saturday. The President issued the statement after meeting with Singaporean Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for Trade and Industry Gan Kim Yong in Malacañang on Thursday. “I had a productive meeting with Singapore Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for Trade and Industry Gan Kim Yong on how the Philippines and Singapore can work more closely in trade, investment, and emerging industries such as artificial intelligence and clean energy,” Marcos said in a Facebook post. “As ASEAN works toward a more integrated and competitive region, closer cooperation between our countries helps strengthen our economies, create more opportunities for Filipinos, and keep the Philippines ready for the future,” he added.

- Minor irregularities in Antipolo polls not expected to affect outcome, Comelec clarifies
(2026-03-14 13:51)

The Commission on Elections (Comelec) said Saturday’s special election in Antipolo City’s 2nd District proceeded smoothly, with all complaints and reported irregularities properly documented and addressed to uphold the integrity of the vote. Comelec Chairman George Garcia said allegations of election offenses were immediately referred to the city election officer and the Comelec Law Department. “Minutes of all incidents and complaints were carefully recorded. Only documented incidents can form the basis for legal proceedings,” Garcia said, emphasizing that the system ensures accountability while distinguishing minor procedural issues from substantive offenses. Garcia cited several reported irregularities during the day, including the alleged distribution of sample ballots inside precincts despite rules prohibiting electioneering on election day. Children were also prevented from distributing ballots in line with Republic Act 7166 and the Omnibus Election Code. Poll watchers also filed complaints regarding voter conduct and the actions of supporters, which were immediately referred to the city election officer for verification and documentation. Concerns were likewise raised over voter registration, particularly deactivated voters whose names were missing from precinct lists after missing previous elections or whose registration had yet to be approved by the Election Registration Board. Garcia clarified that isolated incidents—such as improper handling of campaign materials or disputes over voter eligibility—do not invalidate the election. “Only substantial irregularities that could affect the outcome of the vote may lead to legal action,” he said. He stressed that all complaints submitted by poll watchers or observers were incorporated into the official minutes, ensuring proper documentation that could serve as evidence if legal action becomes necessary. “It’s important that issues are formally recorded rather than discussed informally,” Garcia said, warning that unrecorded incidents have no legal weight. Garcia added that the Comelec Law Department would review all complaints and pursue appropriate action when warranted. Election offenses detected during the day may lead to sanctions, including possible prosecution. “The procedures we implemented ensure transparency, accountability, and fairness,” Garcia said. “All voters can be confident that complaints are treated seriously and the integrity of the election is maintained.”

- 340 Filipinos from Riyadh to arrive aboard 2nd govt-chartered flight on March 15

MANILA, Philippines – The second batch of overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) repatriated from the Middle East amid the ongoing war is scheduled to arrive in Manila on Sunday, March 15, Malacañang said Saturday. Acting Presidential Communications Secretary Dave Gomez said Philippine Airlines flight PR8502 from Riyadh, Saudi Arabia is expected to land at Ninoy Aquino International Airport at 6:35 a.m. It will be the second one to be chartered by the Philippine government since the Middle East conflict broke out on Feb. 28, 2026. “Authorities and support teams will be on standby at the airport to assist the arriving passengers. The repatriates will also be provided with assistance to facilitate their return to their respective home provinces," Gomez said in a statement. The first flight carrying repatriated Filipinos from Dubai arrived on March 5. At a press briefing at NAIA Terminal 3 in Pasay City on Saturday, Overseas Workers Welfare Administration head Patricia Yvonne Caunan said on top of those stranded due to flight disruptions, majority of the OFWs on board were tagged as "distressed." A total of 16 crossed Saudi Arabia from Bahrain. "Authorities and support teams will be on standby at the airport to assist the arriving passengers," the PCO said. "The repatriates will also be provided with assistance to facilitate their return to their respective home provinces." The repatriation of the displaced Filipinos from the Middle East is part of the Philippine government's continuing efforts to assist those affected by heightened tensions in the region. More flights The Sunday arrival of the 340 will bring the total number of OFWs assisted by the government to over 1,000. Caunan said commercial and chartered flights for next week were being organized for 400 more OFWs awaiting repatriation. "They are being prepared for the flight home, meaning those who need visa and those who need to cross to pick up points," she said. "Ito talaga 'yung (This really is the) core government repatriation. From addressing their welfare needs up to purchasing their tickets, renting the bus from point A to the airport, then bringing them home." Migrant Workers Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac said pre- and post-repatriation assistance would be provided to all returning Filipinos, including psychosocial services and government-funded airfare to their provinces. The first Philippine government chartered flight carrying 442 Filipinos from the United Arab Emirates, including OFWs and stranded tourists, arrived at NAIA Terminal 3 in Pasay City on Saturday afternoon.

MANILA, Philippines — Over 400 Filipinos arrived home from the Middle East on Saturday, amid the ongoing war in the region, Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac said in a Facebook post on the same day. Cacdac was on board a government-chartered Boeing 747-400 flight from Dubai, United Arab Emirates. Among the Filipinos on board were 200 overseas Filipino workers (OFWs). "We have landed. [Some] 442 Filipinos from the UAE on the PHL Government-chartered B747-400 flight, as directed by President [Ferdinand Marcos Jr., are home," he wrote. Cacdac's short video showed himself with some of the Filipinos thanking the government. The DMW said their chief and the Filipinos landed at Ninoy Aquino International Airport Terminal 3 at noontime on Saturday.

- Congress urged to pass measures to curb rising teenage pregnancies (2026-03-14 05:25)

MANILA, Philippines—The Commission on Population and Development (CPD) on Saturday urged Congress to pass legislation aimed at curbing the rising number of teenage pregnancies in the country. According to the Philippine Statistics Authority (PSA), the birth rate among girls aged 10-14 years old has increased to 8.9 percent in 2024, with a total of 3,612 registered births. The data also showed that of that number, two of them were only 10 years old. In a statement, CPD Undersecretary Lisa Grace Bersales said such cases highlighted the need for stronger measures to prevent adolescent pregnancies. “Preventing adolescent pregnancy is about protecting the future of young Filipinas—ensuring that they can become the leaders, professionals, and changemakers our nation needs,” Bersales said.

- Govt moves to cushion airline passengers from jet fuel spike (2026-03-14 05:23)

MANILA, Philippines — The Philippine government has begun implementing measures to help ease the burden on airline passengers following a sharp increase in global jet fuel prices triggered by the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. According to the Department of Transportation (DOTr), it is working with the Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines (CAAP) and the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) to mitigate the potential impact of rising fuel costs on airfares. Government monitoring showed that the price of jet fuel nearly doubled in recent weeks, climbing from $90.87 per barrel on Feb. 19 to $188.20 per barrel on March 9. In response, Transportation Secretary Giovanni Lopez directed CAAP to reduce Passenger Service Charges (PSC) and airport navigation charges in all airports operated by the aviation authority. The move is intended to help airlines lower operating costs amid the surge in fuel prices. The CAB has also shortened the evaluation and implementation period for adjustments in fuel surcharges. The process, which previously took about a month, has been reduced to 15 days to allow faster reflection of any decline in jet fuel prices in airline fares. The government said it continued to monitor developments in the global fuel market and was coordinating with stakeholders in the aviation industry to ensure that air travel remained safe, reliable, and affordable for the public.

- ‘Sponge city’ systems eyed to improve Metro Manila flood control (2026-03-14 05:17)

MANILA, Philippines — The Metropolitan Manila Development Authority is advancing the Metro Manila Sponge City Project aimed at improving flood management in parts of the capital through nature-based solutions and integrated sponge city systems. The agency announced on Friday evening that MMDA Chairman Don Artes and Finance Secretary Frederick Go led discussions on the next steps and preparations before the project moves toward implementation with support from the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank. In the past few days, the AIIB and the MMDA conducted discussions, site visits and courtesy calls with partner local governments to gather insights on flooding problems and possible solutions under the sponge city approach. Artes described the sponge city concept as a “new approach” that integrated distributed green-blue systems with conventional drainage infrastructure to help absorb, store and control rainwater brought by heavy rains and typhoons. The project is expected to run for about five years and is targeted to begin next year. Officials said the program would include several components such as water retention interventions and the development of green public spaces. The MMDA is also developing a linear park along the San Juan River easement that will incorporate nature-based solutions.

- Counsel for drug victims ask ICC to reject Duterte defense appeal vs 2 external lawyers (2026-03-14 05:12)

MANILA, Philippines — The common legal representatives for victims (CLRVs) in the case against former president Rodrigo Duterte have called on Pre-Trial Chamber I to reject the defense's application for leave to appeal a decision that denied the disqualification of two external lawyers, describing the request as "hasty" and legally deficient. In a response filed on March 13, 2026, lawyers Joel Butuyan and Gilbert Andres urged the Chamber to deny the defense request, arguing that it failed to meet the stringent requirements for an interlocutory appeal under Article 82(1)(d) of the Rome Statute. The dispute stemmed from a defense motion filed on Feb. 11, 2026, seeking the disqualification of Butuyan and Andres, who were appointed by the Registry as external CLRVs in the case. On Feb. 20, 2026, the Chamber rejected that disqualification request. The defense filed its request for leave to appeal that rejection just hours later on the same day. In their response, Butuyan and Andres argued that the defense has not identified an appealable "issue" arising from the Impugned Decision. They noted the Chamber's own established jurisprudence, which defines an appealable issue as one that requires a decision for its resolution, not merely a question of disagreement. "The bulk of the defense's arguments focus on its disagreements with the submissions of Mr. Butuyan and Mr. Andres," the filing stated. "Given this stark lack of reference to the actual, relevant parts of the impugned decision, the defense merely expresses its disagreement with the outcome of the Chamber's deliberation." The victims' lawyers further contend that the defense's continued challenges to the victims' choice of counsel are dilatory and unfair to the victims, who have a right to expeditious access to justice. They noted that the confirmation of charges hearing has already been delayed for five months. "Without having gone through the substance of the pre-trial proceedings... defense counsel has revealed a penchant, or perhaps more fittingly a strategy, for tactics that simply delay and dramatize the proceedings, before they even occur," the response reads. The filing specifically takes issue with the defense's argument regarding potential conflicts of interest involving a team member of the external CLRVs. The victims' lawyers maintain that the defense has not substantiated any actual conflict under the relevant provisions of the Code of Professional Conduct for counsel. "The defense does not substantiate how the distinction between case manager and associate of counsel... is 'artificial' based on any illustrative facets of the working roles," the document stated. Butuyan and Andres also criticized the defense for referencing Article 64 of the Statute, which pertains to the functions of a Trial Chamber, rather than Article 57, which applies to the Pre-Trial Chamber. They argued this indicated the defense was attempting to adjudicate trial-specific issues that have not yet arisen. The external CLRVs also invoked Article 27 of the Code of Professional Conduct, beseeching the defense to "act in good faith, acknowledge when the decisions made by the Chamber are definitive and comprehensive, and refrain from further wasting the time and resources of the Court in adjudicating non-issues."

- Pasay roads closed early Sunday for running event (2026-03-14 05:00)

MANILA, Philippines — Several roads in Pasay City will be temporarily closed on Sunday for the 2026 Sante Barley Trilogy Run, according to the city's Traffic and Parking Management Office. The closures will take effect from 1:30 a.m. to 7 a.m. to ensure the safety of participants and allow the event to proceed smoothly. Affected roads include SM MOA Block 16/20, Seaside corner Macapagal Avenue, Diokno Avenue, Buendia Extension with zipper lane, Jalandoni Street northbound, Sotto Street with zipper lane, Roxas Boulevard going to Manila southbound, and Atang Dela Rama Street with zipper lane on the PICC side. Pasay traffic officials advised motorists to plan their trips ahead and take alternative routes during the temporary road closure. Normal traffic flow is expected to resume once the roads reopen at 7 a.m. The Santé Barley Trilogy Run, according to its website, was formerly known as RUNRIO Trilogy. It made its debut in the Philippines in 2010 under Rio de la Cruz, the president and founder of Runrio Inc. "With a goal of igniting and nurturing passion for running in the country, the series focused on progressive running and training," according to the website. Trilogy Run Asia has "strategically designed its distances, guiding participants from 5k to 42k races. This approach ensures that runners remain injury-free and enjoy every step of their journey," it said. "Since its inception, Trilogy Run Asia has become a celebrated platform, reviving the popularity of running in the Philippines. As the Trilogy expands its influence, it now aims higher, setting its sights on new territories in Southeast Asia," it said.

- Comelec: Antipolo special elections rolled out, to serve as testing ground for nationwide polls (2026-03-14 04:37)

MANILA, Philippines — The special election in Antipolo City's second district on Saturday rolled out smoothly and was expected to be a testing ground for improvements that could be applied in future nationwide elections, according to Commission on Elections (Comelec) Chairman George Garcia. Teachers and poll watchers arrived at the polling precincts as early as 3 a.m.. While teachers prepared election materials, watchers from political parties and candidates set up for the expected arrival of voters. Garcia noted, however, that preparations were also made to assist elderly voters and persons with disabilities (PWDs). He said that 5 a.m. to 7 a.m. had been set aside primarily for vulnerable sectors, including senior citizens and PWDs, to allow them to vote without facing long lines or overcrowding. "This early voting window is critical for our elderly and voters with disabilities," Garcia said, noting that the arrangement helped them avoid the usual problems experienced in previous elections such as long queues, congestion and heat. Garcia said many seniors and PWDs were already able to cast their ballots early in the day, benefiting from cooler weather and more orderly polling conditions. In some cases, however, election officials also allowed other voters to cast ballots earlier than scheduled if there were no queues at polling stations. Garcia said the Comelec had instructed members of the electoral boards that if polling places were already open and there were voters present who might not be able to return later — such as those heading to work — they could be allowed to vote even before the 7 a.m. opening to the general public. "If there is no crowd and the polling place is already open, there is no reason to prevent someone from voting," he said, adding that the main purpose of opening schools early was to make voting more accessible and efficient. Garcia also pointed to the use of Priority Polling Places (PPP) designed to make voting easier for seniors and PWDs who may have difficulty climbing stairs to upper-floor classrooms where precincts are usually located. Under the system, vulnerable voters may stay at the PPP, typically located on the ground floor, while a designated assistant retrieves their ballot from their assigned precinct. To ensure security, ballots are not stored at the PPP. Instead, the voter signs a waiver authorizing an election assistant to collect the ballot from the proper precinct. The ballot is then brought to the PPP where the voter fills it out. Once accomplished, the ballot is either returned by the assistant to the designated precinct for insertion into the vote-counting machine or, if the voter prefers, the voter may personally bring the ballot to the precinct with assistance from support staff. Garcia acknowledged that minor confusion sometimes would arise when some senior citizens or PWDs would insist on personally bringing their ballots to their assigned precincts despite using the PPP. “Some of them still want to personally drop their ballots into the machine,” he said, adding that election staff continue to assist them in doing so safely if they prefer. Opportunities Garcia said the Comelec treated special elections as opportunities to refine procedures and identify adjustments that could make future polls more efficient and orderly. “Special elections help us study what changes we need to make so that future elections will run more smoothly,” he said. He cited a previous special election in Cavite that followed the vacancy created when Ombudsman Jesus Crispin Remulla left his congressional seat after being appointed secretary of the Department of Justice. Voting across polling precincts in the second district of Antipolo proceeded without major problems as of Saturday morning, with election officials monitoring developments through the commission’s operations center. Unlike regular national and local elections in the Philippines, the Antipolo special election used manual vote counting, a system Garcia acknowledged would take longer than automated elections. He said canvassing of votes was expected to begin around 6 p.m. after voting ends and may continue through the night. Despite the manual process, Garcia expressed confidence that the results would be known quickly because only one position is being contested. “Manual elections are slower, although it helps that there is only one position being contested,” he said, adding that the commission expects to proclaim the winning candidate by Sunday morning. Garcia also sought to address concerns about the integrity of manual vote counting, saying extensive security measures were in place to safeguard the process. Personnel from the Philippine National Police and the Armed Forces of the Philippines were deployed across the province to secure polling areas, while poll watchers from political parties and candidates were present in precincts. “With the presence of security forces and watchers from the parties and candidates, it is impossible for irregularities to happen,” Garcia said. He also noted that elections in Rizal Province have historically been peaceful and that the province has never been classified as a critical election hotspot.

- Body of slain OFW returns home from Israel (2026-03-14 03:49)

MANILA, Philippines — The remains of a Filipino caregiver who was killed by an Iranian missile strike in Israel at the start of the war in the Middle East arrived early Saturday, the government said. The Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) and the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA) said Mary Ann De Vera’s husband, Bernie Lavarias, along with DMW Undersecretaries Barnard Olalia, Felicitas Bay, Dominique Rubia-Tutay, OWWA Administrator

Patricia Yvonne Caunan, Deputy Administrator Ryan Vincent Uy, Israel Ambassador to the Philippines Dana Kursh, and AGIMAT party-list Rep. Bryan Revilla were present for the Filipina who died from shrapnel wounds in Tel Aviv. The OFW's remains were transported to Pangasinan, her hometown. Lavarias met on Thursday with Israeli President Isaac Herzog who expressed his condolences.

- Oil holds above \$100, stocks fall (2026-03-13 16:17)

OIL prices held gains above $100 on Friday and most equity markets dropped after Iran's leader called for the blocking of the crucial Strait of Hormuz and the opening up of new fronts in the war against the United States and Israel. With the conflict heading toward its third week and showing no signs of ending, investors are growing increasingly worried about an extended crisis that could fan inflation and hammer the global economy. Tehran has targeted energy facilities this week across the Gulf, with ships hit near Iraq, fuel tanks attacked in Bahrain and drones fired at oil fields in Saudi Arabia. And it warned on Thursday that it would "set the region's oil and gas on fire" if its own energy infrastructure and ports were targeted. In his first public comments since succeeding his father four days ago, Ayatollah Mojtaba Khamenei said the Strait of Hormuz — through which a fifth of global oil and gas passes — must remain effectively shut. "The lever of blocking the Strait of Hormuz must definitely be used," Khamenei said in a message read by an anchor on state television. He also said "studies have been conducted into opening other fronts where the enemy has little experience and would be highly vulnerable, and their activation will take place if the state of war persists." Crude surged more than 9 percent on Thursday, with Brent ending above $100 for the first time since 2022 when Russia launched its invasion of Ukraine. Brent is up around 40 percent since the Middle East war began on Feb. 28. And it held there in early Friday business, with analysts saying the record 400 million barrels released from International Energy Agency (IEA) stockpiles had little impact. The IEA said Thursday that the war "is creating the largest supply disruption in the history of the global oil market." Meanwhile, US President Donald Trump has faced intense political pressure as the global economic fallout of the crisis has mounted, while markets have brushed off his assertions that the battle would be short-lived. Trump struck a defiant tone in a social media post on Thursday, writing that the United States "is the largest Oil Producer in the World, by far, so when oil prices go up, we make a lot of money." "BUT, of far greater interest and importance to me, as President, is stopping an evil Empire, Iran, from having Nuclear Weapons, and destroying the Middle East and, indeed, the World." However, Pepperstone's Chris Weston said: "With crude closing near its highs, markets are increasingly pricing in a longer duration for the conflict and the continued impact of a potential closure of the Strait of Hormuz. "Donald Trump may continue to explore the idea of assisting vessels through the strait, and if that were to materialize, the market could see a strong relief rally. For now, however, the dominant features are higher energy prices and extremely elevated volatility markets," Weston said. As concerns over the impact mount, equity traders are taking flight, with Asian economies most at risk owing to their reliance on energy imports. Tokyo, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Singapore, Seoul, Mumbai, Bangkok, Wellington, Manila and Jakarta were all down. The dollar held its gains against major rivals owing to its safe-haven status, fears of inflation and expectations that interest rates will remain elevated longer than expected. Matt Weller, head of market research at City Index, warned that markets could be in for more pain after years of generally strong equity markets, subdued energy prices and broadly low interest rates. “Those trends have reversed, and the default assumption as long as the Strait of Hormuz remains functionally closed is that stocks will be under pressure, oil prices will trend higher and interest rates will tick up in unison,” he wrote. “Unless or until we see meaningful progress toward a ceasefire in the Middle East, traders should shift their expectations that the coming weeks and months will look different than the past couple of years, weighing on risk appetite at an accelerating rate.”

- ICI ends 90-day stint on March 31 (2026-03-13 16:16)

THE Independent Commission for Infrastructure (ICI) will wind down operations on March 31, its chairman Andres Reyes said Friday, after transmitting all documents and findings on the flood control anomalies to the Office of the Ombudsman. In a statement, Reyes said the ICI has turned over to the Office of the Ombudsman all documents, evidence and findings gathered in the course of its investigation, as previously reported in the commission's 125-Day Report submitted to the Office of the President on Feb. 6. Reyes said that while the ICI only functioned as a collegial body for 90 days, it was able to submit nine referrals covering 65 individuals to the Ombudsman, as well as convened the technical working group including 20 agencies for asset recovery. He said the panel developed three information systems designed to detect fraud and other irregularities in infrastructure projects. “With these frameworks and systems now in place, I believe that the Commission has fulfilled its mandate under Executive Order 94, and that the work initiated by the ICI is now properly situated to be carried forward by the agencies established by law,” Reyes said. President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. created the ICI in September as a nonpartisan, fact-finding body to investigate alleged irregularities in flood control and other infrastructure projects over the past 10 years. Reyes is the ICI's last remaining member. Commissioner Rogelio Singson resigned in December, citing health and security concerns, while Commissioner Rossana Fajardo stepped down after completing the work she set out to accomplish. Reyes said that the ICI has established the investigative framework and methodology that can be adopted and replicated by statutory prosecutorial agencies in “examining the full universe of anomalous infrastructure projects.” “While these represent only the initial phase of a much broader investigative and restitution effort, these accomplishments demonstrate that, with strong interagency coordination, proper investigations can be conducted which could ultimately lead to the successful prosecution of those responsible and the recovery of stolen public funds,” he said. “I call on the Technical Working Group for Asset Recovery to continue its restitution efforts based on the guidance provided by the Commission,” he said. Reyes said he was glad that Malacañang demanded to prioritize the pending Senate and House bills that proposed the establishment of the Independent Peoples' Commission and the Independent Commission Against Infrastructure Corruption. “I hope that Congress will promptly act on these bills,” he said. He also urged “government institutions involved in the implementation and oversight of infrastructure projects to act on the Commission's recommendations for their respective offices to improve transparency, strengthen controls, enhance coordination, reinforce accountability and prevent the recurrence of infrastructure-related irregularities." Reyes asked the public to remain vigilant and steadfast in ensuring that those responsible are held accountable and brought to justice. "May we always remember that crime does not, and should never, pay. No one is, and should ever be, above the law," he said.

- After fuel prices, water rates could surge next (2026-03-13 16:15)

ALREADY burdened by a spike in fuel prices, the public must brace for an impending increase in their water bill. The Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System Regulatory Office (MWSS) said on Friday water rates will go up in the second quarter, which starts in April. The rates reflect changes in the foreign currency differential adjustment (FCDA), a tariff mechanism used by the concessionaires Manila Water and Maynilad to pass on gains or losses from foreign exchange rate fluctuations on loans to customers. Manila Water applied for an FCDA of 0.76 percent or 39 centavos per cubic meter of its 2026 Average Basic Charge of P50.70 per cubic meter. The adjustment would mean an increase of 14 centavos, 29 centavos and 58 centavos per month for regular Manila Water customers consuming 10 cubic meters, 20 cubic meters and 30 cubic meters, respectively. For Maynilad, the MWSS approved a tariff increase of 22 centavos per cubic meter. Maynilad customers consuming 10 cubic meters will be charged 27 centavos more, those consuming 20 cubic meters P1 more and those consuming 30 cubic meters P2.07 more. The increase will not affect Maynilad and Manila Water residential customers that qualify for the lifeline rate of less than 10 cubic meters. Fuel prices, meanwhile, will continue to spiral next week. A local oil industry source said diesel prices could soar to between P19.30 and P22.30 per liter, and gasoline between P14 and P17 per liter. There were projections for kerosene. It will be the ninth consecutive week diesel and gasoline prices will increase. "Fuel prices are expected to greatly increase again next as the war in the Middle East continues on. It is also possible that those increases could be greater than this week because of the continuing rise in Mean of Platts, Singapore prices and the prospect of hefty related costs already factored in," the source said. Malacañang met oil industry executives last Thursday to ensure a steady supply of fuel products and prevent excessive price increases amid global oil market volatility. "This is pursuant to the directive of the President (Ferdinand Marcos Jr.) to protect our people from the impact of surging oil prices," said Executive Secretary Ralph Recto, who led the government delegation with Energy Secretary Sharon Garin. Recto also cited the president's recent move to certify as urgent a bill allowing the suspension or reduction of excise taxes on petroleum products during economic emergencies. "The President wants the bill on his desk immediately so he can sign it," he said. Recto said the oil executives assured the government that operational challenges in bringing fuel supplies to the country remain manageable. "If the war in the affected region will further choke oil supply, the alternatives are already being explored, per the President's instructions," Recto said. Garin directed oil companies to see to it that gas stations adjust prices in a manner that reflects real market conditions. Any premature, excessive or unreasonable increase in fuel prices will not be tolerated and will be dealt with firmly, she said. The Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) has begun preparations for providing fuel subsidies to thousands of public utility vehicle operators that will be affected by rising oil prices. The move follows directives from Transportation Secretary Giovanni Lopez, who instructed the LTFRB to ensure that the subsidy program could be implemented quickly once funds are available. LTFRB Chairman Vigor Mendoza II said the agency has started coordinating with relevant government offices and completing documentary requirements to enable immediate release of subsidy funds to beneficiaries. “Our job is to make sure there is a fast distribution system the moment the funds are available,” Mendoza said. Under the subsidy mechanism, financial assistance will be triggered once global oil prices reach $80 per barrel. The government has earmarked around P2.5 billion for the program, which covers drivers and operators in the public transport sector. Mendoza said the agency has finalized the list of beneficiaries and instructed regional directors to coordinate with transport groups to facilitate preparations. “The fuel subsidy will be released as a one-time assistance package designed to offset more than a month of increases in petroleum product prices,” Mendoza added. Lopez also confirmed that motorcycle taxi riders will be included among the beneficiaries of the P5,000 assistance program intended for individuals in crisis situations. The aid is provided under special provisions in the 2025 national budget, which classify motorcycle taxi operators as part of ride-hailing services. Around 60,000 motorcycle taxi riders nationwide, including those in Metro Manila and Metro Cebu, could benefit from the program. Lopez acknowledged that the final list of beneficiaries is not yet complete as some sectors are still under pilot testing. Among the subsidy beneficiaries are the 2,500 tricycle drivers in Makati City. Makati Mayor Nancy Binay said on Friday the assistance aims to help tricycle drivers cope with increasing fuel costs while continuing to provide daily transport services. City officials said the subsidy rollout is scheduled on March 17 at the Makati City Hall Quadrangle.

- Marcos marks Grand Iftar with call for unity, peace (2026-03-13 16:14)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. called for unity, compassion and sustained efforts toward peace as he joined Muslim leaders and community members in celebrating Grand Iftar. The iftar is the evening meal that breaks the Muslims’ fast during Ramadan. It is considered as a time for gratitude, community and spiritual reflection. Speaking before Muslim leaders and guests gathered for the traditional meal in Malacañang on Thursday, the president stressed the importance of solidarity during the holy month of Ramadan in the face of the war in the Middle East and the ongoing peace efforts in Mindanao. “It is an honor to join you here today for iftar and share a meal with you. Your presence here affirms that our nation remains a place where people of every faith and background are always welcome in fellowship and with mutual respect,” he said. The president said that Ramadan is a time for families, neighbors and communities to come together, but acknowledged that the world is facing uncertainty and serious challenges, including tensions in the Middle East. He said many people closely follow developments in the region, noting that the conflict has implications not only for the international community but also for Filipinos, the economy and the daily lives of families. “We are likewise saddened and concerned about the rising human cost of the conflict,” he said, expressing sympathy for those affected, especially Muslims who should be observing the sacred month in peace. Marcos vowed to continue working to protect and reinforce the foundations of peace in the country. “Ramadan teaches us a powerful lesson in nation-building. A strong nation, after all, is built by citizens who have the heart and the discipline to put the welfare of others before their own,” the president said. He reiterated the administration’s support for peace and development in the Bangsamoro Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao, noting that progress in the region remains one of the country’s greatest hopes for lasting peace. Marcos said the journey toward peace and meaningful self-governance requires patience, dialogue and the willingness to pursue reconciliation. “Our work is not yet done. We remain steadfast that we will ensure the promise of peace translates into real opportunities for the Bangsamoro people and for all Filipinos,” he said. Marcos said gatherings such as the Grand Iftar help strengthen solidarity and understanding among Filipinos, regardless of faith or cultural background.

- Singapore helps fly out OFWs from Mideast (2026-03-13 16:13)

SINGAPORE has provided airline seats to other countries, including the Philippines, in the repatriation of Singaporeans stranded in the Middle East as a result of the United States-Israel war with Iran. Singapore’s Ambassador to Manila Constance See on Friday said at least 24 Filipinos were part of Singapore’s repatriation flight from Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. See said Singapore deployed a multirole tanker transport (MRTT) aircraft on March 12 to bring Singaporeans home safely from Jeddah. “After prioritizing Singaporeans and their families, we were glad that available seats could be extended to nationals from other countries, including 24 Filipinos,” See said in a statement. The flight landed in Singapore on March 13 at 5:59 a.m., the ambassador said. Singapore’s Ministry of Defense (Mindef) said there were 81 Singaporeans and their dependents who returned via the MRTT. After prioritizing and catering for Singaporeans who registered, available seats were also extended to nationals from Australia, Brunei, Indonesia, the Philippines, Sri Lanka and Vietnam, Mindef said. “This was very much a partnership. We worked in close coordination with the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) and the Philippine Consulate General in Jeddah to facilitate the Filipinos who joined the flight,” she said. See said the Philippine government, through the DFA and its missions, has “been mounting complex repatriation efforts to bring Filipinos home safely.” “Our flight complements those efforts. This is really Asean (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) solidarity in action, neighbors helping neighbors in difficult moments,” she said. “Our Asean neighbors have assisted Singaporeans in returning home in past crises,” See said. The Philippine Embassy in Cairo reported continued progress in assisting Filipinos leaving Israel, which had been targeted by Iranian missile strikes. On March 9, a team led by Vice Consul Bryan Fernandez facilitated the safe entry of the fourth batch of Filipinos from Israel into Egypt through the Taba border crossing. The group consisted of 16 overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) who had been working in Israel. Upon their arrival in Egypt, the embassy team assisted the OFWs in processing their immigration documents before they were turned over to the Overseas

Workers Welfare Administration Rapid Response Team stationed at the border. In a related development, the Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) on Friday announced the repatriation of 53 Filipino human trafficking victims from Cambodia. In a statement on its Facebook page, the DMW said the group arrived at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport on a Philippine Airlines flight from the Cambodian capital, Phnom Penh. It said the victims' return was coordinated by the Philippine Embassy in Phnom Penh and the DMW Rapid Response Team. The victims were brought to Cambodia through Telegram, a messaging app, and were promised salaries ranging from $600 to $1,000 and valid working visas. "One of the victims disclosed being subjected to abuse and made to do 300 push-ups, starved and denied salaries for failing to reach a quota of 26 love scam clients per day," the DMW said. Two of the returnees needed medical attention, one with kidney failure and another with a broken clavicle due to a vehicle accident. They were given medicines and referred for free treatment to government hospitals.

- House OKs two food-related bills (2026-03-13 16:12)

(UPDATE) THE House of Representatives has approved two bills on food donations and food security. House Bill (HB) 8043, a bill that aims to cut food surplus through donations, passed on third and final reading last Tuesday with over 240 lawmakers voting for it. The bill covers food manufacturers, restaurants, cafés, diners, fast-food chains, hotels, supermarkets with at least 500 square meters of selling space, culinary schools with at least 50 students and similar businesses as may be determined in the implementing rules. It requires the establishments to segregate "edible and inedible food surplus," and donate them to accredited food banks designated by the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD). Local government health inspectors will certify if the donation is fit for consumption. The DSWD will identify "food-insecure" persons or groups in coordination with local government units. Also on Tuesday, the House approved HB 8042, which sought to make Oct. 16 of every year National Food Security Day. The bill hurdled third and final reading with over 240 lawmakers voting for its passage. National Food Security will be a special working day. The Department of Agriculture (DA) will lead the yearly observance in coordination with the Department of Education, Commission on Higher Education, Department of the Interior and Local Government, National Nutrition Council, "and other relevant agencies." The DA will design activities, programs and information campaigns that highlight food security and self-sufficiency, sustainable agricultural practices, food waste reduction, nutrition awareness, and the role of farmers, fisherfolk and other food system stakeholders.

- DILG Releases Comprehensive Digital Map of Local Infrastructure Across Philippines (2026-03-13 16:11)

(UPDATE) THE Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) said it has digitally mapped more than 167,000 kilometers of local roads and over 17,000 bridges across the country through its enhanced Local Roads and Bridges Inventory (LRBI). The initiative has created one of the most comprehensive datasets on local infrastructure to support planning, disaster risk reduction, and local development, the department added. According to the DILG, the upgraded system recorded 167,103 kilometers of local roads and 17,229 bridges nationwide as part of the government's push to expand digital governance and ensure that infrastructure planning is guided by reliable and up-to-date data. The inventory is managed by the DILG's Office of Project Development Services, which oversees the collection and maintenance of infrastructure data from local government units (LGUs) across the country. Based on data as of Dec. 31, 2025, the system shows that 30,525.13 kilometers are provincial roads, 16,784.66 kilometers are city roads, 15,965.73 kilometers are municipal roads, and 103,828.26 kilometers are barangay roads. For bridges, the inventory lists 3,269 provincial bridges, 1,884 city bridges, and 12,076 municipal bridges nationwide. The DILG said the LRBI has been recognized under the Philippine Statistics Authority's System of Designated Statistics, making it an official decision-support tool for policymakers, planners, engineers, and development partners involved in infrastructure planning, disaster risk reduction, urban development, and local economic growth. According to the department, the upgraded platform now includes integrated road names, classifications on road importance, and an improved user interface that allows easier navigation and more detailed analysis of infrastructure needs and investment priorities. The DILG also urged LGUs to regularly update their road and bridge data in the system to ensure the accuracy and reliability of the national inventory. With more accessible and comprehensive information, the department said national agencies and local governments can better identify connectivity gaps, prioritize infrastructure investments, and align local development projects with broader national growth and disaster resilience strategies. The agency added that continued improvements to the LRBI form part of the government's broader push for stronger digital governance and more data-driven infrastructure planning to support local development across the country.

- P237.8M illegal drugs, P25.8M ‘hot’ items seized (2026-03-13 16:09)

OVER P237.8 million worth of illegal drugs and P25.8 million in smuggled goods were seized in a two-day operation from March 11-12, resulting in the arrest of most-wanted persons from Davao del Norte, Baguio City, South Cotabato, Misamis Oriental, Surigao del Sur, and regional-level suspects in Calabarzon and Laguna, the Philippine National Police (PNP) said. Their cases range from murder and statutory rape to violations of Republic Act (RA) 9165 and other criminal offenses. Notable arrests include a top-six most wanted in Davao del Norte for murder, a top-four suspect in Baguio City facing twenty-two counts of RA 7610 violations, and a top-two most wanted in Misamis Oriental for statutory rape. Joint teams of local police, Regional Investigation Units, CIDG field units, and special action companies conducted the two-day operations. Some suspects were taken into custody without bail, while others face recommended bail ranging from P36,000 to P4.4 million. During the anti-illegal drug operations, authorities confiscated 32,762 grams of suspected shabu, valued at P222.8 million, from high-value individuals in Quezon City, Butuan City, and Tawi-Tawi. In Benguet and Kalinga, police and Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency teams uprooted more than 60,000 fully grown marijuana plants, seized over 23,900 grams of dried stalks, with an estimated market value of P15 million. All five high-value individuals linked to these operations were arrested and are under proper custody for legal disposition. In separate anti-smuggling operations, 11 Chinese nationals were apprehended in Pampanga for illegally importing batteries valued at over P19 million, while smuggled cigarettes worth over P6 million were seized in Zamboanga City.

- Italian, 4 others ordered arrested for trafficking (2026-03-13 16:08)

THE Regional Trial Court (RTC) of Bacoor, Cavite has ordered the arrest of a London-based Italian and four alleged accomplices accused of illegally recruiting three Filipinos for overseas jobs but later forcing them to perform online sex shows. In an order dated March 4, Bacoor RTC Branch 119 said it found probable cause to indict Adel En Nouri and his co-accused for qualified trafficking in persons under Section 4(a) in relation to Section 6(c) of Republic Act 9208, as amended by RA 10364, or the Expanded Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act. Also ordered arrested were En Nouri's alleged Filipino cohorts Raffaella Razon, Krizia Ann Geronda Loyang, Ricardo Evangelista Fernandez, and Joshua Sy Lim. "Upon judicious examination of the amended information, the resolution of the public prosecutor and the attachments thereof, the Court finds probable cause for the indictment of accused Adel En Nouri," the court said. The court recommended no bail for the accused, noting that qualified human trafficking is a nonbailable offense. Nouri was initially excluded from the charges after prosecutors dismissed the complaint against him for insufficiency of evidence. However, the Bacoor City Prosecutor's Office later granted a motion for partial reconsideration filed by the complainants. In a resolution dated Feb. 27, 2026, Deputy City Prosecutor Michael Philip Silvala said the victims were able to identify En Nouri as the person who offered them jobs in Europe, received their placement fees, and allegedly coerced them into performing sexual acts online. “Respondent En Nouri only offered denial and alibi as his defense,” Silvala said. The Manila Times earlier this month reported that En Nouri, described as a London-based Italian, had already been the subject of multiple criminal complaints linked to alleged fraudulent recruitment schemes. As of March 2026, he is reportedly facing at least seven criminal cases in various Philippine courts, including in Bacoor City and Tanauan City. En Nouri had also reportedly been the subject of a separate complaint before the Pasay City Prosecutor’s Office filed by two Filipino women who claimed they were also forced to perform online sex shows.

- Pasay fire leaves 2 people dead, 50 families homeless (2026-03-13 16:07)

(UPDATE) A FIRE in a Pasay City residential area on Thursday evening killed two people and sent dozens of families to an evacuation center. The blaze broke out along P. Villanueva Street in Barangay 85 and quickly spread through houses made of light materials in the densely populated community. Firefighters raised the alarm as the flames engulfed closely packed houses, complicating response efforts. Authorities said the fire started at about 5:59 p.m. and was declared out at about 7:58 p.m., nearly two hours later. Initial reports said at least two people were killed in the incident, and about 50 families fled their burning homes. Pasay City Fire Supt. Alma Cassandra Gardose said that firefighters faced operational difficulties while responding to the blaze. “Aside from the lack of water supply, a big factor was the narrow streets. And also the number of residents bringing their belongings outside, which made our firefighters’ operations really difficult at the start,” Gardose told reporters. Authorities said the displaced families were temporarily staying at a nearby school while investigators determined the cause of the fire. Pasay City Mayor Emi Calixto-Rubiano later visited the affected community and coordinated assistance for displaced families as local officials arranged a temporary shelter and relief support for the victims.

- Pangilinan Urges Justice Reform Commission Amid Flood Control Scandal (2026-03-13 16:06)

SEN. Francis Pangilinan on Friday urged his colleagues to pass Senate Bill (SB) 1547, which seeks to create a Joint Congressional Commission on Justice System Reform tasked with conducting a comprehensive review of the Philippine justice system. Pangilinan, chairman of the Senate Committee on Justice and Human Rights, said the creation of a special body to examine structural weaknesses in the country’s justice sector is crucial amid the multibillion-peso flood control scandal that has drawn national attention since August last year. The senator described the proposal as an “extraordinary remedy” required during “extraordinary times,” referencing remarks previously made by former chief justice Reynato Puno. “This measure was introduced in the context of what could be the largest corruption scandal in the history of the Republic,” Pangilinan said in a statement. “Extraordinary times require extraordinary remedies, and the Congressional Commission on Justice Reform is precisely that.” Pangilinan said the commission would investigate long-standing weaknesses in the justice system, including low conviction rates and case backlogs that can last more than two decades. He stressed that without significant reforms, corruption and inefficiency could persist. “If we continue doing the same thing over and over again and expect different results, then massive corruption will remain unabated,” Pangilinan added, emphasizing the need for a deeper examination of institutional shortcomings. Under SB 1547, the proposed commission would conduct a data-driven review of the five pillars of the justice system: law enforcement, prosecution, the judiciary, the correctional system, and the community. The body would also be tasked with identifying systemic failures in public accountability mechanisms and recommending reforms for both legislative and executive action. If enacted, SB 1547 would establish a temporary high-level commission composed of representatives from Congress and other sectors to craft long-term reforms aimed at improving transparency, accountability, and efficiency across the country’s justice institutions.

- Senate Approves Fair Debt Collection Practices Act \(SB 1744\) to Protect Borrowers
(2026-03-13 16:05)

THE Senate approved on third and final reading Senate Bill 1744, which aims to protect borrowers from abusive and deceptive debt collection practices while allowing creditors to recover legitimate debts through lawful means. Sen. Bong Go, co-author and co-sponsor of the measure, voted in favor of the bill during the Senate plenary session Monday, saying the proposed legislation seeks to establish clearer rules governing the conduct of creditors, financing companies, and lending firms in collecting debts. The bill prohibits harassment, intimidation, and other oppressive or abusive conduct by debt collectors. Lawmakers said the measure was crafted in response to growing complaints about unethical collection methods, including public shaming, repeated threatening messages, and other forms of coercion used against borrowers. Under the proposed law, lenders and collection agencies would be barred from engaging in deceptive practices or using intimidation to pressure borrowers into settling debts. The measure also contains provisions governing the acquisition of location information of debtors. Debt collectors who contact individuals other than the borrower to locate the debtor must ensure that the collection and use of personal data are done in compliance with existing privacy and consumer protection laws. Despite the restrictions, the bill recognizes the right of creditors to recover legitimate debts. It states that lenders and collection agencies may still use all reasonable and lawful means to collect payments, provided their actions remain within legal and ethical boundaries. Go said the proposed law aims to strike a balance between consumer protection and the rights of lenders, ensuring that borrowers are shielded from abuse while legitimate financial institutions can continue their operations. The measure also clarifies that protections under the bill apply to debtors acting in good faith, preventing potential abuse of the law by borrowers who deliberately evade payment. The proposal complements the consumer safeguards provided under Republic Act 11765, which strengthened oversight of financial service providers and established stronger protection mechanisms for consumers availing of financial products and services.

- DSWD warns against faking disabilities for priority access after viral TikTok (2026-03-13 16:04)

THE Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) on Friday warned the public against feigning disabilities to gain access to priority lanes and special privileges intended for persons with disabilities. The agency said the act is unethical and disrespectful to the rights and dignity of people with disabilities, adding that it undermines efforts to promote an inclusive society. DSWD spokesman Irene Dumlao issued the warning following a viral social media post involving a TikTok user who allegedly faked a disability to gain priority access at LRT Line 1. "DSWD is deeply concerned about individuals pretending to have disabilities just to access privileges and benefits intended for persons with disabilities," Dumlao said. "Such actions undermine the reforms we are pushing to ensure fair and inclusive opportunities for our fellow Filipinos with disabilities." Dumlao also stressed that priority access in public transportation and spaces is meant to provide support and convenience to members of vulnerable sectors. "Falsely claiming to have a disability just to gain priority access weakens the intent of our laws and policies for persons with disabilities," she said. "Any form of deception is not only against proper conduct but also against the law." The DSWD noted that under Republic Act 7277, persons with disabilities are entitled to a barrier-free environment and reasonable accommodations in public and private establishments. The agency urged the public to report incidents of abuse or discrimination to the National Council on Disability Affairs as part of efforts to protect the rights and welfare of the community.

- National Agencies Implement Hybrid Setup Under Memo Circular 114 Energy Measures (2026-03-13 16:03)

THE Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) announced it will implement an adjusted work schedule beginning March 13, 2026, in compliance with an order from President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. to practice energy conservation across government agencies. Under the new arrangement, DFA personnel will report onsite Monday through Thursday during regular working hours, while Fridays will be observed under a remote work arrangement. The policy complies with Office of the President Memorandum Circular 114, s. 2026, which instructs national government offices to adopt measures that reduce energy consumption. The department said the hybrid setup will allow the agency to continue delivering public services while supporting broader government efforts to manage energy use efficiently. Despite the adjusted schedule, the DFA assured the public that assistance for urgent matters will remain accessible through the following channels:– DFA Trunkline: (+632) 8-834-4000– Office of the Undersecretary for Migrant Workers Affairs Local: 4031– Email: ofhelpdesk.atn@dfa.gov.ph The Commission on Filipinos Overseas (CFO) also announced the adoption of a five-day hybrid workweek, with employees reporting onsite Monday through Thursday and working remotely on Fridays. CFO Chairman Dante Ang II said the new work arrangement aims to balance the continuous delivery of public services, improved employee productivity, and compliance with national energy-saving directives. The arrangement was formalized through Office Order 082, s. 2026, issued in compliance with Memorandum Circular 114, s. 2026, which directs national government agencies to implement measures to reduce energy consumption. Despite the adjusted work setup, the agency said public services for emigrants will remain available onsite from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Thursday. These services include:– Pre-departure registration– Pre-Departure Orientation Seminar (PDOS)– Guidance and Counseling Program (GCP) for spouses and partners of foreign nationals– Peer Counseling Program (PCP) for young emigrants. On Fridays, the commission will conduct online-only PDOS sessions for emigrants bound for the United States and Canada. Meanwhile, the Country Familiarization Seminar for participants in the Au Pair Program in Europe will continue to be held in person every Tuesday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the CFO main office, and every Wednesday at CFO extension offices. General concerns can be forwarded to info@cfo.gov.ph and J-1 visa concerns to j1.ofcors@cfo.gov.ph. In a memorandum signed March 8, Acting Presidential Communications Secretary Dave Gomez ordered all PCO personnel to observe a four-day onsite and one-day work-from-home (WFH) setup each week, except for output-based Contract of Service personnel. The arrangement follows Memorandum Circular 114, which directs government agencies to adopt energy conservation and efficiency measures to reduce electricity and fuel consumption. Under the guidelines, personnel may choose from staggered work schedules starting from 7 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., with corresponding eight-hour shifts. “Personnel who arrive after 9:30 a.m. shall be considered late. On the other hand, Fridays shall be designated as the common work-from-home day,” the memorandum read. The memorandum also provides that employees who complete the required 40-hour workweek covering the four onsite days and one WFH day may render overtime services, subject to existing rules and approval of authorized officials. However, services rendered for less than two hours beyond regular working hours will not be considered overtime. Overtime at the New Executive Building at the Malacañang compound will not be allowed from Friday to Sunday or during holidays, according to the memorandum. “Employees working remotely shall remain accessible during official working hours and shall comply with applicable reporting requirements,” it said.

- Experts Urge Deeper PH-Canada Ties Amid Global Economic Tensions (2026-03-13 16:02)

PHILIPPINE and Canadian experts on Friday called for stronger bilateral cooperation on economic security, emerging technologies, and resilient trade systems amid global tensions. The call came during a high-level conference, "Building Economic Security through Strengthened Canada-Philippines Partnership," jointly organized by the Stratbase Institute and the Asia Pacific Foundation of Canada (APF Canada). The event convened government officials, business leaders, and international experts to discuss strategic collaboration and long-term economic resilience. Stratbase Institute President Victor Andres "Dindo" Manhit emphasized that economic security is inseparable from national security. "Economic security cannot and should not be achieved by any single country acting alone. Economic security is national security," he said, citing the Philippines' geostrategic location in the Indo-Pacific, including critical corridors such as Subic Bay and the Batanes-Bashi Channel. "Every message, email, or digital transaction often passes through our territory," Manhit noted, referencing the country's 2016 victory in the International Arbitral Tribunal against China over parts of the South China Sea and related legislation protecting its maritime identity. Manhit stressed that resilient growth and inclusive governance require partnerships with like-minded countries, pointing to Canada as a trusted partner. He outlined sectors for collaboration such as critical minerals, energy, digital infrastructure, and defense investments. "We have tracked who our friends are. We continue to ask the question: who do we trust? It is with these allies that we can ensure resilient and vibrant economic systems," he said. Canadian Ambassador to the Philippines David Hartman echoed these sentiments, stressing that economic security intersects with trade, technology, energy, infrastructure, and national resilience. "Let there be no doubt — economic security is national security," Hartman said, noting that recent global disruptions, including conflicts in the Middle East, have exposed how distant events can affect energy markets and trade flows. Hartman pointed out ongoing Canada-Philippines free trade agreement negotiations, which, if concluded, would mark the Philippines' first such agreement with a North American country. "Both the Philippines and Canada have set an ambitious timeline to conclude these negotiations this calendar year, and Canada remains fully committed to achieving that goal," he said. "Modern trade agreements are far more than about just reducing tariffs. They create stable and predictable frameworks that help economies diversify supply chains and strengthen investment confidence. In a time of global uncertainty, these qualities are essential." The ambassador also pointed to concrete examples of bilateral cooperation, including trade missions connecting hundreds of companies in technology, agriculture, and digital services, as well as partnerships among more than 250 educational and research institutions. Canada is supporting the Philippines' transition from coal to renewable energy with a $230 million investment under the Climate Investment Funds' accelerated coal transition program. Technical assistance in agriculture — covering plant health, dairy management, and seed potato production — further supports food security and rural development. Manhit further noted that public sentiment in the Philippines strongly favors partnerships with trusted countries. Surveys conducted by Pulse Asia Research Inc. and commissioned by Stratbase consistently show that Filipinos value cooperation with countries that share democratic values and long-standing ties with the Philippines, with Canada repeatedly ranking as one of the most trusted. Vina Nadjibulla, APF Canada vice president for research and strategy, outlined three key areas for deepened collaboration: strengthening resilient supply chains, advancing cooperation in critical and emerging technologies, and expanding policy frameworks that support secure trade and investment. "At a time of growing global uncertainty, strengthening this partnership has never been more important," she said. "The Philippines has emerged as an anchor partner for Canada in the region, and there is a real opportunity now to deepen our economic and security cooperation in ways that deliver concrete benefits for both countries."

- Hidilyn Diaz camp says 'brand alignment' condition raised later (2026-03-13 15:47)

MANILA, Philippines — The camp of Olympic gold medalist Hidilyn Diaz clarified that conditions related to "brand alignment" were introduced only about two years after a "free fuel for life" reward was announced following her historic Tokyo Olympics victory. Diaz's manager, Noel Ferrer, said the fuel benefit from Phoenix Petroleum was originally presented publicly as an unconditional gesture of recognition after Diaz delivered the Philippines' first Olympic gold medal. He made the statement on his Instagram account on Friday, March 13. The clarification came a day after Phoenix Petroleum issued its own statement explaining why the fuel incentive had stopped, citing that the arrangement could no longer continue after Diaz engaged with another petroleum brand. Ferrer emphasized that the team was surprised when brand-related conditions were later introduced, stressing that such requirements were not part of the understanding when the reward was first offered. "It was only around two years later that conditions relating to brand alignment were raised. This came as a surprise to us, as such conditions were not part of the original understanding when the reward was publicly announced and initially provided," Ferrer said. Phoenix Petroleum had pledged lifetime free fuel and a P5-million cash incentive to Diaz after she won the women's 55-kilogram weightlifting event at the Tokyo Olympics in July 2021, ending the Philippines' nearly century-long wait for an Olympic gold medal.

MANILA, Philippines — The Western Naval Command (WNC) on Friday confirmed that a suspected People's Republic of China (PRC) Long March 8A rocket was observed traversing Palawan airspace between approximately 3:58 AM and 4:02 AM today. Security personnel stationed in the Kalayaan Island Group (KIG), West Philippine Sea (WPS), and Tubbataha Reef Ranger Station captured the event on video as part of WNC's real-time monitoring operations. The footage shows two bright red-orange lights moving from northwest to southeast, a phenomenon that lasted around 15 seconds before disappearing. In addition, personnel at Tubbataha Reef Ranger Station reported seeing a bright red-orange light at 4:02 AM PST, which illuminated the sky for six seconds. These observations correspond with pre-launch advisories indicating potential debris drop zones approximately 101 nautical miles from Patag Island and 47 nautical miles from Tubbataha Reefs Natural Park. As of 12:00 NN today, no injuries, property damage, or debris impact on land have been reported. All concerned agencies remain on heightened alert and continue to closely monitor the situation. The public is advised to remain vigilant and promptly report any unusual sightings or debris to local authorities. The recorded footage is part of coordinated monitoring efforts conducted by WNC in collaboration with officers from Western Command, Tactical Operations Wing-West, the Philippine Coast Guard, Provincial Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Office, Puerto Princesa City Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Office, and the Philippine National Police Maritime Group.

- AFP: No indications US is pulling out military assets in PH amid ongoing war in Iran (2026-03-13 14:22)

MANILA, Philippines — The Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) on Friday clarified that there are no indications the United States is withdrawing its military assets from the Philippines for use in its ongoing war with Iran. The statement came amid reports that the US is relocating parts of a missile defense system installed in South Korea to the Middle East. “There are no indications that the US is pulling out military assets from the Philippines. The situation in South Korea involves specific air defense systems being redeployed to the Middle East, which is a separate theater arrangement and does not apply here,” Rear Admiral Roy Vincent Trinidad, AFP spokesperson for the West Philippine Sea (WPS), said in a statement. The AFP has repeatedly emphasized that the Philippines is a defensive country and that its alliance with the US is not linked to the latter’s offensive military activities against any other nation. “The upward trajectory of the RP-US alliance is manifested in our continuing maritime activities, strengthened MDB-SEB (Mutual Defense Board–Security Engagement Board) engagements, and the recent approval of the Philippine Enhanced Resilience Act, which authorizes $2.5 billion in security assistance over the next five years,” Trinidad said. The nine Enhanced Defense Cooperation Agreement (EDCA) sites in the country have drawn concern amid fears that the Philippines could become a target of Iranian retaliatory attacks because of these facilities. “EDCA sites are Philippine bases with facilities dedicated to mutual defense and humanitarian assistance, and are not to be used as staging areas for offensive operations,” Trinidad said.

- Motorcycle taxi riders included in P5,000 aid, says Transport chief (2026-03-13 04:40)

MANILA, Philippines — The government will include motorcycle taxi riders among those eligible to receive the P5,000 financial assistance intended for individuals in crisis situations, according to Transportation Secretary Giovanni Lopez. In an interview on Friday, Lopez said motorcycle taxi riders fell under ride-hailing services cited in the special provisions of the 2025 national budget, making them qualified beneficiaries of the aid program. “Under the special provision in the 2025 budget, those ride-hailing services are included,” Lopez said in a briefing. “We consider motorcycle taxi riders as part of ride-hailing services.” He added that the assistance program was also aligned with the government’s classification of beneficiaries as individuals in crisis situations. The Transport chief said that discussions were ongoing on the inclusion of other transport network services, including transport network vehicle services (TNVS) and taxis. Lopez estimated that around 60,000 motorcycle taxi riders nationwide could benefit from the program, including those operating in Metro Manila and Metro Cebu. However, he acknowledged that there was still no finalized list of beneficiaries as some sectors, including motorcycle taxi services, remain under pilot testing. Despite this, Lopez maintained that motorcycle taxi riders would be covered under the aid program once the implementation details are finalized.

- DILG digitally maps over 167,000 km of roads, 17,000 bridges nationwide (2026-03-13 04:35)

MANILA, Philippines — The Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) said it has digitally mapped more than 167,000 kilometers of local roads and over 17,000 bridges across the country through its enhanced Local Roads and Bridges Inventory (LRBI), creating one of the most comprehensive datasets on local infrastructure to support planning, disaster risk reduction, and local development. According to the DILG, the upgraded system recorded 167,103 kilometers of local roads and 17,229 bridges nationwide as part of the government's push to expand digital governance and ensure that infrastructure planning was guided by reliable and up-to-date data. The inventory is managed by the DILG's Office of Project Development Services (OPDS), which oversees the collection and maintenance of infrastructure data from local government units (LGUs) across the country. Based on data as of Dec. 31, 2025, the system shows that 30,525.13 kilometers are provincial roads, 16,784.66 kilometers are city roads, 15,965.73 kilometers are municipal roads, and 103,828.26 kilometers are barangay roads. For bridges, the inventory lists 3,269 provincial bridges, 1,884 city bridges, and 12,076 municipal bridges nationwide. The DILG said the LRBI has been recognized under the Philippine Statistics Authority's System of Designated Statistics, making it an official decision-support tool for policymakers, planners, engineers, and development partners involved in infrastructure planning, disaster risk reduction, urban development, and local economic growth. According to the department, the upgraded platform now includes integrated road names, classifications on road importance, and an improved user interface that allows easier navigation and more detailed analysis of infrastructure needs and investment priorities. The DILG also urged LGUs to regularly update their road and bridge data in the system to ensure the accuracy and reliability of the national inventory. With more accessible and comprehensive information, the department said national agencies and local governments could better identify connectivity gaps, prioritize infrastructure investments, and align local development projects with broader national growth and disaster resilience strategies. The agency added that continued improvements to the LRBI form part of the government's broader push for stronger digital governance and more data-driven infrastructure planning to support local development across the country.

- Palace summons oil firms to secure fuel supply, prevent excessive price hikes (2026-03-13 04:25)

MANILA, Philippines — Malacañang summoned oil industry executives to ensure a steady supply of fuel products and prevent excessive price increases amid global oil market volatility. Executive Secretary Ralph Recto said the meeting on Thursday in Malacañang "focused on supply and prices, on how to keep both stable, amidst the volatility we are seeing." "This is pursuant to the directive of the President to protect our people from the impact of surging oil prices," Recto said. "And we have been addressing the challenges in multiple fronts, from an energy conservation drive by the government, to providing lifeline subsidies to transport groups," he added. Recto, who led the government delegation with Energy Secretary Sharon Garin, said one of the major concerns discussed during the meeting was the possibility of supply chain disruptions caused by geopolitical tensions. He said oil companies assured the government that operational challenges in bringing fuel supplies to the Philippines remained manageable. “If the war in the affected region will further choke oil supply, the alternatives are already being explored, per the President’ s instructions,” Recto said. “This is the kind of oil diplomacy that oil executives and the government will have to jointly undertake,” he added.

(2026-03-13 04:20)

MANILA, Philippines — Singapore has extended seats to other countries, including the Philippines, in the repatriation of Singaporeans stranded in the Middle East as a result of the United States-Israel war with Iran. Singapore's Ambassador to Manila Constance See on Friday said at least 24 Filipinos were part of Singapore's repatriation flight from Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. See said Singapore deployed a multi-role tanker transport (MRTT) aircraft on March 12 to "bring Singaporeans home safely from Jeddah." "After prioritizing Singaporeans and their families, we were glad that available seats could be extended to nationals from other countries, including 24 Filipinos," See said in a statement. The flight landed in Singapore on March 13 at 5:59 a.m., the ambassador said. Singapore's Ministry of Defense (MINDEF) said there were 81 Singaporeans and their dependents who returned via the MRTT. After prioritizing and catering to Singaporeans who registered, available seats were also extended to nationals from Australia, Brunei, Indonesia, the Philippines, Sri Lanka and Vietnam, MINDEF said. "This was very much a partnership. We worked in close coordination with the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) and the Philippine Consulate General in Jeddah, to facilitate the Filipinos who joined the flight," she said. See said the Philippine government, through the DFA and its missions, has "been mounting complex repatriation efforts to bring Filipinos home safely." "Our flight complements those efforts. This is really Asean (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) solidarity in action, neighbors helping neighbors in difficult moments," she said. "Our Asean neighbours have assisted Singaporeans in returning home in past crises," See said. "Singapore and the Philippines are close friends, and we were very glad to help these Filipinos begin their journey home. At the end of the day, what matters most is that people return safely to their families," See added.

MANILA, Philippines — More than 252,000 registered voters in the second legislative district of Antipolo City will head to the polls on Saturday to elect their representative at the House of Representatives following the death of Congressman Romeo Acop in December 2025. According to the Office of the Deputy Executive Director for Operations of the Commission on Elections (Comelec), a total of 252,793 voters are eligible to cast their ballots across the district’ s eight villages (barangay). The vote will be held in 37 voting centers, encompassing 348 clustered precincts. Six candidates are vying for the position. They are Philip Conrad Acop (National Unity Party), and independents Maria Trinidad Cafirma, Dandin Infante, Reden Llaga, Nathaniel Lobigas, and Irvin Paulo Tapales. - Pasay fire leaves 2 dead, 50 families displaced (2026-03-13 02:05)

MANILA, Philippines — A fire swept through a residential area in Pasay City on Thursday evening, leaving two people dead and dozens of families displaced. The blaze broke out along P. Villanueva Street in Barangay 85 and quickly spread through houses made of light materials in the densely populated community. The Bureau of Fire Protection raised the alarm to the second level as flames engulfed closely packed homes, making response more difficult. Authorities said the fire started at around 5:59 p.m. and was declared out at about 7:58 p.m., nearly two hours later. Initial reports said at least two people were killed in the incident while around 50 families were affected and forced to evacuate from their homes. Pasay City Fire Chief Fire Supt. Alma Cassandra Gardose said that firefighters faced operational difficulties while responding to the blaze. “Aside from the lack of water supply, a big factor was the narrow streets. And also the number of residents bringing their belongings outside. That’s why the operation of our firefighters was really difficult earlier,” Gardose told reporters. Authorities said the displaced families were temporarily staying at a nearby school while investigators determined the cause of the fire. Pasay City Mayor Emi Calixto-Rubiano later visited the affected community and coordinated assistance for displaced families as local officials arranged temporary shelter and relief support for the victims.

- LTFRB prepares fuel subsidy rollout for PUV operators amid Middle East conflict (2026-03-13 01:32)

MANILA, Philippines — The Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) has begun preparing for the distribution of fuel subsidies to thousands of public utility vehicle (PUV) operators affected by the continuing increase in oil prices due to the conflict in the Middle East. The preparations are in compliance with the directive of Department of Transportation (DOTr) Secretary Giovanni Lopez who ordered the agency to ensure the subsidy program could be implemented quickly once funds become available. LTFRB Chairman Vigor Mendoza II said the agency has begun coordinating with relevant government offices and completing documentary requirements to ensure that subsidy funds could be released to beneficiaries once the program receives the go signal. “Our job is to make sure there is a fast distribution system the moment the funds are available. Secretary Lopez instructed us to fix everything early so the assistance can be distributed right away once the funds are ready,” Mendoza said. He added that the agency was working to ensure that all operator-beneficiaries possess the necessary cards through which the subsidy would be downloaded via the Land Bank of the Philippines. Lopez said the national government has earmarked around P2.5 billion for the fuel subsidy program covering drivers and operators in the public transport sector. Under the subsidy mechanism, financial assistance is triggered once global oil prices reach $80 per barrel in the world market. Energy analysts have warned that prolonged instability in the Middle East could push oil prices higher, with recent projections indicating that the $80-per-barrel threshold may soon be reached. Mendoza said the LTFRB has finalized the list of beneficiaries while coordination with partner agencies and stakeholders continues to ensure the program's readiness. "We are ready. We have the list, and coordination with other government agencies and stakeholders is ongoing specifically for this purpose," he said. The LTFRB chief also said regional directors have been instructed to coordinate with transport groups in their respective areas to facilitate preparations. The fuel subsidy, Mendoza said, would be released as a one-time assistance package designed to offset more than a month of increases in petroleum product prices. He added that the program was meant to help protect both the public transport sector and commuters from the financial impact of rising fuel costs. "This is the government's assurance that it will take care of the public transport sector during this challenge. We will work together for the welfare not only of operators and drivers but also of the commuting public," Mendoza said.

- Middle East war creates biggest oil supply disruption in history (2026-03-12 16:16)

THE Middle East war is creating the largest supply disruption in the history of the global oil market, as Iran's choke hold on regional supplies forces Gulf producers to slash production, the International Energy Agency (IEA) said Thursday. In its latest market report, the IEA said crude production was currently down by at least 8 million barrels per day (bpd), with an additional 2 million related to petroleum products including condensates shut off. The conflict, which was triggered on Feb. 28 by American-Israeli attacks on Iran, is hampering the global economy's supply of oil and weakening production capacity. The war has seen Iran tighten its choke hold on the Strait of Hormuz, through which 20 percent of global crude passes, effectively all but shutting it down. IEA said current flows through the strait were moving at less than 10 percent of pre-crisis levels, which in 2025 were around 15 million barrels per day — with "no signs of a de-escalation in hostilities, or a clear timeline for a recovery in flows through the strait." It stressed that a resumption of flows would be key in minimizing the war's impact on global markets. Against that backdrop, major European stock markets were off more than half of 1 percent in early morning trading. In Asia, Japan's Nikkei had shed 1 percent at the close while Hong Kong closed off 0.7 percent. A threat from Tehran to bring down the global economy overshadowed an impending record release of strategic crude by the IEA. On Wednesday, it said its 32 members had agreed to unlock 400 million barrels of oil from reserves — their biggest release ever. Stop-gap measure "The coordinated emergency stock release provides a significant and welcome buffer, but in the absence of a swift resolution to the conflict, it remains a stop-gap measure," the IEA warned. The United States has proposed partially lifting sanctions against Russia in an attempt to offset the fallout from the squeeze on Hormuz, but Group of Seven nations on Wednesday rejected the idea. Oil prices have gyrated since the crisis began, rising more than 30 percent to around $120 a barrel only to drop back. Prices again topped $100 on Thursday but then fell again to around $92 a barrel, representing a day rise of some 6 percent as analysts predicted elevated prices for the foreseeable future amid reports of more Iranian attacks on vessels, notably off the coast of Iraq. The IEA said in its report the shortfall could be partially addressed with alternative routes such as transit through the Bab-el-Mandeb Strait from the Red Sea, although this route has in recent years “carried a risk of Houthi [rebel] attacks.” Despite efforts to stave off the disruption via emergency stockpiles, the IEA forecast March global oil supplies would drop 8 million bpd to 98.8 million bpd for their lowest level in four years. “For forecasting purposes, we have assumed only minimal flows through the Strait of Hormuz in March,” it said. Citing the “geopolitical alarm” in the region, Stephen Innes of SPI Asset Management said that “in brokerage jargon, the IEA’s decision [to release emergency supplies] is equivalent to using a garden hose to put out a refinery fire.” Kathleen Brooks, director of research at XTB, observed that “the conflict has intensified this week, and the longer the oil price remains elevated, the more damaging and long-lasting the inflation shock will be for the global economy.” The IEA concluded that even if the conflict intensity recedes to the extent oil flows can resume “it will take several days to weeks” for the backlog of tankers on both sides of the strait to clear. “Additionally, shut-in upstream production will take weeks and, in some cases, months, to return to pre-crisis levels depending on the degree of field complexity and the timing for workers, equipment and resources to return to the region. Asean special meeting

In the region, the foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) will convene a special meeting to discuss the bloc’s response as the Middle East conflict approaches its second week. Foreign Affairs spokesman for Asean 2026 Dax Imperial on Thursday said the ministers will hold the discussions via videoconference on March 13. “It will cover Asean’s response to the situation in the Middle East. More details will be available tomorrow after the meeting,” he said in a text message to reporters. After the meeting, a statement will be issued by the ministers, he added. The conflict in the Middle East broke out on Feb. 28 following a joint military operation mounted by the US and Israel against Iran, targeting its nuclear facilities, which later killed Iranian Supreme Leader Khamenei. Iran responded with deadly retaliatory strikes that have since expanded to target US bases in neighboring Gulf states like Qatar, Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates. Department of Social Welfare and Development Assistant Secretary Irene Dumlao, in a previous press briefing on the sidelines of the 2026 Asean Socio-Cultural Community meetings, said the bloc is closely monitoring developments in the Middle East, which is host to more than a million Southeast Asian workers. Dumlao said the Philippines stands ready to assist not only the Filipinos but also Southeast Asians “as may be necessary.”

- Frasco removed as Tourism chief (2026-03-12 16:15)

(UPDATE) MALACANANG on Thursday confirmed the exit of Christina Garcia Frasco as secretary of the Department of Tourism (DOT). She, however, is totally not out of the Marcos administration as she will serve in a different capacity as Presidential Adviser for Sustainable and Resilient Communities. “As many areas across the country face increasing climate-related hazards and disruptions that affect local economies and livelihoods, the president has tasked Secretary Frasco to take on this role to help strengthen the implementation and sustained follow-through of priority national initiatives at the community level,” Presidential Communications Office Undersecretary Claire Castro said in a statement. While Marcos decides on who to fill the seat left by Frasco, Undersecretary Verna Burnsuceso will oversee affairs at the DOT as officer in charge. There was some online buzz, however, that career trade diplomat Dita Angara-Mathay would likely be the next Tourism chief. She is currently the commercial counselor and special trade representative of the Philippines in Tokyo, Japan. “Secretary Frasco will transition from her role as secretary of Tourism, where she led efforts to support tourism enterprises and livelihoods, and to deepen partnerships with local governments nationwide,” Castro said. “The president expressed his appreciation for her service at the Department of Tourism and conveyed confidence that her experience working closely with local governments and communities will continue to support the administration’s priorities,” she added. Talk has been circulating for months that Frasco would be the next to leave the Cabinet over her perceived penchant for self-promotion and the lagging numbers of tourist arrivals compared to the country’s Southeast Asian neighbors. The DOT had been on the receiving end of online bashing for its promotions that featured Frasco’s face and not the destinations themselves.

- Fear, boredom beset Filipino sailors stuck in Hormuz strait (2026-03-12 16:14)

FILIPINO sailor George Miranda was racing to help a stricken vessel aboard the tugboat Mussafah 2 when he last spoke to his wife and young daughter. The 46-year-old, whose small ship was struck by a pair of missiles this week in the Strait of Hormuz, is the only seafarer from the Philippines known to be missing in the Middle East war, the government says. But more than 6,000 others from the country that supplies a quarter of the world’s sailors are still working in the conflict zone and “surrounding areas,” many waiting for the green light to pass through the now-deadly shipping lane. A series of Iranian strikes have effectively closed the strait, which carries 20 percent of world oil and gas supplies, plunging the global energy economy into crisis. For John Winston Isidro, life aboard his VLCC, or Very Large Crude Carrier, has been marked by equal parts monotony and precaution since his ship began playing the waiting game. “The crew stopped working above deck, and we installed a double watch on the bridge,” the 32-year-old told Agence France-Presse (AFP), describing off-hours spent scrolling Facebook, playing computer games and watching the occasional movie. That routine was becoming normal, he said, though the engine crew was being kept on standby, ready to “fire up our engines” in case of emergency. Stranded for days Welbin Maghanoy, whose ship was carrying crude oil bound for Japan, had been stranded for nine days when he spoke to AFP. “It’s getting boring, and I’m a little scared, because there are many ships being attacked, mostly oil tankers like ours,” he said from a vessel located 100 nautical miles off the coast of the United Arab Emirates. “Those whose contracts are about to end ... they really want to go home,” he said of his fellow sailors. Judy Domingo, president of the 50,000-strong United Filipino Seafarers union, told AFP she had taken hundreds of calls from concerned sailors bottled up in the strait, with food supplies one of the immediate concerns. “There are also members expressing their desire to leave the ship. But of course, we cannot get them out of there immediately. We have to consider their location and a safe port for them to disembark,” Domingo said. One stranded Philippine sailor who has been posting online videos of his experiences under the name Choi described a vote in which the crew was asked if they wanted to risk passage through the strait, where traffic has slowed to a trickle. “Our captain gathered us in the conference room to ask us who wanted to pass through,” he said in a video posted to Facebook and verified by AFP Fact Check. “We chose to go home alive,” he said. “There are 27 of us. Almost everyone said they refused to sail.” Isidro, the VLCC sailor, said he was happy his crew had not been consulted about the decision to stay put. “Our captain will not risk our vessel’s safety ... It’s too dangerous,” he said. “Let’s just pray this US-Iran war ends soon so every ship trapped here is able to get out safe.”

- Govt urged to develop contingency framework to handle crises (2026-03-12 16:13)

THE Senate on Wednesday adopted a resolution calling on the executive branch to urgently develop a national contingency framework to prepare the Philippines for major crises, as lawmakers warn of potential economic and security effects from war in the Middle East. The measure, Senate Resolution 343, sponsored by Senate Minority Leader Alan Peter Cayetano and co-authored by 22 senators, urges the government to establish a comprehensive system that would allow the country to anticipate, prepare for, respond to and recover from large-scale domestic and international emergencies. The resolution was also co-sponsored by Senate President Vicente Sotto III. Cayetano said the proposed framework aims to strengthen coordination among the national government, local government units and the private sector through a “whole-of-government and whole-of-nation approach.” “The problem today is that when a crisis becomes too big, it affects not only one country but entire regions because we are now a global village,” Cayetano said during plenary deliberations. Preparing for global shocks The senator emphasized the need for alignment across institutions before the country can effectively respond to major emergencies. “When the system is interconnected, one broken part can affect the entire structure,” he said, likening global systems to “clockwork” where disruptions in one area can halt the entire mechanism. Cayetano cited the ongoing geopolitical crisis in the Middle East as an example of how international conflicts can trigger ripple effects on energy supply chains, trade and national economies. He warned that war could disrupt global oil supply routes or damage critical infrastructure, leading to economic shocks felt across the world. Cayetano said crises can present both dangers and opportunities depending on how nations respond. “Every crisis has winners and losers,” he said. “Let’s not miss opportunities. This contingency framework is meant to prepare us not only for the challenges but also for the opportunities that arise from global changes.”

- Estrada asks Manilacourt to lift travel ban (2026-03-12 16:12)

SEN. Jinggoy Estrada has asked a Manila court to reconsider and lift the precautionary hold departure order (PHDO) issued against him, as the Department of Justice (DOJ) confirmed that the plunder complaint filed against the senator and several former public works officials has been submitted for resolution. Estrada's spokesman and legal counsel, lawyer Bianca Soriano, said the senator filed an omnibus motion before the Manila Regional Trial Court Branch 52 on March 11 seeking both reconsideration and the lifting of the hold order that bars him from leaving the country. The order was issued in February by the Manila court in connection with the plunder complaint under preliminary investigation at the DOJ. Aside from Estrada, those covered by the PHDO include former Public Works secretary Manuel Bonoan, former undersecretaries Roberto Bernardo and Maria Catalina Cabral, former Department of Public Works and Highways regional director Gerard Oplencia, and former district engineer Henry Alcantara. Cabral died in December 2025. The case stemmed from allegations of anomalies in government flood control projects in Bulacan, which investigators said involved transactions amounting to more than P50 million. The complaint includes charges of plunder, violation of the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act, direct bribery, receiving gifts by public officers and corruption of public officials. Soriano said the defense argued that the travel restriction should be lifted because the prosecution had failed to establish the legal grounds required for issuing the hold order. "It should be lifted because the rules require that there should be probable cause and second that the respondent is a flight risk," she said. "We already attacked the evidentiary nature that there is no probable cause, and that respondent Sen. Jinggoy Estrada is not a flight risk." The senator also asked the court to allow him to travel to Hong Kong, Macao and Japan from March 31 to April 5. Estrada also sought permission from the Sandiganbayan for the same trip due to his pending 11 graft cases before the anti-graft court. It was not immediately clear whether the Sandiganbayan had acted on his request. Soriano said Estrada appeared before the DOJ on Thursday to submit his counter-affidavit, where his camp questioned the admissibility and credibility of the evidence presented by investigators. She said the defense also raised procedural issues regarding the complaint filed by the National Bureau of Investigation, arguing that it did not meet the requirements for a complaint-affidavit. "Based on the rules, what should be filed is a complaint affidavit, but what the NBI filed was a letter attaching an affidavit," Soriano said. The defense also pointed to alleged inconsistencies in the sworn statements of state witnesses Alcantara and Bernardo, who are reportedly applying for the government's witness protection program. Soriano maintained that Estrada has consistently complied with court requirements in his previous travel requests before the Sandiganbayan. She noted that the anti-graft court earlier allowed Estrada to travel to Japan in December 2025 and to Norway, Iceland and Austria in January 2026, after which he returned to the Philippines. Justice department spokesman Polo Martinez said the DOJ panel of prosecutors has already completed the preliminary investigation after all respondents submitted their counter-affidavits. "Everyone has filed their counter-affidavits. Which means that as of this date, March 12, the case is now submitted for resolution," Martinez said. He added that prosecutors have 60 days to resolve the complaint, or extend this by another 30 days if necessary. Meanwhile, Martinez said the court would ultimately determine whether the hold order against Estrada should be lifted.

- Pag-IBIG members get P1B in discounts through loyalty cards (2026-03-12 16:11)

THE Home Development Mutual Fund (HDMF), or Pag-IBIG Fund, has granted members a total of P1 billion in discounts from 507 partner establishments through its Loyalty Card Plus program. Pag-IBIG Fund CEO Marilene Acosta thanked the agency's partner establishments and bank partners for helping the card program "turn into a meaningful everyday benefit" for its members. "Through the Pag-IBIG Loyalty Card Program, our members are able to feel the value of Pag-IBIG Fund not only during major transactions, but also in their daily lives through tangible savings on essential expenses, in keeping with our mandate to serve Filipino workers," Acosta said in a statement. Launched in 2014, the card program was primarily aimed at giving millions of Pag-IBIG members access to discounts and special offers from partner merchants. In 2019, Acosta said, the agency introduced the Pag-IBIG Loyalty Card Plus, which added cash card features through Asia United Bank and Union Bank of the Philippines for the receipt of loan proceeds and access to basic banking services. "Since then, the card has grown into one of Pag-IBIG Fund's most practical member benefits, helping Filipino workers save on food, medicine, transportation, housing-related purchases and other essential expenses," Acosta said. Housing Secretary Jose Ramon Aliling, who also chairs Pag-IBIG Fund's board of trustees, said Pag-IBIG Loyalty Card Plus is a prime example of how public-private partnerships can work to provide practical and relevant daily benefits to Filipino workers. "Especially at a time of global uncertainty, when every peso counts, this program helps our members make the most of their hard-earned income. This is fully in line with President Ferdinand Marcos Jr.'s directive to ensure that the government delivers meaningful and timely assistance to our fellow Filipinos," Aliling said. The program has grown to 507 partner establishments nationwide including 114 under food, restaurants and groceries; five under fuel and transportation; 189 under health and medicine; and 20 under housing-related establishments, along with many others serving members' various needs, the HDMF said. Across the country, the program spans 162 partners in the National Capital Region, 155 in Luzon, 55 in the Visayas and 85 in Mindanao, it said. To date, the program has recorded 30,660,983 discounted transactions, while total Pag-IBIG Loyalty Card and Loyalty Card Plus issuance has reached 15,170,992, with cumulative discounts granted to members amounting to P1,005,583,149.75, it added. This year, Acosta disclosed that the program is set to enter its next phase with the rollout of the Pag-IBIG Loyalty Card Plus Digital, making the card's services and privileges even more accessible to members. "As we roll out the Pag-IBIG Loyalty Card Plus Digital within the year, alongside the continued availability of the physical card, we are making the program more accessible, more secure and more convenient for more Filipinos," Acosta said.

- DSWD assures psychosocial, financial aid for OFWs (2026-03-12 16:10)

THE Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) is ready to provide psychosocial, financial and other forms of assistance to overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) displaced by the war in the Middle East. The assistance is in line with the directive of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. to ensure the safety and welfare of Filipinos affected by the political tensions in the region. DSWD officials said several repatriated OFWs have arrived in the country and were assisted by the agency in coordination with the Department of Migrant Workers and the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration. DSWD Assistant Secretary Irene Dumlao said on Thursday psychosocial intervention is among the key services that the agency will provide to returning OFWs who may have experienced trauma or anxiety due to the conflict. Upon arrival at the airport, returning workers will be assessed by social workers to determine the appropriate psychosocial support and other assistance for them. The DSWD's "Angels in Red Vests" personnel will also conduct stress debriefing sessions, counseling and interviews to address the emotional and psychological needs of the repatriated workers. The agency said temporary shelter may also be provided through its centers and residential care facilities for OFWs who need accommodation while arranging travel back to their home provinces. Aside from psychosocial services, the DSWD will extend financial assistance through its Assistance to Individuals in Crisis Situation program and livelihood opportunities under the Sustainable Livelihood Program to help returning OFWs reintegrate into their communities.

- Baligod appears at NBI probe of alleged ex-Marines affidavits (2026-03-12 16:09)

LAWYER Levi Baligod appeared before the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) on Thursday after being summoned to the NBI's probe into affidavits of 18 individuals claiming to be former Marines. Baligod, counsel for the group, said they were prepared to cooperate with investigators and provide documents requested by the NBI to check the background of the 18 individuals. He said the subpoena indicated that the NBI wanted to verify the identities and employment records of the individuals who executed sworn statements that they delivered suitcases of cash to several personalities supposedly coming from resigned Ako Bicol Party-list representative Elizaldy "Zaldy" Co. Baligod said the group will submit documents to support their claims, including serial numbers and identification cards. He also disputed statements attributed to NBI officials that some of the signatories were not former Marines. "All of the 18 — as we said — 16 were former Marines and two were former members of the Philippine Army," he said. Baligod said the group submitted a joint affidavit because some portions of the account were based on shared knowledge among the signatories. "In the first portion of the affidavit, the pronoun used is 'we' because they were all employees. But when it comes to the part about those who actually delivered the money, the individuals are specifically identified," he said. Baligod confirmed he had a professional relationship with lawyer Charlie Pascual, who notarized the affidavit of the 18 individuals. He added that he sometimes refers or "farms out" cases to other lawyers as he has been gradually reducing his law practice. Baligod said the 18 individuals were also expected to appear before the NBI on Thursday. Asked about criticism that the allegations of the supposed former Marines should be treated with skepticism, Baligod said he believed his clients were telling the truth. "They have nothing to profit from accusing people in high positions of government," he said. He also dismissed allegations that the group had been paid to make the claims.

- Emergency powers bill certified as urgent (2026-03-12 16:08)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Thursday certified as urgent House Bill (HB) 8418 which would grant him emergency powers to suspend or reduce excise taxes on petroleum products. Executive Secretary Ralph Recto, by authority of the president, transmitted a letter to Speaker Faustino “Bodjie” Dy III stating the “necessity of the immediate enactment” of the proposed law. HB 8418 seeks to give Marcos the power to suspend or reduce excise taxes on petroleum during national or global emergencies for not longer than six months. It likewise authorizes the government to address the “extraordinary fuel price volatility and stabilize domestic fuel prices during the period of severe economic disruptions.” As prescribed in the 2017 Tax Reform for Acceleration and Inclusion (Train) Law, the Philippines imposes an excise tax of P10 per liter on gasoline, P6 per liter on diesel and P5 per liter on kerosene. Under the Constitution, certifying a bill as urgent allows Congress to bypass the usual requirement of three separate readings on different days, enabling lawmakers to accelerate the passage of legislation deemed critical. The war in the Middle East caused pump prices to spike this week. Last Tuesday saw a double digit rise with gasoline prices up by as much as P10.20 a liter, diesel by as much as P24.25 a liter, and kerosene by as much as P38.50 a liter.

- Send funds, DepEd urged (2026-03-12 16:07)

SEN. Bam Aquino has called on the Department of Education (DepEd) to download funds for classroom construction to local government units (LGUs) as soon as possible so they can begin building classrooms. Aquino made the appeal on Thursday as he sought to address the huge classroom backlog. Over P65 billion under the 2026 national budget had been allotted for building 25,000 classrooms. Aquino, chairman of the Committee on Basic Education, pushed for a higher budget for classroom construction in the 2026 national budget to address the 165,000-classroom backlog. Under the budget, DepEd can choose the source of funds for classroom construction, including partnerships with LGUs, civil society organizations, and nongovernmental organizations with proven track records. LGUs must enter into a memorandum of agreement with DepEd to access the budget for classroom construction. The Senate has approved on third and final reading Aquino’s proposed Classroom-Building Acceleration Program Act or SB 1482. Under the bill, LGUs and nongovernmental organizations with a proven track record may build classrooms within their jurisdictions, based on DepEd’s standards and guidelines. SB 1482 streamlines the classroom-building process and includes safeguards against corruption by instituting a price ceiling for classroom construction. Aquino said aside from addressing the backlog, the construction of new classrooms can create more than 100,000 new jobs across the country. In an earlier dialogue with local government officials, he said the construction of a classroom typically requires around four to six workers and takes around three to four months to finish. In turn, the taxes generated by LGUs from hiring local contractors can support their social services programs for their constituents, Aquino added.

- Comelec release of Marcoleta SOCE findings delayed (2026-03-12 16:06)

THE Commission on Elections (Comelec) has deferred the release of its findings on the disparity between Sen. Rodante Marcoleta’s statement of assets, liabilities and net worth (SALN), and statement of contribution and expenditures (SOCE) in the 2025 polls. Comelec Chairman George Erwin Garcia on Thursday said the delay was due to “legal complications” arising from a similar case that was referred to its legal department by the Office of the Ombudsman. Garcia said that the poll body's Political Finance and Affairs Department (PFAD) has submitted the results of its investigation and recommendations to the commission en banc, but its release was withheld after a similar case was filed with the legal department. He said the case involving Marcoleta's SOCE and SALN was filed with the Office of the Ombudsman which, in turn, referred it to the Comelec. Garcia said the Comelec has no other choice but to refer it to the legal department, saying that "while the Comelec has no jurisdiction over the SALN, it has jurisdiction over the SOCE." He said issues on SOCE, under normal circumstances, are referred to the PFAD, but stressed that Comelec can't stop anybody from filing a separate complaint with the legal department. "For example, a recommendation to file a complaint or case because there is a probable cause is filed with the legal department. What if the legal department currently holds a related case involving the said personality? All of that should be thoroughly studied because we cannot disregard anyone, as everyone has the right to due process and personality," Garcia said. Garcia said Marcoleta's case was no different from that of another senator, obviously referring to Sen. Francis Escudero, but that the latter's case has already been decided before a similar case questioning his SOCE was filed with the Comelec's legal office. Marcoleta's SALN showed only P51.9 million, but his SOCE indicated that he spent P112 million during the midterm elections. In his SOCE, Marcoleta declared he did not receive campaign contributions, but spent P112.8 million, an amount which far exceeded his P51.9 million declared assets. Under the Omnibus Election Code, candidates are required to declare all their expenses during the campaign period. The law also provides that all candidates must submit their SOCE within 30 days after election day. Any unused contributions must likewise be declared, and returned to the donors or turned over to the national treasury if donors are not identifiable. The legal basis for requiring candidates and political parties to submit "full, true and itemized" SOCEs is Section 14 of Republic Act (RA) 7166, or the Synchronized National and Local Elections Law, candidates are prohibited from accepting campaign funds from foreign nationals and foreign corporations, government-owned and -controlled corporations, and entities funded wholly or partly by the government. Private corporations can make donations, but contributions should be accounted for properly and reported to the Comelec. Certain sectors, such as those involved in public utilities or those with contracts with the government, are prohibited from contributing. Campaign contributions are regulated to avoid undue influence by wealthy individuals, corporations or special interest groups. Under Section 14 or RA 7166, failure to file the SOCE by a candidate or political party within the prescribed period is punishable by permanent disqualification to hold public office. Deliberate falsification or misrepresentation of the SOCE is a criminal offense punishable by imprisonment.

- Senate panel approves 35 measures to boost socialized housing (2026-03-12 16:05)

THE Senate Committee on Urban Planning, Housing and Resettlement has cleared all 35 bills and resolutions on its agenda, signaling a push for housing reforms. The committee, chaired by Francis Escudero, approved on Wednesday several measures for the committee report as part of his "no backlog" policy in the panels he leads. Among the key measures endorsed was Senate Bill (SB) 934, authored by Sen. Jinggoy Estrada. The bill authorizes the government to expropriate land for socialized housing by amending provisions of the Urban Development and Housing Act of 1992. Local government units and housing agencies can identify priority sites, streamline land acquisition processes and allow the expropriation of idle lands — including residential properties under litigation — to accelerate housing projects. Escudero said the measure would support the administration's flagship Pambansang Pabahay Para sa Pilipino Housing Program, which aims to address the country's long-standing housing shortage. The committee also approved SB 70, authored by Sen. Rodante Marcoleta, that will exempt underprivileged and homeless families from paying a supersedeas bond when appealing ejectment cases, providing additional legal protection for households facing eviction. Another measure, SB 1863 filed by Sen. Bam Aquino, will establish a loan restructuring and condonation program for beneficiaries of socialized and low-cost housing to ease repayment burdens and prevent housing foreclosures. The committee also approved several proposals amending the Condominium Act, including SB 922 by Estrada, SB 1442 by Sen. JV Ejercito, and House Bill 2286 authored by lawmakers including Representatives Victoria Co-Pilar and Leila de Lima. The proposals aim to update rules on the dissolution and redevelopment of condominium projects to improve safety and redevelopment options for aging urban buildings. During the hearing, Escudero ordered the consolidation of related measures and referred several proposals to newly created subcommittees for further study. Among the measures is Senate Resolution 254 filed by Aquino, which calls for an inquiry into the implementation of government housing and resettlement programs. The committee also examined the administration's recalibrated housing targets under President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. Instead of the earlier goal of producing 1 million housing units annually, the updated target is 1.13 million units for Marcos' entire term ending in 2028. Officials from the Department of Human Settlements and Urban Development reported that the country faces a housing backlog of about 2.2 million units, with around 477,000 units delivered so far.

- Free kidney disease screening offered (2026-03-12 16:04)

HEALTH experts on Thursday urged the public to take advantage of free screening services aimed at preventing chronic kidney disease (CKD), in line with the celebration of World Kidney Day. AstraZeneca, Mercury Drug, and Diabetes Philippines announced the expansion of their free screening program, which was launched in January this year. The free services include blood pressure, random blood sugar, body mass index, and urine albumin-creatinine ratio (UACR) screening. The expansion now includes doctors present at the screening sites to help patients with treatment and recommendations every Sunday. During the launch of the expansion in Mandaluyong City, Dr. Rey Rosales, treasurer of Diabetes Philippines, emphasized the importance of early screening. Rosales said 58 percent of patients with type 2 diabetes “will develop chronic kidney disease.” “So if you were able to get your diabetes at an early stage, the longer that you have your diabetes, the higher the chance that you may get chronic kidney disease,” he said. Early screening for CKD, often dubbed as a “silent disease,” is crucial since the symptoms appear only at advanced stages, he said. He noted that 90 percent of CKD patients remain undiagnosed. Rosales further explained the correlation between kidney health and heart health. Fifty percent of patients with diabetes “will eventually also develop a heart condition we call heart failure. Because the two organs are interrelated,” he said. He told The Manila Times that since the launch of its free screening program, over 2,000 patients have been tested. The free screenings are available at select Mercury Drug branches, including Trinoma, Shangri-La Plaza, Pavilion Mall, and Noveleta, Cavite. Rosales said the services will be expanded to include 50 more Mercury Drug branches.

- MMDA officials reject ‘no apprehension’ proposal (2026-03-12 16:03)

THE chief of the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority’s (MMDA) Swift Traffic Action Group (STAG) pushed back against a lawmaker’s suggestion to suspend traffic apprehensions, saying enforcement is meant to correct violations and keep roads safer for motorists and the public. Edison “Bong” Nebrija made the remarks on Thursday after Swerte Rep. Arlyn Ayon asked the Land Transportation Office (LTO) during a House Committee on Transportation hearing whether authorities could temporarily stop apprehending traffic violators, especially single motorcycle riders, amid rising oil prices. “Let us be clear — traffic apprehension is not meant to make the lives of our countrymen harder. It is meant to correct misbehavior and make our roads safer for everyone,” Nebrija said in a statement. Nebrija said he often stresses in his lectures the need to change how people view traffic rules, saying motorists should recognize that regulations are meant to protect road users rather than burden them. “Because if we keep looking at traffic apprehension as burden, then try comparing it with paying hospital bills after a road crash. It is much more burdensome,” he said. MMDA Special Operations Group–Strike Force head Gabriel Go also questioned Ayon’s proposal, saying that enforcement only applies to those who commit violations. “As long as motorists have no violations, there will be no apprehensions. But we cannot forego apprehending erring motorists as this will bring disorder on the roads. Discipline and order are a must on our roads as this is a matter of road safety for all road users,” Go told The Manila Times on Thursday. During the hearing, Ayon had asked if authorities could consider a temporary “no apprehension” policy for single motorcycle riders, whom she said are often parents bringing children to school.

- PPPI helps bring free medical, lab services to SSS pensioners (2026-03-12 16:02)

THE Philippine Pharma Procurement Inc. (PPPI) has partnered with the Social Security System (SSS) and a private primary care services provider to make free consultations, laboratory tests and access to 75 essential medicines available to PhilHealth members. Maria Blanca Kim Lokin, PPPI president and CEO, led the signing of a memorandum of agreement (MOA) with Julie Benedicto, Life Saver Medical Services president, at the SSS Diliman Branch in Quezon City with SSS President and CEO Robert Joseph de Claro and PhilHealth Vice President Walter Bacaresa as witnesses. Lokin said the MOA formalizes the delivery of essential and basic medicines and vaccines under PhilHealth’s Yaman ng Kalusugan (Yakap) program through the “Pambansang Botika” which was launched earlier this year by the three government agencies. The services would begin immediately upon signing in pursuant to the directive of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. to bring health care services closer to every Filipino, said Lokin, whose agency is the only government-owned and controlled corporation (GOCC) that deals with the health aspect for the people. “We are concentrating on linking PPPI’s pharmacy services with the Yakap program of PhilHealth to provide comprehensive health care services as directed by our president,” she told reporters. Under the agreement, the PPPI — mandated to procure and distribute “quality and affordable medicines and vaccines as well as health care products” to both public and private sectors — will be the direct wholesale medicine supplier to Life Saver, ensuring the availability and continuity of the 75 essential medicines at the SSS Diliman branch. Lauding the initiative of PPPI in partnership with Benedicto’s Life Saver, de Claro said services to SSS members, particularly pensioners, have been expanded. “Our pensioners may avail of free primary care services and free medicines when they visit our Diliman branch, as we also intend to open similar Pambansang Botika outlets at SSS’ bigger branches outside Metro Manila,” he told The Manila Times. While SSS pensioners and members are the primary beneficiaries at its Diliman branch, de Claro explained that Yakap services are also open to PhilHealth members. “The Pambansang Botika at SSS Diliman Branch would be open to all Filipinos. No one is turned away,” he said. Those who are not yet registered under the Yakap program may register on-site or through the eGovPh App, the PhilHealth portal or any PhilHealth office, said Bacaresa. A Yakap program beneficiary can receive P20,000 worth of essential doctor’s prescribed medicines every year, Bacaresa said.

MANILA, Philippines — Over P12 million worth of vehicles and quarry materials valued at P12,000,000.00 were seized during a crackdown on illegal quarrying in Laguindingan, Misamis Oriental on March 9 resulting in the arrest of four individuals, the Philippine National Police (PNP) said. The operation, led by the Task Force Kalikasan ug Kalinaw of Misamis Oriental in coordination with the Provincial Local Environment and Natural Resources Office (PLENRO) Misamis Oriental and the Laguindingan Municipal Police Station, resulted in the arrest of four male suspects identified by their aliases as “Nard,” “Rome,” “Arcos,” all from Bukidnon, and “Jo,” a resident of Laguindingan, Misamis Oriental. Confiscated were three dump trucks loaded with sand and gravel and one backhoe used for quarrying operations, carrying 16 cubic meters of sand and gravel, another 16 cubic meters of sand and gravel, and one cubic meter of gravel, totaling P12 million. The suspects are facing charges for violation of Sangguniang Panlalawigan Ordinance No. 4014-2017, and the case has been forwarded to PLENRO Misamis Oriental for proper disposition and further legal action. PNP Chief PGEN Jose Melencio C. Nartatez Jr. said, “Illegal quarrying threatens both the environment and local livelihoods. The PNP is committed to ensuring that all violations are addressed decisively and lawfully.”

- EU-Asean Business Council urges PH to showcase anti-illicit trade system (2026-03-12 13:35)

MANILA, Philippines—Illicit trade is threatening Southeast Asia’s economic growth and sustainability goals, prompting the EU-Asean Business Council (EU-ABC) to urge the Philippines to use its Asean chairship to demonstrate stronger regional safeguards against smuggling and illegal commerce. In a report submitted to the Philippine government and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations Secretariat, the Council called on Manila to showcase the Preboarded Technical Verification (PTV) mechanism as a model for coordinated enforcement across the region. The report, titled “Driving Asean Action Against Illicit Trade,” outlined a roadmap encouraging Asean members to adopt a “cooperation-first” approach in addressing illicit trade while integrating such measures into the bloc’s broader economic priorities. According to the Council, the Philippines is well positioned to lead regional efforts to secure trade corridors increasingly vulnerable to organized illicit activity. By promoting policy coordination and regional collaboration, the country could help strengthen supply chains across Southeast Asia while ensuring that legitimate trade flows remain resilient and interconnected. The report cited recent Philippine reforms, including the Anti-Agricultural Economic Sabotage Law targeting large-scale smuggling, as well as verification systems such as the PTV mechanism designed to prevent non-compliant shipments from leaving exporting countries. It added that the Philippines’ chairship provides an opportunity to showcase domestic measures that curb diversion at the export stage. These include regulations requiring tobacco exports to carry the fiscal and regulatory markings of their destination markets under Republic Act 10643, which aims to prevent products from being redirected into illicit markets. The Council noted that enforcement remains critical to the success of these initiatives, and that the Philippines could use its leadership role to promote the exchange of practical enforcement strategies across Asean member states. The report said the chairship could also be used to strengthen customs cooperation mechanisms, improve risk-based border controls, and encourage data-driven systems that facilitate legitimate trade while deterring illegal activities. The Council tied its recommendations to Asean’s Priority Economic Deliverables, saying the proposals were meant to reinforce existing commitments rather than introduce new mandates. As the Philippines assumes the Asean chairship under the theme “Navigating Our Future Together,” the group said integrating anti-illicit trade measures into the bloc’s economic agenda would help safeguard regional markets. Chris Humphrey, executive director of EU-ABC, said the 2026 chairship aims to strengthen regional trade and investment links while improving supply chain resilience and accelerating digital transformation. “Achieving these objectives requires not only deeper integration, but also stronger safeguards to ensure that trade remains secure, transparent, and rules-based,” Humphrey said. The Council said illicit trade drains public revenues and erodes confidence in supply chains across multiple sectors, including medicines, fuels, consumer goods, agricultural products, alcohol, and tobacco. Among the proposed solutions were stronger customs cooperation, adoption of artificial intelligence-driven risk management tools, and expanded use of digital traceability platforms such as the Asean Single Window. The recommendations aim to protect legitimate business activity while removing illicit operators from supply chains, the report said, adding that integrating such measures into the 2026 regional agenda could bolster investor confidence and demonstrate Asean’s commitment to a secure and forward-looking economic environment. “By building on existing Asean mechanisms, promoting risk-based and trade-facilitative approaches, and strengthening cooperation with the private sector and dialogue partners, Asean can reinforce its commitment to a resilient, sustainable, and future-ready regional economy,” Humphrey said. The EU-ABC prepared the report following its business mission to Manila in 2025 and submitted it to key Philippine agencies, including the Department of Trade and Industry and the Department of Finance. Illicit tobacco trade remains a major concern in the region, costing Asean economies billions of pesos in lost tax revenues each year while supporting smuggling networks and organized crime. Sen. Win Gatchalian, chairman of the Senate Committee on Ways and Means, cited data from the Bureau of Internal Revenue showing that the Philippines lost an estimated P50 billion in 2024 due to illicit cigarette trade and the misdeclaration of vapor products.

- Phoenix on Hidilyn's lifetime fuel supply: We fulfilled our commitment (2026-03-12 12:44)

MANILA, Philippines—Phoenix Petroleum maintained that it fulfilled its commitment with the country's first gold medalist, Hidilyn Diaz, by giving her P5 million and her supply of fuel, which was discussed online recently. In a statement, the company said Diaz was asked to share that she received the second year of her fuel donation online but she declined, having signed a contract with another petroleum company. She also stopped communicating with them. "We fulfilled our commitments. As with many corporate donations, such arrangements are guided by conditions, including brand alignment. As circumstances changed and Ms. Diaz engaged with another fuel brand, the fuel donation arrangement could no longer continue under the same terms," the company said in a statement. "It is therefore puzzling that, five years later, this matter has resurfaced online amid discussions about rising fuel prices, leading to misleading narratives and unfair criticism directed at Phoenix Petroleum. Despite the support we extended in good faith, the company is being unjustly vilified," it added. The company issued the statement after Diaz's manager posted on social media that the lifetime fuel supply was not fulfilled. "Had they reached out first, it could have been clarified privately and amicably," Phoenix Petroleum said. "Phoenix Petroleum remains proud of the role we played in supporting our athletes during an important chapter of their journey. Lastly, our respect for Hidilyn Diaz and all Filipino athletes remains steadfast, and we are one with Filipinos in enduring the current difficulties we all face," they added.

- Pangilinan seeks guidelines on release of cash aid to farmers, fishermen (2026-03-12 12:41)

MANILA, Philippines—Sen. Francis Pangilinan urged the Department of Agriculture (DA) to fast track the drafting of the implementing guidelines for the release of the P10 billion cash aid to farmers and fishermen. The chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Food, and Agrarian Reform made the appeal amid the fuel price hike caused by the Middle East war. He said the P10 billion Presidential Assistance to Farmers and Fisherfolk fund is on top of the P75 million that the Bureau of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources (BFAR) can tap from its 2025 budget for the cash assistance to some 15,000 farmers and fisherfolk. "Can we also request the DA through the BFAR, to fast track the guidelines. We need this. It's already March," Pangilinan said during the public hearing on several bills promoting the welfare of farmers and fisherfolks. "The price of crude oil is quite high, and it is anticipated to increase more. So, there is a need to expedite [the release of] this cash assistance," he said in Filipino and English. Pangilinan lamented that the P3,000 initial cash assistance that will be given to the beneficiaries under the P75 million allocation would not be enough to cover the needs of the sector. He said that the continuous rise in fuel prices, which account for 80 percent of total fishing production costs, would lead to higher prices for fish and other seafood products. He vowed to find more ways to provide much-needed fuel subsidy for the affected sector.

The bill aims to "institutionalize the use of safe and efficient digital payment systems in financial transactions of the government and merchants." Agencies covered by the bill would be "required to use safe, efficient and inclusive digital disbursement for payments of goods and services and other government outlays, including cash assistance, as well as the payment of salaries, wages, allowances and honoraria of employees across national agencies, government corporations, local government units, state universities and colleges, and local universities and colleges. - Frasco out as DOT chief, Palace confirms (2026-03-12 09:55)

MANILA, Philippines — Malacañang on Thursday confirmed that Christina Garcia-Frasco has resigned as secretary of the Department of Tourism (DOT). She, however, will continue to serve in government as Presidential Adviser for Sustainable and Resilient Communities. "As many areas across the country face increasing climate-related hazards and disruptions that affect local economies and livelihoods, the President has tasked Secretary Frasco to take on this role to help strengthen the implementation and sustained follow-through of priority national initiatives at the community level," Presidential Communications Office Undersecretary Claire Castro said in a statement. Undersecretary Verna Buensuceso will temporarily oversee affairs at the DOT as officer-in-charge. There were some reports that trade diplomat Dita Angara-Mathay would likely be the next tourism chief. She is currently the commercial counselor and special trade representative of the Philippines in Tokyo, Japan. "Secretary Frasco will transition from her role as Secretary of Tourism, where she led efforts to support tourism enterprises and livelihoods and to deepen partnerships with local governments nationwide," Castro said. "The President expressed his appreciation for her service at the Department of Tourism and conveyed his confidence that her experience working closely with local governments and communities will continue to support the Administration's priorities," she added.

- Marcos certifies as urgent bill granting him emergency powers to reduce excise tax on fuel (2026-03-12 09:33)

MANILA, Philippines—President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Thursday certified as urgent House Bill 8418 which would grant him emergency powers to suspend or reduce excise taxes on petroleum products. Executive Secretary Ralph Recto, by authority of the president, transmitted a letter to Speaker Faustino "Bodjie" Dy 3rd stating the "necessity of the immediate enactment" of the proposed law. HB 8418 seeks to give Marcos the power to suspend or reduce excise taxes on petroleum during national or global emergencies not longer than six months. It likewise authorizes the government to address the "extraordinary fuel price volatility and stabilize domestic fuel prices during the period of severe economic disruptions." As prescribed in the 2017 Tax Reform for Acceleration and Inclusion (Train) Law, the Philippines imposes an excise tax of P10 per liter on gasoline, P6 per liter on diesel and P5 per liter on kerosene. Under the Constitution, certifying a bill as urgent allows Congress to bypass the usual requirement of three separate readings on different days, enabling lawmakers to accelerate the passage of legislation deemed critical. The war in the Middle East caused pump prices to spike this week. Last Tuesday saw a double digit rise with gasoline prices up by as much as P10.20 a liter, diesel by as much as P24.25 a liter, and kerosene by as much as P38.50 a liter.

MANILA, Philippines—About 21 kilograms of suspected shabu worth P142,800,000 were seized during a buy-bust operation on March 11 in Quezon City. Operatives from the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency and the Philippine National Police (PNP) arrested two men. Charges for Violation of Sections 5 and 11, Article II of Republic Act 9165 or the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act of 2002 will be filed against them before the Quezon City Prosecutor's Office. PNP chief Gen. Jose Melencio Nartatez Jr. commended the operatives for the successful operation and emphasized the importance of sustained anti-drug enforcement. "This operation removed a significant volume of illegal drugs that could have circulated in our communities. The Philippine National Police remains relentless in dismantling drug distribution networks that threaten public safety," Nartatez said.

MANILA, Philippines — Malacañang on Thursday assured the public that the government has enough funds to respond to the economic impact of the war in the Middle East. Palace Press Officer Claire Castro said the government does not need to borrow from international lending institutions to support its response to the global oil price spike triggered by the war. "As of now, nothing has been mentioned about that. We spoke with and asked Department of Finance Secretary (Frederick) Go about it. At present, there are no plans," Castro told reporters. "As of now, borrowing has not yet been considered," she added.

- Lacson pushes heavier penalties vs espionage (2026-03-12 08:20)

MANILA, Philippines — Sen. Panfilo Lacson said recent reports on alleged foreign espionage targeting the Philippines' state secrets underscore the need for stricter penalties. The senator on Thursday said he filed a bill to address the issue in July last year. But the measure is still pending at the Committee on National Defense and Security, Peace, Unification and Reconciliation. He filed Senate Bill (SB) 33 which seeks to strengthen and modernize anti-espionage laws by increasing penalties and covering new technologies. "It was one of the first bills I filed in the 20th Congress, to update our anti-espionage law. Our current law is a Commonwealth Act dating back to 1941, whose penalties are too light," Lacson said. "So I say we need to strengthen the law to address modern-day threats. Our world has changed, and spying is detrimental to our national security," he said in English and Filipino in a radio interview. SB 33 seeks to mete life imprisonment without parole and fines ranging from P5 million to P20 million to those who engage and conspire to engage in espionage and interference in the country's internal affairs – including those who aid and abet them. Lacson said that other countries impose much harsher penalties on espionage, including execution in China. Last week, the National Security Council confirmed that three Filipinos were detained over alleged espionage activities believed to be linked to foreign intelligence operations in the Philippines. The suspects have confessed and are cooperating with authorities, Navy Rear Admiral Roy Vincent Trinidad said. Officials also revealed that the individuals were recruited through covert channels and used digital platforms to relay information.

- Palace declines to confirm reports that Frasco has resigned (2026-03-12 07:39)

MANILA, Philippines—Malacañang on Thursday declined to confirm reports that Tourism Secretary Christina Frasco has resigned. In a press briefing, Presidential Communications Office Undersecretary Claire Castro said she has yet to receive instructions regarding making an announcement on the reported leadership change. “Maybe yes, maybe no. We will make an announcement tomorrow,” Castro said in Filipino. “I can't give any details right now. I haven't been given the paper yet, if ever there is one. Once there is an announcement that needs to be made, I will give it to you immediately,” she told reporters. Online buzz has pointed to career trade diplomat Dita Angara-Mathay as Frasco's replacement. She is currently the commercial counselor and special trade representative of the Philippines in Tokyo, Japan. Talks have been rife that Frasco would leave the Cabinet over her perceived self-promotion instead of promoting the Philippines on the global stage and the lagging numbers of tourist arrivals as compared to the country's neighbors in Southeast Asia, among others.

MANILA, Philippines—More vulnerable Filipino workers are expected to gain access to livelihood support, skills training, and emergency jobs after the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE) updated the guidelines for its Kabuhayan and Tulong Panghanapbuhay sa Ating Disadvantaged Workers (Tupad) programs. Labor Secretary Bienvenido Laguesma introduced the changes through Department Order (DO) 239-B, Series of 2026, which amends the earlier guidelines under DO 239-2 governing the Integrated Livelihood and Emergency Employment Program. The update supports the administration's efforts to broaden Filipinos' access to livelihood and job opportunities. Under the new guidelines, beneficiaries will be linked to skills training and job opportunities to help them transition to more sustainable sources of income. Coverage has also been expanded to include guardians of child laborers and micro-entrepreneurs who have undergone DOLE Technical and Advisory Visits. Other beneficiaries include indigenous peoples, Tesda graduates, workers from micro-establishments who completed productivity improvement training, and labor organizations under the Workers Organization Development Program. The guidelines also clarify that only one eligible member per family may avail of TUPAD assistance per year, except during natural or human-induced calamities. Pregnant beneficiaries and persons with disabilities must submit certification of fitness to work. Wages will be released through remittance centers, digital payment platforms, or authorized paymasters, with direct payouts allowed only in areas without access to these channels.

- ‘Weak’ amihan continues to prevail over Luzon, Visayas (2026-03-12 01:24)

MANILA, Philippines—The northeast monsoon or amihan prevails in Luzon including Metro Manila and the Visayas but the cool and dry winds it brings were no longer that strong, the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said on Thursday. Weather specialist Loredin Dela Cruz-Galicia said the tropical storm with international name Nuri was unlikely to enter the Philippine Area of Responsibility (PAR). Estimated to be some 1,415 kilometers east of Eastern Visayas, “Nuri” would not directly affect the weather conditions in the country but its trough or extension would bring cloudy skies with scattered rains and thunderstorms over Dinagat Islands and Surigao del Norte, she said. She said Batanes and Babuyan Islands have been experiencing overcast skies with rains due to the northeast monsoon, which is also affecting the rest of Cagayan Valley, Aurora, Apayao, and Kalinga where cloudy skies with light rains would prevail in 24 hours. The rest of Mindanao, Eastern Samar, Leyte, and Southern Leyte would likely have partly cloudy to cloudy skies with isolated rain showers or thunderstorms due to the localized thunderstorms, Pagasa said.

MANILA, Philippines — A motorcycle rider died after a large tree along the national road in Putatan village, Muntinlupa City fell, hitting several vehicles and disrupting traffic near the city hall late Wednesday night. The incident, which happened in front of a restaurant, forced the temporary closure of a section of the road, according to the Muntinlupa City Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Office (MDRRMO). Initial reports said the rider was pinned beneath the tree when it collapsed. Rescuers rushed him to the Muntinlupa City Medical Center. - Marcos back in PH after working visit to US (2026-03-12 01:02)

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. returned to Manila late Wednesday night from what he described as a "very productive" working visit to the United States. The plane carrying Marcos, first lady Liza Araneta-Marcos and the rest of the Philippine delegation landed at Villamor Airbase in Pasay City at 11:29 p.m. "I am happy to report that the outcomes of this visit call for peace amidst tensions in the Middle East and other parts of the world, and of course, to campaign for our UN Security Council candidature," Marcos said. On Monday, the President said he delivered the Philippine National Statement at the 70th session of the Commission on the Status of Women, where he shared that the nation's true progress is measured by the status and empowerment of its women. Marcos also had "very good" discussions with the United Nations Secretary-General, António Guterres, conveying the Philippines' enduring commitment to the UN and multilateralism. In his address at the special session of the UN General Assembly, the President stressed the importance of the rule of law, multilateralism, and the peaceful settlement of disputes. Marcos also pushed the Philippines' request for a candidature for a non-permanent seat on the UN Security Council for the term 2027 to 2028, highlighting that the Philippines could give voice to the Indo-Pacific, including developing countries, climate-vulnerable nations, and middle-income countries. On the sidelines of the visit, the President said he met with business leaders and investors, among them officials of the US Medical Glove company to discuss their plans to build a manufacturing facility in the country. If realized, the project could create more than 2,000 jobs in the Philippines, he said. Marcos also met with senior leaders at J.P. Morgan to discuss ongoing economic cooperation and the global issues affecting financial markets. The conversation covered heightened geopolitical tensions and their impact on global oil prices, as well as the broader implications for both advanced and emerging nations. "Our engagements in the UN and other multilateral fora complement our efforts to enrich bilateral relations with countries around the world. We do as well want to enhance regional solidarity, chiefly through Asean," Marcos said.

PUBLIC utility vehicle (PUV) drivers in Metro Manila will receive a P5,000 fuel subsidy from the government beginning Tuesday, March 17, the Palace announced on Wednesday as authorities moved to cushion the impact of a sharp rise in oil prices triggered by war in the Middle East. The subsidy will be implemented across the country shortly after that, officials said. The announcement was made after Executive Secretary Ralph Recto met with Metro Manila mayors and the heads of various departments and agencies. "As mayors, you are the ones who know best the real situation and the number of tricycle and jeepney drivers in your cities," Recto said in Filipino. "That is why our cooperation is important. With good coordination and simultaneous action, we can deliver assistance faster to every driver in need." San Juan Mayor

Francis Zamora, who was at the Palace meeting, said another round of cash aid would be distributed if the crisis persists. Transportation Secretary Giovanni Lopez said the Department of Transportation (DOTr) has been coordinating with the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) and local government units for the rollout of the subsidy. Lopez said tricycle drivers in Metro Manila would be the first to receive the assistance, followed by drivers of jeepneys, taxis, transport network vehicle service units and buses. The DOTr and DSWD are also working with the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB), the Department of Information and Communications Technology, and the Department of the Interior and Local Government to validate the list of beneficiaries. Social Welfare Secretary Rex Gatchalian said drivers in the provinces would also receive assistance once the program is rolled out in Metro Manila. “We will just kick it off in Metro Manila, but the payouts will quickly follow in other areas. One after the other, these will happen because the DSWD has nationwide offices that can conduct simultaneous payouts,” Gatchalian said. The cash aid, amounting to P5,000 per beneficiary, will be released under the agency’s Assistance to Individuals in Crisis Situations program, which has a budget of P62 billion. Gatchalian said at this point, they consider public utility drivers to be individuals in crisis situations because their jobs have been affected. Meanwhile, Lopez said he had also spoken with toll operators about granting discounts to Class 3 vehicles, such as buses and trucks, to help reduce operating costs amid the continued rise in diesel and gasoline prices. He said the proposed discounts could allow bus operators to save between P5 and P7 per liter, which could translate to about P7,000 in savings for every 100 liters of fuel consumed. “These are some of the noncash interventions and other measures being implemented by the national government,” the transport chief said. Lopez also confirmed that fare increases for some public transportation modes are being considered to help drivers and operators cope with higher fuel costs. However, the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board is still studying how much the increase would be. He said LTFRB Chairman Vigor Mendoza II was expected to complete the review of fare hike petitions within the week. “I told the LTFRB to carefully study their initial recommendation because we have to treat this very carefully and with an abundance of caution. Instead of helping the majority, we might end up worsening the situation,” Lopez said. The DOTr is also studying, together with the Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines, the possible reduction of aircraft landing and takeoff fees ahead of Holy Week, when a surge of passengers traveling to the provinces is expected. The Palace also announced on Wednesday that the president has asked local chief executives nationwide to use their Local Government Support Fund (LGSF) to ease the burden on vulnerable sectors affected by the war in the Middle East. The Presidential Communications Office (PCO) said Marcos issued the call as part of the national government’s efforts to cushion the possible economic and social impact of the crisis, particularly on families of overseas Filipino workers (OFWs). “Under the instruction, local government units (LGUs) may use the LGSF to assist communities affected by international crises, including families of OFWs impacted by the Middle East conflict, through financial aid, social services and emergency response programs,” the PCO said. The LGSF is a national government fund transferred to provinces, cities, municipalities and barangay to finance priority development programs and urgent local needs. In the 2026 national budget, the LGSF allocation was about P57.88 billion to support projects and programs of LGUs nationwide. The fund provides financial assistance and flexibility, enabling local governments to implement programs that address local economic and social concerns. While the LGSF is usually used for development projects, LGUs may redirect or prioritize programs to help OFWs and their families affected by overseas conflicts. Among the possible assistance programs are emergency financial aid for returning OFWs, financial support for families whose income was disrupted and subsidies for displaced workers. Metro Manila mayors, including Francisco “Isko Moreno” Domagoso of Manila and Zamora of San Juan, joined Lopez and Gatchalian in a press conference in Malacañang on Wednesday to discuss the government’s preparations. Domagoso thanked the president for increasing the LGSF allocation, saying the move would help local governments respond quickly to the needs of affected families. Also present at the briefing were the mayors of Pasay, Las Piñas, Mandaluyong, Valenzuela, Pateros and Malabon. Marcos earlier announced several government measures to alleviate the impact of the expected surge in fuel prices triggered by the ongoing crisis in the Middle East, including possible tax adjustments on petroleum products, fuel subsidies and energy-saving steps across government offices. In other developments:— President Marcos said he intends to certify as urgent a bill that would grant him emergency powers to reduce excise taxes once global oil prices reach a specific threshold. The House of Representatives on Wednesday started tackling at the plenary level its version of the bill. House Bill 8418 was referred to the plenary on Tuesday evening after the House Committee on Ways and Means approved the measure earlier that day.— Sen. Erwin Tulfo on Wednesday called for swift government action to cushion the impact of rising global oil prices, proposing the automatic suspension of fuel taxes once crude prices breach a set threshold. During a hearing of the Senate Committee on Ways and Means on March 11, Tulfo said the Philippines must prepare for the economic impact of escalating tensions in the Middle East, particularly the intensifying hostilities between Israel and Iran.— Sen. Sherwin Gatchalian urged the government to expedite the transition to electric vehicles (EVs) in the Philippines, warning that the nation is significantly vulnerable to global oil price fluctuations. “The ongoing hostilities in the Middle East should serve as a wake-up call. We desperately need to reduce the country’s vulnerability to oil price volatility. Filipinos have repeatedly borne the brunt of rising oil prices,” Gatchalian said in a statement. “Accelerating our transition to the adoption of EVs would help insulate the local economy from fuel shocks,” he added. - ‘Cost of govt infrastructure will go up’ (2026-03-11 16:13)

THE cost of government infrastructure projects will rise significantly as the war in the Middle East drives up oil prices worldwide, the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) said Wednesday. Public Works Secretary Vince Dizon said on Wednesday the rising oil prices would have an inevitable domino effect on construction, because almost everything from equipment to materials is dependent on fuel. “Our projects that need to be completed — such as roads, bridges and other infrastructure — are highly dependent on fuel, especially for operating heavy equipment,” Dizon said. “Higher oil prices could also increase the cost of essential construction materials such as steel, cement and asphalt, which are often affected by fluctuations in global energy prices and transportation costs,” he added. Crude oil prices have climbed to about $120 per barrel, driving up the cost of gasoline, diesel and kerosene in recent days. Despite the possible cost pressures, Dizon assured the public that the government has mechanisms in place to manage price increases and ensure that infrastructure projects continue without major disruptions. He said infrastructure contracts already include price escalation clauses and variation orders, which allow project costs to be adjusted when there are unexpected increases in the prices of fuel or construction materials. “Prices can be adjusted or variation orders can be issued when implementing new projects this 2026,” Dizon said, but added that such measures must be applied properly and should not be abused. Under his watch, Dizon said, the DPWH will implement only quality projects, using the right specifications of materials at the right price, he said. “That’s possible — the price can be right, it can be fast, it can be quality,” Dizon said. President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. has directed government agencies to continue pursuing infrastructure development despite global economic uncertainties and geopolitical tensions, he said. The DPWH is also processing payments to contractors for completed project milestones even stressed that the release of funds depends on cash allocations from the Department of Budget and Management (DBM). Dizon said only about half of the expected payments for some projects have been released during the first quarter of the year as the agency awaits additional cash releases from the DBM. But Dizon assured contractors that once the funds are released and project accomplishments are verified, payments will proceed without delay.

- Marcos confirms Zaldy Co in Portugal (2026-03-11 16:12)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. said the government is working with Portuguese authorities to facilitate the return of former lawmaker and fugitive Elizaldy “Zaldy” Co to the Philippines. In a media interview in New York on Tuesday, Marcos said the Philippine government has filed a request for a Red Notice from the International Criminal Police Organization (Interpol) to trace Co’s movements. “You cannot bring him home because that is not the way it works. We have to ask the assistance of the country where he is in, which is presently Portugal. So, that’s what we have done,” Marcos told reporters before returning to Manila. The president said the Philippine National Police has no jurisdiction over Portugal, but said the host country should assist Philippine authorities in locating Co. “We already requested a Red Notice before the Interpol and we continue to coordinate with Portuguese authorities so he can be brought home,” Marcos said. “That’s the process. You do not send your own police to go and pick him up because our police officers have no jurisdiction over other countries. So, they cannot arrest anyone,” he added. A Red Notice is a request to law enforcement worldwide to locate and provisionally arrest a person pending extradition, surrender or similar legal action. It is based on an arrest warrant or court order issued by the judicial authorities in the requesting country. In November 2025, arrest warrants were issued against Co and others, including officials of the Department of Public Works and Highways, and directors of Sunwest Corp., over alleged anomalous flood control projects. The Ombudsman earlier filed corruption and malversation of public funds charges against Co and others with the Sandiganbayan in connection with the alleged anomalous P289-million flood control project in Oriental Mindoro. Co, formerly the House appropriations committee chairman, has denied the allegations but fled the country in August 2025, and has since accused the president and his cousin, former speaker Martin Romualdez, of accepting billions in bribes. No record of flight to Ilocos

The National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) said Wednesday it has found no evidence that one of Co's former bodyguards, an ex-Marine, had delivered money to the president's residence in Ilocos Norte. NBI Director Melvin Matibag said on Wednesday the agency subpoenaed an air taxi company to inspect its flight logs after claims that Sgt. Belnard Tubid and Co traveled to Ilocos Norte in 2025 to deliver bribes to the presidential household. "Neither Zaldy Co nor Sergeant Tubid appears in the air taxi's flight logs. It is clear that Sergeant Tubid's statement about delivering money to President Marcos' residence is false," Matibag said. He added that the air taxi company confirmed that even with court resolutions and notarized documents covering 2023 to 2025, no flights were recorded for the individuals on any chartered aircraft. Drawing from his experience as former general manager of Manila International Airport, Matibag emphasized the reliability of flight records. "Whether it's a helicopter or a private plane, all passenger names are strictly recorded. These records cannot disappear," he said, noting that the NBI review casts serious doubt on the allegations. In a parallel development, the NBI subpoenaed Bishop Efraim Tendero, ambassador for the World Evangelical Alliance, in connection with his role as a witness in an affidavit submitted by the alleged ex-Marines. The affidavit, notarized by lawyer Charlie Pascual, is reportedly connected to the law firm of Levi Baligod. "Pastor Tendero is also considered a person of interest. We issued a subpoena for him, and he appeared before us, providing photographs and video recordings related to the notarization at the office," Matibag said. He added that the NBI is verifying whether the notarization was indeed conducted in Las Piñas, as claimed, given that Baligod's office is in Makati and the press conference linked to the affidavit took place in San Juan. Matibag noted that while joint affidavits are common legal instruments, the document in question contains serious allegations affecting multiple individuals and matters of national interest. The investigation has also uncovered connections between Pascual and Baligod, including social media interactions tied to former representative Mike Defensor. "These networks and relationships are important in our investigation," Matibag said, emphasizing that the NBI's primary focus remains on the verification of facts and witness statements.

103 bodyguards

Matibag also said a retired general recruited 103 individuals, including 18 alleged former Marines, who served as security aides of Co. "There are 103 bodyguards assigned to Zaldy Co. There is a retired general who recruited them, and we have already identified him," Matibag said. Matibag said lawyer Levi Baligod, counsel of the 18 alleged former Marines, confirmed that the men were assigned as bodyguards to Co and were initially hired for a two-year period. Their employment, however, ended abruptly after Co went missing. As a result, the security personnel — including those claiming to be former Marines — were left without work or pay. "These bodyguards, including the retired Marines, no longer received their salaries and lost their jobs," Matibag said. The NBI chief added that investigators are examining whether the group's financial difficulties may have influenced their decision to execute sworn statements. "One angle we are looking at is that these people no longer have a livelihood. They may have agreed to execute statements because they need compensation,” Matibag said. Authorities are also ensuring that those who executed affidavits were not subjected to threats or intimidation in providing their testimonies. The NBI said its investigation into the matter is ongoing.

- ICC prosecutors question role of 6 Filipino lawyers (2026-03-11 16:11)

PROSECUTORS from the International Criminal Court (ICC) have asked judges to order the defense team of former president Rodrigo Duterte to clarify the status of six Filipino lawyers who have been publicly associated with his case, citing concerns over witness protection and the integrity of confidential proceedings. In a filing made public on Wednesday, the Office of the Prosecutor (OTP) expressed alarm over public statements made by Duterte’s lead defense counsel during last month’s confirmation of charges hearing. The defense team introduced Salvador Medialdea, Salvador Panelo, Martin Delgra, Silvestre Bello, Alfredo Lim and Cesar Dulay as supporters seated in the gallery. According to the prosecution, subsequent media interviews suggested the involvement runs deeper. The defense counsel was quoted as saying that two of the lawyers had been “working with [us] all along,” while another, Panelo, reportedly indicated that the team was set to meet with the “Filipino legal team” to discuss strategies. The prosecution argued that these statements have created a public impression that the six lawyers are formal members of the defense team before the ICC. This ambiguity, the OTP argued, poses a significant problem for prosecutors who are legally obligated under Article 68 of the Rome Statute to protect victims and witnesses. “The prosecution has a duty to take appropriate measures to protect the safety, physical and psychological well-being, dignity and privacy of victims and witnesses,” the filing said. “This includes knowing which individuals work for Mr. Duterte’s defense team, as these individuals have access to highly sensitive confidential information.” The OTP noted that the named individuals have deep ties to the former president, having worked on his presidential campaign and held high-level positions in his administration during the period in which the alleged crimes took place. The prosecution stated it requires clarification to conduct thorough risk assessments and potentially oppose their formal appointment if necessary. Prosecutors claimed they attempted to resolve the matter privately, stating that defense counsel informally advised them that the six men are not team members. However, the OTP argued this representation is inconsistent with the lawyers’ public statements. After defense counsel reportedly refused to clarify the matter on the public record, the prosecution escalated the issue to the chamber. ‘Serious reminder’ Meanwhile, on the anniversary of the arrest of her father, Vice President Sara Duterte said his “extraordinary rendition or kidnapping” served as a “serious reminder.” In March 2025, the former president was brought to the Netherlands after his arrest based on a warrant from the ICC, which had investigated him in connection with the drug war that was carried out during his presidency. Vice President Duterte said in a statement on Wednesday that the “extraordinary rendition or kidnapping” of former president Duterte “is a serious reminder that the law should not be used as a weapon for politics or personal interest.” Another Duterte supporter, Sen. Robinhood Padilla, on Wednesday called on the Supreme Court of the Philippines to act swiftly on pending petitions questioning the legality of the arrest and detention of the former president at the ICC.

- Razon leads 15 Filipinos on Forbes billionaires list (2026-03-11 16:10)

FIFTEEN Filipinos have earned spots on the Forbes 2026 World's Billionaires List, highlighting the country's continued presence among the world's wealthiest individuals. The list, which features a record 3,428 billionaires worldwide with a combined estimated wealth of over $20 trillion, includes Filipino business leaders from diverse industries, including logistics, property, retail, education, and food and beverage. Topping the Filipino roster is Enrique Razon Jr., chairman of International Container Terminal Services Inc. and major stakeholder in Bloomberry Resorts Corp., who ranks 175th globally with an estimated net worth of $16.5 billion, making him the highest placed Filipino this year. Following Razon are 14 other Filipinos. The list includes Ramon Ang, president and chief executive officer of Top Frontier Investment Holdings Inc., the largest shareholder of San Miguel Corp., ranked 1,189th with a net worth of $3.6 billion; Lucio Tan, founder and chairman of the LT Group conglomerate, ranked 1,223rd with $3.5 billion; and Manuel Villar Jr., chairman of Vista Land & Lifescapes, ranked 1,376th with $3.1 billion. Henry Sy Jr., co-vice chairman of SM Investments, was ranked 1,676th with $2.5 billion, while Hans Sy and Herbert Sy both ranked 2,274th with $1.8 billion each. Harley Sy and Andrew Tan were ranked 2,386th, each with $1.7 billion, while Lucio Co and Teresita Sy Coson were ranked 2,481st with $1.6 billion each. Elizabeth Sy and Susan Co were ranked 2,600th, each with $1.5 billion. Tony Tan Caktiong, founder and chairman of Jollibee Foods Corp., was ranked 3,185th with $1.1 billion, while Eusebio Tanco rounded out the list at 3,332nd with $1.0 billion. The composition of this group highlights both the enduring influence of family conglomerates, such as the Sy Group, and the success of entrepreneurial ventures across the Philippines, reflecting the country's growing footprint in the global wealth landscape.

- US medical company investing \$200M in PH (2026-03-11 16:09)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. said a United States-based medical glove company has pledged to invest $200 million to build a manufacturing facility in the Philippines. In a media interview in New York City on Tuesday, Marcos said the US Medical Glove Co. (USMGC) has sent representatives to the Philippines to begin preparations for building its first plant and expanding operations further. "The prospective amount is $200 million in the beginning," Marcos told reporters before returning to Manila. "They have already started it. They sent representatives to the Philippines. They're already starting to build their first plant, and they even want to expand. They already have found the local partner," he added. Marcos met with officials of USMGC on the sidelines of his United Nations engagements in New York City on Monday. The president said the project would create over 2,000 jobs and pave the way for the local production of essential medical supplies. He said the initial phase would involve a smaller investment, but discussions are already under way for a much larger expansion once operations begin. Once operational, the president said the facility would help ensure a stable domestic supply for various sectors.” This is going to be to our advantage; we will have a supply not only for our health care workers but also for the military and others who need it,” he said. Marcos said the government was open to exploring more opportunities if the manufacturing venture performs well. He also said USMGC wanted to expedite the construction of the facility. “The construction of this kind of facility is actually quick. They said that once the building is completed, and once their machinery arrives, they can start the process within 48 hours,” Marcos said. USMGC is the leading American manufacturer of nitrile and polyisoprene surgical and exam gloves, headquartered in a 1.8-million-square-foot facility in Harvard, Illinois. It has 10 nitrile-glove production lines in operation and produces over 2 billion gloves annually. The company uses eco-friendly, energy-efficient machines that are 90 percent lighter than conventional machines and recycles 100 percent of production water. Meanwhile, Marcos said his administration was committed to improving the country’s investment climate and making it easier for companies to do business. This comes as he invited American investors to explore opportunities in the Philippines, saying the country is open for business.” We are ready to work with you. The Philippines is open — and I mean that not as a slogan, but as a commitment from my administration,” the president said during a dinner reception hosted by LT Group Inc. in New York.” We have been working hard to improve our investment climate, cut red tape, make it easier to do business and build something lasting in our country. We are also at a moment of real opportunity,” he added. Marcos said shifting global supply chains have created new opportunities for countries like the Philippines as companies diversify production beyond a single location. He said the Philippines offers advantages such as a skilled and English-speaking workforce, improved infrastructure, and one of the youngest and fastest-growing populations in Asia.” We have a government that is actively investing in industrial zones and manufacturing corridors, and that is serious about making the Philippines a reliable node in global supply chains,” he said. The president said opportunities exist across multiple sectors, including electronics, aerospace components, medical device manufacturing, food processing and other high-value manufacturing industries. Marcos also highlighted opportunities in financial services, noting that a large portion of the Philippine population remains underserved by traditional banking. He said the rapid expansion of fintech, digital payments, microfinance and mass-market insurance products makes the sector ripe for innovation and investment. The government is working to deepen the country’s capital markets and attract global technology firms, data center operators and hyperscalers as the digital economy continues to expand, Marcos said.” We are not waiting to be discovered. We are making the case, actively and deliberately, that the Philippines is where you want to be,” he added. Those who attended the reception included members of the US-Philippines Society, the US-Asean Business Council and the Philippine-American Chamber of Commerce, as well as US businessmen and the Philippine business delegation.

- PH urges law-based South China Sea Code (2026-03-11 16:08)

FOREIGN Affairs Secretary Ma. Theresa Lazaro said the Philippines has always advocated that the formulation of the Code of Conduct (COC) in the South China Sea (SCS) should be consistent with international law and effectively govern behavior at sea. Lazaro referred to the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (Unclos), which defines and codifies the standards and principles of international maritime law. The Philippines, as chairman of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations in 2026, is working overtime to finalize the COC, which will govern the actions of concerned parties in the SCS to maintain peace, stability and economic growth in the region. The atolls, islets and other features in the SCS are claimed in whole by China and in part by Asean member states Brunei, Malaysia, Vietnam and the Philippines. Taiwan also has a stake in the Spratly Islands in the SCS. In a statement on Wednesday, Lazaro said the Philippines has also advocated that the COC should “not carve out a special regime” and “not diminish the rights and interests of third-party states.” She issued the statement in reaction to remarks by Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi concerning the situation in the SCS and the consultation on the completion of the COC this year. Wang said China is hoping that as this year’s Asean chairman, the Philippines will “recognize and fulfill its responsibility, resist the pull of self-interest and play a positive role for peace and stability in the region.” The Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) chief said that as Asean chairman in 2026, the Philippines approached this issue “with a clear sense of responsibility to the region and to the international community.” “As such, the Philippines is committed to ensuring that the South China Sea remains a sea of peace, stability and cooperation,” the DFA chief said. “Likewise, lasting peace and stability in the South China Sea requires all countries, whether big or small, to meet their obligations and responsibilities under international law, particularly Unclos,” Lazaro said. “Countries have to exercise self-restraint and avoid actions that could complicate the situation or increase tensions at sea,” she added. The Philippines, she said, “is committed to working constructively with all Asean member states and China to conclude an effective, substantive and legally binding COC within the year in line with the agreed guidelines.” Guided by the theme “Navigating Our Future, Together,” the Philippines is “committed to take credible, professional and steady stewardship of the Asean chairship this year as we seek collective solutions to regional concerns, including in the maritime domain,” she said. “To this end, we welcome practical cooperation among all Asean member countries and China in essential areas such as maritime safety, marine environmental protection, search and rescue, and the well-being of seafarers, as well as in upholding freedom of navigation and overflight,” Lazaro said. The Philippines “will firmly uphold Asean unity and centrality in addressing regional maritime issues, even as we are unequivocal in protecting our sovereignty, sovereign rights and jurisdiction,” she added.

- PH, US to boost defense ties for 'stable, secure' Indo-Pacific (2026-03-11 16:07)

THE Philippines and the US have agreed to boost their defense cooperation to ensure a stable and secure Indo-Pacific region. The commitment was made during President Ferdinand Marcos Jr.'s meeting with US Undersecretary of War for Policy Eldridge Colby and his delegation in New York on Monday. In a statement on Wednesday, the Presidential Communications Office (PCO) said Marcos and US defense officials discussed efforts aimed at accelerating the two countries' defense partnership amid growing security challenges in the region. "The meeting focused on strengthening deterrence in the Indo-Pacific and improving interoperability between the Armed Forces of the Philippines and the United States military through joint operations such as Exercise Balikatan, which will begin next month," the PCO said. "Both sides also reaffirmed their mutual commitment to the Mutual Defense Treaty and to continue working together for a stable and secure Indo-Pacific region," it added. Exercise Balikatan is the largest annual, bilateral military drill between the Armed Forces of the Philippines and the US military, which is scheduled to begin next month. The exercise aims to enhance the readiness and coordination of both forces while reinforcing their ability to respond to various security challenges in the region. The US Department of War is now officially the Department of Defense. Its mission is to provide military forces necessary to protect the security of the United States. Meanwhile, Marcos reiterated the country's adherence to multilateralism and commitment to the United Nations Charter, underscoring the importance of the rule of law and respect for human rights. "All our efforts will mean little nor will they endure without the rule of law and respect for human rights," Marcos said in a special address to the UN General Assembly in New York City on Tuesday. "The Philippines has consistently affirmed its resolute commitment to the rule of law and the promotion, protection and respect of human rights," he added. The president said the decision of the Philippines to join the United Nations 80 years ago was anchored on the belief that the rule of law is the beacon that guides the journey toward peace, security and shared prosperity. With its commitment to multilateralism and the UN Charter, Marcos said the Philippines, as a responsible State Party, abides by the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea. "We are steadfast in our dedication to diplomacy, the peaceful settlement of disputes and the constructive management of differences to prevent escalation of disputes," Marcos said. "We remain faithful to the principles of territorial integrity and the sovereign equality of all states," he added. Marcos is in New York to rally support for the country's candidature for a non-permanent seat at the United Nations Security Council. "In the midst of mounting challenges and uncertainties, our United Nations need steady, committed, experienced hands; and we humbly offer ours — to serve in the UN Security Council from 2027 to 2028," Marcos said. "We lodged our candidature, mindful that a non-permanent seat on the UN Security Council is not a right of any State, but a privilege earned through consistent, dedicated, meaningful and concrete partnership in the service of the United Nations, and so of humanity," he added. The president expressed the Philippines' readiness to contribute and help calm voices of division, provide a voice of balance for service, and ventilate views for principled peace. "And thus, I stand before you to humbly petition for your support for the Philippines in the elections on the 3rd of June 2026," he said.

- Año sues Baligod, 18 ex-Marines (2026-03-11 16:06)

NATIONAL Security Adviser Eduardo Año on Wednesday filed cyberlibel and perjury complaints before the Department of Justice (DOJ) against lawyer Levito Baligod and 18 alleged former Marines, accusing them of issuing false statements meant to discredit him and the National Security Council. The complaints stemmed from affidavits submitted by the 18 individuals, which allegedly claimed that millions of pesos in cash were delivered in suitcases to certain high-ranking officials. Portions of the affidavits reportedly mentioned Año and other officials as recipients, even though Año said his name was inserted without any attribution to witnesses. “I want to make it clear. I don’t care about the other things they are saying. What concerns me are the malicious imputations and publications directed against me,” Año told reporters. “I filed this so we can determine who was really responsible for the publication.” Año said the affidavits appear to have been jointly prepared, with several paragraphs specifying who supposedly witnessed each event. However, the section mentioning him contained no attribution, raising concerns that his name was added to damage his reputation and that of a government institution. “They made a joint affidavit. If you look at the affidavit, each paragraph states who saw the allegations. But there’s nothing on the allegations against me,” Año said. He added that someone had “obviously” directed the inclusion of his name to smear him and discredit the National Security Council. “I have to protect my name and my honor. I have served the Armed Forces for 38 years. Regardless of any corruption or moral turpitude cases, I have never been involved, much less during my tenure as DILG secretary, and now as national security adviser,” he said. He emphasized that he was not involved in any flood control project, despite allegations linking him to purported cash deliveries connected to flood control corruption. Año also accused Baligod of publicly admitting to manipulating the contents of the affidavit. “Atty. Baligod admitted in public that he manipulated the contents of the affidavit. He also admitted that it was an oversight or error on his part. So, according to my legal counsel, that constitutes perjury,” he said. The complaints filed Wednesday are separate from a previous complaint Año lodged against Baligod, the alleged former Marines, and former representative Mike Defensor. That earlier complaint was based on violations of Article 154 of the Revised Penal Code, or unlawful use of means of publication and unlawful utterances, in relation to the Cybercrime Prevention Act of 2012. Año described the earlier complaint as more about “fake news,” while the new filings are “more personal,” focused on damaging his honor and reputation. The allegations revolve around a joint affidavit by the 18 alleged former Marines, who claimed that cash was delivered to high-ranking officials, including Año, after meetings with former lawmaker Zaldy Co, former speaker Martin Romualdez, and Mamamayang Liberal party-list Rep. Leila de Lima. According to Año, the affidavits were carefully prepared to indicate witnesses for nearly every claim — but the portion referencing him contained none. Año said he believed two individuals were behind the inclusion of his name but declined to reveal their identities. The Philippine Navy previously stated that four of the 18 alleged former Marines were never members of the Navy or Marine Corps. The National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) has also started looking into the credibility of the former Marines and the claims in the affidavit. Besides Año, former senator Antonio Trillanes IV, de Lima, Father Flavie Villanueva, and Bureau of Corrections Director General Gregorio Catapang Jr. have filed complaints against the same group of alleged ex-Marines and Baligod. Año also noted that his office is monitoring for possible coordinated destabilization efforts. “Our intelligence community is conducting investigations because it is suspicious why these kinds of incidents are happening all at the same time,” he said.

- Mindoro lawmaker denounces complaint as ‘harassment’ (2026-03-11 16:05)

OCCIDENTAL Mindoro Rep. Leody Tarriela on Tuesday denounced as "harassment" the complaint filed against him before the Office of the Ombudsman. "Like I have said at the ICI (Independent Commission for Infrastructure) when I voluntarily faced it on November 26, 2025, my primary obligation as a lawmaker is to help by passing laws. I am not a member of the Committee on Appropriations of the Bicameral Conference Committee," Tarriela said in a statement. "I do not meddle in the implementation of projects by the Department of Public Works and Highways. I do not join procurement and biddings. I do not order anyone to meddle in these things," he said, adding that he was not a contractor. The complaint against the lawmaker was filed by Radamalyne Fernando Cardoza, who claimed that the complaint was submitted in good faith, "with full regard for the constitutional rights of the respondent and the presumption of innocence." "It is not intended to harass, malign, or prejudice any party, but solely to seek a lawful determination as to whether probable cause exists," Cardoza said. Tarriela said that the case was filed after Cardoza requested copies of public documents at the DPWH office in Mindoro. However, his request was not acted upon. "How can it be my fault if his request was not granted? And what is the basis of his complaint?" the lawmaker said. Tarriela has denied Pacifico Discaya's statements before the Senate that he received money from the latter. Tarriela said that his lawyers are studying what case can be filed against Cardoza.

- DOH urges LGUs to pass anti-cigarette ordinances (2026-03-11 16:05)

THE Department of Health (DOH) on Wednesday urged local government units (LGUs) to enact ordinances banning the use of vapes and cigarettes within their jurisdiction. In a statement, the DOH said that while there are efforts from the national government to ban vapes, if unimplemented at the municipal level, the country will "be in danger." Currently, 86 cities and municipalities in the Philippines have established smoke-free environments, including Baguio City. Through its Ordinance 34, series of 2017, or the Comprehensive Anti-Smoking Ordinance, the use, sale, distribution and advertisement of cigarettes and other tobacco products — including e-cigarettes — are prohibited. In an exclusive interview with The Manila Times, Karl Jon Pagoda of the Public Information Office of Baguio City said the enactment of the ordinance led to a decline in smoking and its harmful health effects. "On a public health lens, we already know the effects of smoking and vaping, which prompted the city to enact this ordinance. Since then, we have seen a significant decrease in smoking in the city," he said. According to the 2023 Global Youth Tobacco Survey in Baguio City, 44.74 percent of cigarette users obtained cigarettes by buying them from a store, shop, or vendor — despite such sales being illegal under the ordinance. Pagoda said the city government continues to crack down on establishments selling vape and cigarette products, but the growing number of online sellers has made enforcement more difficult. "Now the challenge is online selling because we cannot track. At the same time, the hidden or underground stores where they sell their vape [items] are in their homes," he said. Because of this, Pagoda called for a nationwide ban on vapes. "It would be more powerful if the national government would push through with this (ban)," he said. Moreover, Pagoda said the Baguio city government is strengthening its communication campaign by partnering with major universities in Baguio. "In our communication campaign, we are partnering with the main universities here in Baguio City, including the University of Baguio, St. Louis University, and the University of the Cordilleras — and they have signified their commitment to banning vaping and smoking in schools,” he said.

- Philippine Eagle protection plan launched (2026-03-11 16:05)

THE Philippine Eagle Foundation (PEF) and its partners launched the Philippine Eagle Species Action Plan (Pesap) 2024–2030 to protect the critically endangered bird and its forest habitat. The action plan serves as a national road map outlining priority strategies to address major threats to the species, including habitat loss, hunting and human-wildlife conflict. Conservation leaders, government officials, scientists and partner institutions gathered for the initiative, underscoring a shared commitment to safeguarding the country’s national bird through science-based conservation and collaboration. The Pesap identifies key areas of action such as research and monitoring, rescue and rehabilitation, habitat protection and restoration, and stronger law enforcement against wildlife crimes. It also highlights the role of local communities, education programs and sustainable conservation financing in ensuring the long-term survival of the Philippine eagle in the wild. Officials emphasized that protecting the raptor also helps preserve forest ecosystems, watersheds and biodiversity that support communities and wildlife across the country. The foundation announced the successful hatching of Philippine eagle chick No. 32, named “Bayani,” a milestone under its conservation breeding program. Bayani is the offspring of Philippine eagles Dakila and Sinag, and represents another step forward in the effort to increase the population of the critically endangered species. Felicia Atienza, chairman of the PEF Board of Trustees, stressed the need for sustained cooperation in protecting the bird and its habitat. “We need what conservation has always demanded from us: unity, persistence and accountability, and we must work together across agencies, regions and sectors until the Philippine eagle is safe in the wild, and its forests and nesting territories are secure,” Atienza said.

- DSWD launches ‘e-Panalo’ digital initiative (2026-03-11 16:05)

THE Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) has launched a digital initiative aimed at making the delivery of financial grants under the Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino Program (4Ps) more efficient. Social Welfare Secretary Rex Gatchalian led the ceremonial distribution of mobile phones to 4Ps beneficiaries in Infanta, Quezon, as part of the “e-Panalo ang Kinabukasan” Digital Financial Inclusion program. The activity aligns with the directive of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. to accelerate government transactions, particularly in delivering financial assistance to Filipinos. A total of 150 beneficiaries from the municipalities of Infanta, Real and General Nakar received mobile phones that will enable them to access their cash grants through GCash. “The president told me and the other Cabinet secretaries to make sure that government transactions, such as the distribution of grants or assistance, become faster,” Gatchalian said. “And to achieve that, we must shift these processes to digital systems.” Gatchalian said that with their grants registered on GCash, beneficiaries will no longer need to travel to payout sites to receive their assistance. “Now that you are registered on GCash, you no longer need to physically go to different places just to claim your grants,” Gatchalian said. He also assured beneficiaries that the agency is working to shorten the waiting time for the release of 4Ps grants. “Before the end of the year, your grants will no longer take 60 days or two months to be released because the plan of the DSWD is for you to receive them within the same month,” he added.

- Lotilla confirmed as Holy See envoy (2026-03-11 16:04)

THE Commission on Appointments (CA) on Wednesday approved the ad interim appointment of Raphael Lotilla as the Philippines’ ambassador to the Holy See, clearing the way for the former Cabinet secretary to return to government service in a key diplomatic role. The CA plenary confirmed Lotilla’ s nomination following the endorsement of the Committee on Foreign Affairs after deliberations earlier in the day. Lotilla, a veteran public servant with more than two decades of experience in government, previously served as secretary of the Department of Energy and the Department of Environment and Natural Resources. His new posting to the Vatican places him at the center of one of the Philippines’ most historically significant diplomatic missions, given the country’ s deep ties with the Catholic Church and the Holy See’ s influence in global diplomacy. During the confirmation hearing, Lotilla emphasized the strategic importance of maintaining strong Philippine representation at the Vatican, particularly in advancing global issues aligned with the country’ s foreign policy. “These include the promotion of international law and multilateral institutions, peaceful resolution of conflicts, interfaith dialogue, migration, sustainable development, and the protection of migrant workers’ rights,” he said. Lotilla added that he intends to continue promoting the Philippines’ diplomatic priorities at a time of heightened global tensions, including ongoing instability in the Middle East. In the same hearing, Sen. Risa Hontiveros sought Lotilla’ s advice on how the government could cushion the impact of rising oil prices linked to geopolitical conflicts. Hontiveros noted Lotilla’ s extensive experience in the energy sector, particularly during his tenure as energy secretary at the onset of Russia’ s invasion of Ukraine in 2022, which triggered global fuel price spikes. Lotilla said that during the 2022 crisis, the government focused on ensuring adequate power supply and generation to mitigate the impact of higher fuel costs. “But now this is an extraordinary case of price increases, especially in the fuel sector and the possibility of supply constraints,” he said. He added that, in the short term, allowing price increases to pass through the economy can limit prolonged inflationary effects if the shocks are temporary. “As much as possible, the cushion afforded by the economy will allow it to adjust to the increase in prices, and as soon as they normalize, prices can also revert,” Lotilla said. Looking ahead, he said rising fuel prices could accelerate the country’ s transition to cleaner energy. “In the long term, this will encourage the use of renewable energy, electric vehicles, and efforts to hasten the shift to renewable sources found in the Philippines itself,” he said. “This will increase our energy security and therefore be advantageous to all of us.”

- BuCor denies scabies outbreak in PH prisons (2026-03-11 16:03)

THE Bureau of Corrections (BuCor) on Wednesday denied reports of a scabies outbreak at the New Bilibid Prison (NBP) and other prison facilities in the Philippines, saying the last recorded incident occurred two years ago. In a statement, BuCor said Acting Director for Health and Welfare Services CT/Supt. Ma. Cecilia Villanueva clarified that no outbreak of the skin disease has been monitored in any operating prison or penal farm nationwide. Villanueva said the last case of a scabies outbreak in BuCor facilities was recorded two years ago, when the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), in coordination with BuCor, conducted an “Alis Galis” activity to address the problem. Villanueva’s remarks came after the non-governmental organization Kapatid raised concerns about a possible outbreak of scabies inside the national penitentiary, citing severe overcrowding and water shortages in the facility. Kapatid also alleged that it encountered difficulties coordinating with BuCor and NBP officials regarding its humanitarian request related to the issue. Responding to the concern, Villanueva said the bureau has established protocols governing the entry of medicines into correctional facilities to ensure accountability, safety and prevent the entry of contraband. Under BuCor procedures, medicines brought by relatives or other parties must first be deposited with the Directorate for Health and Welfare Services before being turned over to the prison pharmacy or camp infirmary for distribution to the concerned person deprived of liberty (PDL). Relatives are also required to provide an itemized list of the medicines, with containers properly labeled with the PDL’s name. Then, the pharmacist on duty issues a receipt upon submission. Villanueva added that a valid doctor’s prescription must accompany the medicines before they can be approved for use inside prison facilities. Medical officers or pharmacists are authorized to examine the medicines and determine their proper disposition. According to her, the BuCor remains capable of addressing health-related concerns in correctional facilities and assured the public, as well as families of persons deprived of liberty, that appropriate measures are in place to respond to potential health issues.

- CFO to help Makati tap OFs for investment opportunities (2026-03-11 16:02)

MAKATI City Mayor Nancy Binay wants to adopt one of the programs of the Commission on Filipinos Overseas (CFO) to encourage overseas-based Filipinos (OFs) to invest in the country’s major economic hub. According to the CFO, Binay wants to use the agency’s BaLinkBayan (BLB) Portal, a digital gateway for overseas Filipinos, to offer local investment opportunities. During the recent meeting with CFO Secretary Dante Ang II, Binay expressed her intention to coordinate with the agency to encourage OFs to invest in Makati. Ang said that while many overseas Filipinos are eager to invest in their home cities, they often lack access to verified, real-time information. The BaLinkBayan project addresses this by providing local government units (LGUs) with dedicated microsites. “These portals allow cities like Makati to showcase specific investment opportunities directly to their constituents abroad,” Ang said. The CFO said Makati City aims to tap into the vast investment potential of the agency’s overseas-based residents, localize diaspora engagement, and streamline capital flow from returning overseas Filipinos. It is aligned with the CFO’s core mandate to serve as the primary link between the motherland and its permanent migrants. By localizing this effort in Makati, the CFO aims to transform the city's diaspora from a source of occasional remittances into a pillar of local economic development. Binay, noting her experience with retired Filipino professionals vacationing in the city, recognized the untapped potential of the OFs' demographics. Beyond financial capital, the partnership seeks to facilitate "brain gain," connecting Makati with professional migrants in technology and innovation who can transfer critical skills and expertise to aid the city's modernization. The discussions also touched upon the Lingkod sa Kapwa Pilipino program, the CFO's flagship initiative for diaspora philanthropy. While the city is familiar with overseas donations, Ang highlighted the CFO's role in vetting beneficiaries and monitoring projects. This ensures that philanthropic efforts — ranging from health care equipment to educational grants — result in sustainable, long-term impact rather than one-time distributions. The Makati LGU is considering placing the partnership under the oversight of the Economic Enterprises Management Office to maximize its commercial and revenue-generating potential. "This is about recognizing our overseas Filipinos as active partners in our city's progress," Binay said.

- Post Office seeking opinion on artifacts (2026-03-11 16:01)

THE Philippine Postal Corp. (PHLPost) has filed a complaint before a Manila Regional Trial Court seeking judicial clarification on the handling and custody of archaeological artifacts reportedly discovered within the grounds of the historic Manila Central Post Office complex. According to PHLPost, the court filing aims to determine whether proper procedures were followed in the excavation and handling of materials allegedly uncovered within the compound of the fire-damaged iconic building. Based on the affidavit submitted to the court, archaeological excavation activities were reportedly carried out in parts of the complex in November 2023, when the building remained unoccupied following the fire that damaged the structure earlier that year. PHLPost said the work was reportedly conducted by a group of archaeologists and researchers in coordination with certain individuals. The excavations allegedly yielded materials believed to date from the 15th to the 20th century, including biological remains, ceramic fragments, glass and metal objects, masonry materials, shells, and other items that may provide insight into Manila's historical past. However, the postal agency said that it was not formally informed of the reported discoveries at the time. It added that the materials have to be turned over to the corporation or deposited with the appropriate cultural institutions. Under the National Cultural Heritage Act of 2009, archaeological discoveries must be properly documented and coordinated with cultural authorities, including the National Museum of the Philippines and the National Commission for Culture and the Arts. The law also prescribes procedures governing excavation, custody, preservation, and eventual public access to unearthed artifacts. PHLPost asked the court to determine whether the provisions of the law, particularly those governing archaeological excavations and the required reporting and turnover of materials, were properly observed. The agency said it remains committed to working with cultural agencies, academic institutions, and other stakeholders to protect and promote the historical and cultural heritage associated with the Manila Central Post Office. PHLPost added that the court action was intended to help ensure that any artifacts found within the complex are properly documented, preserved, and eventually made accessible to the public.

- Filipino woman files rape case vs foreigner who assaulted her (2026-03-11 13:46)

MANILA, Philippines — A 24-year-old Filipino woman has filed a rape complaint against a Singaporean man she met through an online chat platform. In a sworn statement submitted to the Pasay City Prosecutor's Office on March 5, 2026, the complainant said she was 18 years old at the time of the incident. She named Ricky Ravin Narwani as the respondent, noting that he was temporarily in the Philippines from Jan. 24 to Jan. 28, 2020. According to the complainant, she and Narwani began communicating online in 2019 and later through voice calls. "As our conversations went on, I became comfortable talking with him and came to trust that he was a good person," the woman said in her affidavit. She said she agreed to meet Narwani in January 2020, believing it would be a casual encounter. On Jan. 27, 2020, they met for the first time in Makati City and spent most of the day together. Later, Narwani allegedly asked her to accompany him to the Mall of Asia in Pasay City, saying he planned to meet a female friend there. During the taxi ride, the complainant said she noticed Narwani repeatedly touching her hands and legs, prompting her to clarify that accompanying him did not indicate consent to any intimate activity. Upon arriving at the mall, Narwani allegedly told her that his friend could not come and instead asked her to accompany him to a condominium unit in Pasay City, saying he needed to check some belongings. The complainant narrated that upon entering the unit, Narwani locked the door and began making sexual advances. She said she tried to leave the room, but he allegedly restrained her and forced her onto the bed. The woman said she did not immediately pursue a legal action due to shame, fear of being blamed, and emotional trauma. She noted that the incident was recorded in a barangay blotter on the same day, but she was not emotionally ready to file a formal complaint at the time. "It took me years to find the courage to seek justice," she said in her affidavit, saying that the emotional weight of the incident persisted until she decided to come forward in 2026. The complaint was lodged under the Revised Penal Code provision on rape, with the barangay blotter entry dated Jan. 27, 2020, submitted as supporting evidence. Narwani was identified in the complaint as having an address in Barangay San Antonio, Parañaque City, and another listed address at 7 Tanjong Rhu Road #09-02 Waterside, Singapore 436887.

- Gov't to roll out P5,000 fuel subsidy for PUV drivers starting March 17 (2026-03-11 08:45)

MANILA, Philippines—Public utility vehicle (PUV) drivers in Metro Manila will receive a P5,000 fuel subsidy from the government beginning Tuesday, March 17, as authorities move to cushion the impact of a steep rise in oil prices triggered by tensions in the Middle East. Transportation Secretary Giovanni Lopez said the Department of Transportation (DOTr) has coordinated with the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) and local government units for the rollout of the subsidy. Lopez said tricycle drivers in Metro Manila would be the first to receive the assistance, followed by drivers of jeepneys, taxis, transport network vehicle service (TNVS) units, and buses. The DOTr and DSWD are also working with the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB), the Department of Information and Communications Technology (DICT), and the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) to validate the list of beneficiaries. DSWD Secretary Rex Gatchalian said drivers in the provinces would likewise receive assistance once the program is rolled out in Metro Manila. "We will just kick it off in Metro Manila, but the payouts will quickly follow in other areas. One after the other, these will happen because the DSWD has nationwide offices that can conduct simultaneous payouts,” Gatchalian said. Lopez said he asked toll operators to consider granting discounts to Class 3 vehicles, such as buses and trucks, to help reduce operating costs amid the continued rise in diesel and gasoline prices. He said the proposed discounts could allow bus operators to save between P5 and P7 per liter, which could translate to about P7,000 in savings for every 100 liters of fuel consumed. “These are some of the non-cash interventions and other measures being implemented by the national government,” the transport chief said. Lopez also confirmed that fare increases for some public transportation modes are being considered to help drivers and operators cope with higher fuel costs. However, the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board is still studying how much the increase would be. He said LTFRB Chairman Vigor Mendoza II was expected to complete the review of fare hike petitions within the week.

- Retired general recruited 103 security aides for Zaldy Co — NBI (2026-03-11 08:42)

MANILA, Philippines—The National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) on Wednesday said a retired general recruited 103 individuals, including 18 alleged former Marines, who served as security aides of resigned Ako Bicol party-list representative Zaldy Co. NBI Director Melvin Matibag said investigators have identified the retired officer responsible for the recruitment. “There are 103 bodyguards assigned to Zaldy Co. There is a retired general who recruited them, and we have already identified him,” Matibag said in an interview. Matibag said lawyer Levi Baligod, counsel of the 18 alleged former Marines, confirmed that the men were assigned as bodyguards to Co and were initially hired for a two-year period. Their employment ended abruptly after Co went missing. As a result, the security personnel — including those claiming to be former Marines — were left without work or pay. “These bodyguards, including the retired Marines, no longer received their salaries and lost their jobs,” Matibag said. The NBI chief added that investigators are examining whether the group’s financial difficulties may have influenced their decision to execute sworn statements. “One angle we are looking at is that these people no longer have a livelihood. They may have agreed to execute statements because they need compensation,” Matibag said. The NBI said its investigation into the matter is ongoing.

- 238,000 Filipinos sign petition for Duterte’s return (2026-03-11 08:32)

MANILA, Philippines — Senator Robinhood Padilla on Wednesday called on the Supreme Court to act swiftly on pending petitions questioning the legality of the arrest and detention of former president Rodrigo Duterte at the International Criminal Court (ICC), saying that 238,000 people have signed a petition for the former leader’s return. Padilla led the filing of a petition before the high court seeking Duterte’s return to the Philippines so he could face legal proceedings in local courts. The senator said that the petition has gathered more than 238,000 signatures from supporters of the former president. The senator said the group expects more Filipinos to support their campaign in the coming weeks. Duterte has been detained for a year in The Hague, Netherlands. The ICC recently held confirmation of charges hearings but Duterte refused to attend the proceedings. Padilla said Duterte should not be tried at the ICC. “We do not recognize the ICC. Former president Rodrigo Duterte should not have been brought there,” he said. “It hurts us because we have a functioning court here.”

- PH govt expands efforts for BARMM peace (2026-03-11 08:31)

MANILA, Philippines—The Philippine government has intensified its efforts to expand global partnerships as the Office of the Special Assistant to the President (OSAP) engaged the Philippine Permanent Mission to the United Nations for coordinated efforts in implementing the Bangsamoro comprehensive agreement and the peace process. The pivotal meeting with the Inter-Cabinet Cluster Mechanism on Normalization (ICCMN) and UN agencies focused on updates and coordination work supporting the implementation of the Comprehensive Agreement on the Bangsamoro (CAB) and advancing the peace process in the Bangsamoro Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (BARMM). In a statement, Special Assistant to the President Antonio Lagdameo Jr. said the delegation’s visit sought to enhance collaboration with the UN and its member states. The goal is to accelerate programs under the CAB, the landmark accord that guides the normalization process between the government and former Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) combatants, Lagdameo said. The Palace official said the engagement was part of the government’s continuing initiative to strengthen coordination with international partners. It also aims to identify areas of support from the UN system and member states in promoting key deliverables under the Bangsamoro peace process. One of the activities during the visit was a briefing with the Philippine Permanent Mission to the United Nations, Lagdameo said. The OSAP provided detailed updates on the status of the Bangsamoro peace process, including priority deliverables under the normalization track. Lagdameo said the discussions explored practical avenues for UN-system support in peacebuilding initiatives in Mindanao, including potential technical assistance, strategic partnerships, and resource mobilization efforts that align with the Philippines’ national peace and development priorities. The Palace official said that the engagement was intended to harmonize policy messaging and reinforce international support for the Bangsamoro peace process. He noted the importance of advancing normalization measures that include socio-economic support, security transitions, and community development in former conflict-affected areas. The meeting was organized by the OSAP through the ICCMN, which functions as the government’s platform for coordinating inter-agency efforts. It specifically supports the implementation of normalization commitments under the CAB, under the administration of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. Palace officials underscored that sustained international cooperation is vital to maintain the gains achieved in the peace process. Such partnerships are seen as key in assisting BARMM communities in their transition toward long-term stability and inclusive development, the OSAP said. The OSAP said it seeks to enhance capacity-building, resource mobilization, and technical assistance to boost peace and development efforts in Mindanao.

- ‘A year without Duterte is a victory’ (2026-03-11 05:42)

Opposition-led groups on Wednesday marked former president Rodrigo Duterte’s first year in detention at the International Criminal Court (ICC), saying his arrest was a “milestone.” In a statement, Akbayan party-list said it was “a historic milestone in the fight for justice where a mass-murdering tyrant was silenced by the people.” Akbayan president Rafaela David said that their victory “was not the result of the dynastic war between the Marcoses and the Dutertes, but the product of years of courage and persistence from ordinary Filipinos.” “This did not fall from the sky. It was not handed to us by warring political dynasties... It was won through the relentless struggle of families who lost loved ones, communities who demanded truth, justice and accountability, and ordinary Filipinos who insisted that no one, no matter how powerful, is above the law,” she said. David said that Duterte’s first year in detention was a “moral victory.” “For one year now, the Filipino people have been spared the daily spectacle of Duterte’s authoritarian bluster, misogynistic remarks, and violent rhetoric that normalized cruelty and killing in our public life,” she said. “In many ways, a year without Duterte, who thrived in the limelight and glorified mass violence, is already a victory,” David added. Meanwhile, Tindig Pilipinas also played a video of Duterte’s former spokesman, Harry Roque, himself a fugitive in Europe, wishing then senator Leila de Lima a “happy anniversary” in detention. De Lima, now the party-list representative for Mamamayang Liberal, was released in November 2023.

- Switching to e-cigarettes after heart procedure linked to lower cardiovascular risk—study (2026-03-11 05:36)

MANILA, Philippines — A study found that smokers recovering from major heart procedure may face a lower risk of further cardiovascular complications if they switch to e-cigarettes such as vapes rather than continuing smoking. This was the finding of a large-scale study titled “Prognosis after switching to electronic cigarettes following percutaneous coronary intervention” conducted in South Korea. The researchers tracked the smoking habits of patients with coronary artery disease (CAD) who underwent percutaneous coronary intervention (PCI)—a treatment that clears blocked heart arteries. “Among smokers with CAD undergoing PCI, switching to e-cigarettes was associated with a significantly lower risk of Major Adverse Cardiovascular Events (MACE) than continued combustible cigarette use, similar to quitting smoking,” the researchers led by Danbee Kang at Samsung Medical Center and Sungkyunkwan University said. The study showed that switching to e-cigarettes offered benefits similar to those achieved by quitting smoking. It underscored evidence from recent clinical trials showing that switching from smoking to vaping can restore blood vessel health to a level similar to complete smoking cessation because of the removal of harmful byproducts of combustion, including tar and carbon monoxide. “Patients who completely switched to e-cigarettes experienced a greater reduction in the risk of MACE than dual users. These findings suggest that switching to e-cigarettes could be a viable alternative for patients who find it challenging to quit combustible cigarettes after PCI,” the researchers said. “The best lifestyle change for smokers is to stop smoking. However, if this is not possible, it is worth considering switching to e-cigarettes,” they added.

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. said that a United States-based medical glove company will invest $200 million to expand its operations in the Philippines by establishing a manufacturing facility in the country. In a media interview in New York City on Tuesday, Marcos said that US Medical Glove Company (USMGC) has sent representatives to the Philippines to begin preparations for building its first plant and expanding operations further. "The prospective amount is $200 million in the beginning," Marcos told reporters before returning to Manila. "They have already started it. They're already starting to build their first plant and they even want to expand. They already have found the local partner," he added. Marcos met with the officials of the USMGC on the sidelines of his United Nations engagements in New York City on Monday. The President said the project would create over 2,000 jobs and pave the way for the local production of essential medical supplies. USMGC is a leading American manufacturer of nitrile and polyisoprene surgical and exam gloves.

- ICI's job is done - Marcos (2026-03-11 04:53)

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Wednesday (Manila time) said the Independent Commission for Infrastructure (ICI) has fulfilled its mandate but he would still like to see "what else they can do" in the coming days. Speaking with reporters following his address at the Special Plenary Session of the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) in New York, Marcos said he is waiting for the panel's final report. "Right now, what the ICI is doing is that they are collating all of their findings. They are also writing their final report. I think it's finished," he said. The next step is for the ICI to submit their collated information to the Department of Justice (DOJ) and Office of the Ombudsman, depending on the nature of the case to be filed against parties tagged in the flood control scandal. "Let us see what else that they can do but for now their brief has already been fulfilled," the President said. Created in September 2025 through Executive Order (EO) No. 94, the ICI was tasked to investigate, receive, gather, and evaluate evidence, intelligence reports, and information on irregularities in government flood control and infrastructure projects.

- ICC prosecutors seek clarity on Duterte's 'Filipino legal team' (2026-03-11 02:32)

MANILA, Philippines — Prosecutors from the International Criminal Court (ICC) have formally requested that judges order the defense team of former president Rodrigo Duterte to clarify the status of six Filipino lawyers who have been publicly associated with his case, citing concerns over witness protection and the integrity of confidential proceedings. In a filing made public on Wednesday, the Office of the Prosecutor (OTP) expressed alarm over public statements made by Duterte's lead defense counsel during last month's confirmation of charges hearing. The defense team introduced Salvador Medialdea, Salvador Panelo, Martin Delgra, Silvestre Bello, Alfredo Lim, and Cesar Dulay as supporters seated in the gallery. According to the prosecution, subsequent media interviews suggested the involvement runs deeper. The defense counsel was quoted saying that two of the lawyers had been "working with [us] all along," while Panelo reportedly indicated that the team was set to meet with the "Filipino legal team" to discuss strategies. The prosecution said that these statements have created a public impression that the six individuals are formal members of the defense team before the ICC. This ambiguity, the OTP argued, poses a significant problem for prosecutors who are legally obligated under Article 68 of the Rome Statute to protect victims and witnesses. “The Prosecution has a duty to take appropriate measures to protect the safety, physical and psychological well-being, dignity and privacy of victims and witnesses,” it said. “This includes knowing which individuals work for Mr. Duterte’s defense team, as these individuals have access to highly sensitive confidential information.” The OTP noted that the named individuals have deep ties to the former president, having worked on his presidential campaign and held high-level positions in his administration during the period in which the alleged crimes took place. The prosecution asked the Pre-Trial Chamber I to order the defense to officially confirm that the six lawyers are not members of the official defence team; have not and will not receive any disclosure or non-public filings; have not received any other non-public case information; and are not entitled to privileged meetings with Duterte at the detention center.

- Quezon City employees to work from home Mondays (2026-03-11 02:14)

MANILA, Philippines — As most local government units (LGUS) have adopted a four-day workweek scheme, the Quezon City government announced that City Hall personnel would have a work-from-home arrangement every Monday in compliance with the directive of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. Mayor Joy Belmonte said on Wednesday that despite the adjusted work arrangement, all basic and essential services would be available from Monday to Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The operations of essential, vital, and frontline offices, including those responsible for health services, law and order, social services, and business and tax assessment and collection, will continue without disruption, Belmonte said. All meetings would be conducted virtually while onsite seminars and training activities will be temporarily postponed. “We understand that the city government’s services should never be impeded. Even with the implementation of a one-day work-from-home arrangement for administrative and clerical employees, our programs and services will remain fully available to our residents,” the mayor said. A monitoring mechanism to ensure that employees under the work-from-home arrangement would continue to fulfill their duties and maintain productivity would be established, according to the city’s Human Resource and Management Department. Belmonte encouraged her constituents to maximize the city government’s digital platforms. “It is also high time for the public to fully utilize the digital services we have put in place to make government transactions faster, easier, and more accessible,” she said. Residents may access a wide range of city services including scholarship applications, financial assistance, and permit applications 24/7 through the QC E-Services portal.

MANILA, Philippines — The Philippines and the US have agreed to boost their defense cooperation to ensure a stable and secure Indo-Pacific region. The commitment was made during President Ferdinand Marcos Jr.’s meeting with US Undersecretary of War for Policy Eldridge Colby and his delegation in New York on Monday. In a statement on Wednesday, the Presidential Communications Office (PCO) said Marcos and US defense officials discussed efforts aimed at accelerating the two countries' defense partnership amid growing security challenges in the region. "The meeting focused on strengthening deterrence in the Indo-Pacific and improving interoperability between the Armed Forces of the Philippines and the United States military through joint operations such as Exercise Balikatan, which will begin next month," the PCO said. "Both sides also reaffirmed their mutual commitment to the Mutual Defense Treaty and to continue working together for a stable and secure Indo-Pacific region," it added.

- Marcos to certify as urgent bill that would grant him oil emergency powers (2026-03-11 01:13)

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. said he intends to certify as urgent the bill that would grant him emergency powers to temper skyrocketing petroleum costs. In an interview following his address at the Special Plenary Session of the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) in New York on Tuesday, Marcos said the government may reduce excise taxes on fuel but only after legislation and once global oil prices reach a specific threshold. Malacañang is awaiting the committee reports from the Senate and the House of Representatives to be completed. "What we ask of the legislators is very simple. It's that when the price of oil – at least this is the original version – when the price of oil has breached USD80 per barrel on average for a month, then the emergency powers can be exercised," Marcos said. The crisis in the Middle East caused pump prices to spike. Last Tuesday saw a double digit rise on fuel with gasoline prices up by as much as P10.20 a liter, diesel by as much as P24.25 a liter, and kerosene by as much as P38.50 a liter. The President clarified that reaching or surpassing the threshold does not mean an automatic excise tax reduction. "The real problem here that everybody is having to deal with is we don't know how long it's going to last. We don't know where the price is going to go. How long is that increase? Is it long-term? Is it permanent? What's going to happen?" Marcos said.

- 32 Filipinos return from Oman (2026-03-11 01:03)

MANILA, Philippines — The Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) on Wednesday announced the return of 32 Filipinos from Oman who sought repatriation amid the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. The DMW said the 32 repatriates consist of 24 overseas workers and eight family dependents. All Filipinos arrived at Terminal 1 of the Ninoy Aquino International Airport via Oman Air Flight WY 843. "The airspace in the country they came from is very limited, so we found a way to cross the border into another country where they could take a flight, and now they're here," DMW Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac said in Filipino. The DMW said that the government, through the cooperation of Philippine embassies and consulates, its migrant workers offices, and the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration implemented various measures that included arranging land transportation to safer exit points and alternative airports that remain open for international travel.

- Marcos confirms Zaldy Co in Portugal (2026-03-11 00:56)

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. said the Philippine government is working with Portuguese authorities to facilitate the possible return of former lawmaker Zaldy Co to the Philippines. In a media interview in New York on Tuesday, Marcos said the Philippine government has filed a request for a Red Notice from the International Criminal Police Organization (Interpol) to trace Co's movements. "You cannot bring him home because that is not the way it works. We have to ask the assistance of the country where he is in, which is presently Portugal. So, that's what we have done," Marcos told reporters before returning to Manila. "That's the process. You do not send your own police to go and pick him up because our police officers have no jurisdiction over other countries. So, it will have to be the assistance of the hosting country," he added. A Red Notice is a request to law enforcement worldwide to locate and provisionally arrest a person pending extradition, surrender, or similar legal action. It is based on an arrest warrant or court order issued by the judicial authorities in the requesting country.

- CICC, CWC sign deal to boost online protection for children (2026-03-11 00:26)

The Cybercrime Investigation and Coordinating Center (CICC) and the Council for the Welfare of Children (CWC) on Tuesday signed a partnership agreement to boost the country's online protection for children. In a phone interview on Tuesday, CICC head of communications Aya Macalma said the memorandum of agreement (MOA) signed by the two agencies is mutually beneficial, especially in helping the CICC flag criminal cases like scams or modus against children. "That's the purpose of the MOA, to help each other out, to improve digital safety for Filipinos, particularly for children," Macalma said. In a statement, the CICC said the partnership seeks to scale the "Makabata Program," particularly on the promotion and operational integration of the Makabata Helpline 1383 with the CICC hotline 1326. "This 24/7 national reporting mechanism serves as a direct lifeline for children in need of special protection, particularly those facing threats of online violence, sexual abuse, and exploitation," it said. Under the MOA, the CICC will lead online and community-based information campaigns to help inform the public about the functions of the Makabata helpline. In addition, it will provide technical support to the CWC in addressing child protection-related reports, ensuring prompt investigation and quick response to digital threats. "We are integrating our technical proficiency with the CWC's deep expertise in child welfare to ensure that no call for help goes unanswered," it said. Moreover, the CICC will create a "seamless referral pathway" between the Makabata Helpline 1383 and the CICC Action Center Hotline 1326. "We are committed to defending the rights of the Filipino youth. We encourage the public to be our eyes and ears on the ground. If you see something or suspect abuse, do not hesitate," it said. The MOA was signed by CICC Executive Director, Undersecretary Aboy Paraiso, CWC Executive Director, Undersecretary Angelo Tapales, and other executives of the agencies at the CWC office in Quezon City.

- BFP roadshow educates children on fire safety (2026-03-11 00:23)

The Bureau of Fire Protection (BFP) on Tuesday kicked off its Fire Square Roadshow here at the Silliman University, aimed at familiarizing elementary students with fire safety, preparedness and response at an early age. BFP-Negros Island Region (NIR) director Chief Supt. Rodolfo Denaga, who was guest of honor at the event, said in an interview that the roadshow was a “way of awakening the fire safety consciousness and resiliency of the children as to their safety and security” given the unpredictability of emergencies and disasters. Approximately 700 pupils from Grades 1 to 6 and teachers participated in the activity, which included lectures and demonstrations on first aid, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, wound bandaging, and the use of fire extinguishers. Denaga said the roadshow will visit various schools even as he assured the public that the roadshow will be held not only during Fire Prevention Month in March but also throughout the year when necessary, without disrupting classes. Meanwhile, Fire Senior Inspector Joebert Sanao, Dumaguete fire marshal, said they are coordinating with the local government unit of this capital for the establishment of two additional substations. Sanao said the city currently has only one substation located in Barangay Daro. He said the substations will enhance the fire station's response abilities, particularly in areas outside the city proper. The locations of the two new substations have yet to be determined, Sanao added.

- Tropical depression outside PAR turns into tropical storm called ‘Nuri’ (2026-03-10 22:05)

MANILA, Philippines – The tropical depression outside the Philippine Area of Responsibility (PAR) has developed into a tropical storm with an international name ‘Nuri,’ the state-run weather agency said on Wednesday. Nathaniel Servando, Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Service Administration (Pagasa) chief, maintained that Nuri has a slim chance to enter PAR and would not have direct effect in the weather conditions in the country. But the trough or extension of Nuri has already been affecting Dinagat Islands, Surigao del Norte, Surigao del Sur, and Davao Oriental at which cloudy skies with scattered rains and thunderstorms would prevail, Servando said. Flash floods or landslides due to moderate to at times heavy rains would be possible in these areas, the Pagasa chief warned. Meanwhile, the northeast monsoon locally known as ‘amihan,’ would be experienced over Batanes, Cagayan, Isabela, and Aurora where overcast skies with light rains would occur in 24 hours, the national weather bureau said. It said that the same weather system would be likely over Metro Manila, the rest of Luzon, and Visayas at which partly cloudy to cloudy skies with isolated light rains would be possible. The rest of Mindanao, on one hand, would be experiencing partly cloudy to cloudy skies with isolated rain showers or thunderstorms owing to the effect of the localized thunderstorms, Pagasa’s 5 a.m. advisory said.

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Tuesday faced his fellow leaders at the Special Plenary Meeting of the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) as the Philippines ramped up its campaign for a non-permanent seat in the UN Security Council (UNSC). Underscoring the Filipino people’s aspirations for peace and solidarity, Marcos said the country's candidature is about giving the Philippines, and other developing countries, a voice in the highest forum of global peace and security. "We of the Philippines offer a voice from this region, the voice of developing countries, the voice of climate, vulnerable nations and the voice of middle-income countries facing competing challenges and priorities. All this was persevering to achieve the well-being and security of our peoples," he said. "As a founding member of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, or Asean, a bridge between global north and global south, the Philippines understands dialogue, partnership and coalition building," he added. Citing pages in history where the Philippines took in Jewish refugees who fled the holocaust, aided in the Korean War, and joined the peacekeeping mission in Congo, among others, the president noted how the country has never hesitated to work "not only for peace but also for the progress of local communities." "When the UN demands the Philippines responds. At a time when the UN diplomats thought little of social issues and considered them unworthy of UN time, the Philippines insisted that social issues were the equal of economic ones. We spoke for vulnerable people of the world, bringing their views to the halls of the United Nations and inviting attention to their needs and their concerns," he said. "The Philippines stands ready once again to contribute to help calm voices of division, provide a voice of balance, to shun ambition for service and always as a voice for principled peace," he added. Marcos likewise called for a rules-based resolution to conflicts in different parts of the world and urged warring nations "to take resolute steps to address the root causes of these conflicts." "Our own experience has shown that peace is possible despite several decades of conflict. Guided by the 1982 Manila Declaration on the Peaceful Settlement of Disputes, our relentless pursuit for peace achieved an alloid success with the signing of the comprehensive agreement on the Bangsamoro in 2014 after many years of negotiations," he said. "Excellencies, our contributions across the whole spectrum of UN work since its inception are born up by history. Always ready to be part of the solution, the Philippines has regularly proven itself to be an independent, trusted partner, an innovative pathfinder and a committed peacemaker," he added. "And thus, I stand before you to humbly petition for your support for the Philippines in the elections on the 3rd of June, 2026. Thank you and Mabuhay," he concluded. The UNSC is a primary UN body charged with maintaining international peace and security, authorized to impose sanctions, authorize force, and dispatch peacekeepers. It consists of 15 members: 5 permanent (China, France, Russia, UK, US) with veto power, and 10 non-permanent members elected for two-year terms. The Philippines actually served as a non-permanent member in the UNSC previously: 1957, 1963, 1980-1981, and 2004-2005. It was in 2022 when Marcos, in his first visit to the United States as president and during the 77th UNGA, renewed the country's bid for a non-permanent seat.

- Electricity rates to rise in March (2026-03-10 16:25)

THE Manila Electric Co. (Meralco) on Tuesday said it will increase electricity rates by P0.6427 per kilowatt-hour (kWh) this March, bringing the overall rate for a typical household to P13.8161 per kWh this month from P13.1734 per kWh in February. The distribution utility said that for residential customers with a typical consumption of 200 kWh, this adjustment translates to an increase of around P129 in their total electricity bill. Meralco said the increase was driven by the transmission charge, which went up by P0.2880 per kWh due to a 70 percent hike in ancillary service charges incurred by the National Grid Corp. of the Philippines (NGCP) from the Reserve Market. Costs from the Reserve Market accounted for almost half of the total transmission charge this billing month. The generation charge also went up by P0.2209 per kWh because of the second extension of the power purchase agreement (PPA) with First Gas-Sta. Rita. Meralco said these increases offset a P1.0952 per kWh reduction in charges from the Wholesale Electricity Spot Market (WESM) during the period. This month's generation charge also included the P0.2817 per kWh contract price adjustment of ACEN Corp., Panay Energy Development Corp., South Premiere Power Corp. (SPPC) and Sual Power Inc. (SPI), as they were allowed by the Energy Regulatory Commission (ERC) to recover some of their costs due to changes in circumstance. Meanwhile, other charges that include taxes registered a net increase of P0.1338 per kWh for the given period, and also reflected the implementation of the new uniform national lifeline subsidy rate of P0.01 per kWh in accordance with a recent ERC directive. Pass-through charges for generation and transmission are paid to the power suppliers and the grid operator, respectively; while taxes, universal charges, and renewable energy subsidies are all remitted to the government. Meralco's distribution charge, on the other hand, has not moved since the P0.0360 per kWh reduction for a typical residential customer in August 2022. Meralco clarified that these increases in both the transmission and generation charges did not reflect the current conflict in the Middle East and that its effects will be felt in the April billing period, depending on how the situation will develop. On a related note, Meralco Executive Vice President Ronnie Aperocho also said in a statement that Meralco is actively implementing all necessary measures to shield customers from possible supply disruptions and upward pressure on electricity prices due to the effects of the Middle East conflict. "We are closely coordinating with our power suppliers to keep generation at least-cost while prioritizing reliability across our system. We are also optimizing our energy mix and fully leveraging cost-efficient sources, regardless of technology. In addition, we are carefully managing our exposure to the WESM where price volatility is high. We also secure replacement power at the lowest cost, if needed," Aperocho said.

- Marcos firm: PH won't rejoin ICC (2026-03-10 16:24)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. has not changed his position on keeping the Philippines out of the International Criminal Court (ICC), Malacañang said Tuesday. "The president's stance has not changed. We will still not rejoin the ICC," said Palace Press Officer Claire Castro in an interview with reporters in New York. Asked for a reason, the Palace official said, "That's the only statement the president told me." The Philippines cut its ties with the ICC on March 17, 2019, a year after the country formally notified the United Nations of its withdrawal from the Rome Statute. Former president Rodrigo Duterte ordered the withdrawal in 2018 following the international tribunal's preliminary investigation into his drug war. Duterte is currently at the ICC Detention Center in The Hague, Netherlands, awaiting trial for crimes against humanity in connection with his bloody war on drugs in which thousands of suspects were killed. In 2024, Marcos said that the Philippines was studying whether it could rejoin the ICC and what the country' s options were. However, since then, there has been no further discussion on the matter. ACT Teachers party-list Rep. Antonio Tinio, Gabriela party-list Rep. Sarah Elago, and Kabataan party-list Rep. Renee Co earlier filed House Resolution (HR) 809 urging the Philippine government to rejoin the ICC and sign the Rome Statute again. The Makabayan lawmakers said such a move would send a "clear and strong message that the Philippines honors its international obligations, respects the sanctity of life, and is committed to breaking the cycle of impunity and state violence." "Re-engagement with the ICC would strengthen the country' s global reputation as a rights-respecting democracy, restore international confidence in the Philippines' legal system and bolster partnerships rooted in justice, good governance, and the rule of law," the Makabayan bloc said. The opposition party-list Akbayan hit the president' s "reluctance" to rejoin the ICC. In a statement, Akbayan president Rafaela David said it was a "policy of trying to appease everyone." "On the ICC, Marcos Jr. is trying to appease both (Rodrigo) Duterte loyalists at home and the international community abroad. But this double game will fail. His attempt to please everyone comes at the expense of justice and will end up pleasing no one," David said. "There is only one true side on this matter; the side of justice," she added. David also said that the president cannot claim to "respect justice," while also refusing the country' s membership in the ICC. "That contradiction is becoming clearer by the day," she said.

FILIPINOS who requested to be repatriated from several Middle East countries are set to safely return home to the Philippines in the coming days, Malacañang announced. In a media interview in New York late Monday evening, Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Undersecretary Claire Castro said the Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) has arranged chartered flights for Filipinos wanting to flee the hostilities. "Today, 16 OFWs from Tel Aviv (Israel) traveled by land to the southern Israel town of Eilat, which borders Egypt via the Taba border crossing. These 16 OFWs cross the Egyptian border and will take the Cairo to Muscat to Manila flight with ETA Manila on March 11, 9:30 p.m., Philippine time," Castro said on the sidelines of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr.' s engagements at the United Nations (UN) Headquarters. "We have 20 OFWs (from Dubai) with nine OFW dependents who travel from Dubai to Oman via the Khatmat-Malaha border crossing in northern Oman. Upon crossing the Omani border, they go to Muscat and take the Muscat to Manila flight with ETA Manila on March 10, 9:30 p.m. Philippine time," she added. In the United Arab Emirates (UAE), the Philippine government also booked commercial flights for overseas Filipino workers and their dependents coming from Dubai, while flights are now also being arranged for citizens in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia with the earliest departure on March 14. This repatriation operation will be funded through the Emergency Repatriation Fund of the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA), an attached agency of the DMW, Castro further noted. More than 400 Filipinos have returned to the Philippines since the conflict in the Middle East began on Feb. 28.

- House panel OKs bill enabling president to cut fuel excise tax (2026-03-10 16:22)

THE House Committee on Ways and Means on Tuesday approved a substitute bill that would authorize the president to suspend or cut fuel excise taxes during national or global economic emergencies. The unnumbered measure, which consolidated 15 bills, seeks to amend the National Internal Revenue Code (NIRC). “This is simply a delegation of a legislative power, which Congress has done many, many times. In fact, in that very same provision on Section 148 [of the NIRC], there’s already a delegation there,” Marikina 2nd District Rep. Miro Quimbo, the chairman of the committee, said. “There is one standard [in the substitute bill], which is the price of MOPS (Mean of Platts Singapore). Second, the exercise of that power cannot last more than six months. It can be extended for a year, and in fact, that exercise cannot go beyond 2028,” Quimbo said. “Third, the president can only mandate the suspension if there is a specific recommendation, not just by one, not just by two, not just by three, but by six Cabinet members all joined together declaring that there is a need to suspend [the tax],” he said. The bill says the president “may, upon the recommendation of the Development Budget Coordination Committee (DBCC), in coordination with the secretary of the Department of Energy (DOE), suspend the imposition of, or reduce the excise taxes on fuel” subject to conditions. The DBCC is composed of the Department of Budget and Management; Department of Finance; Department of Economy, Planning, and Development; and Office of the President. The Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas serves as adviser to the DBCC. The conditions are when the average Dubai crude oil price based on the MOPS has reached or exceeded US$80 per barrel for a month “immediately preceding the issuance of the suspension or reduction order,” or the president has declared a state of national emergency or calamity, and such condition has resulted in extraordinary increases in domestic pump prices of petroleum products as certified by the DOE secretary. Under the bill, the suspension may cover specific petroleum products. It allows full suspension or partial reduction of the excise tax rates. The suspension or reduction can only last for up to six months unless Congress extends it or ends it earlier through a joint resolution. The total suspension period shall not exceed a year. The bill grants the president the power to temporarily suspend or cut fuel excise taxes until Dec. 31, 2028. Leyte 1st District Rep. Martin Romualdez welcomed the approval of the substitute bill. “An excise tax suspension or reduction will be a big relief to our people at this time of soaring fuel prices. A suspension would mean a retail price reduction of P6 to P10 per liter,” said Romualdez, whose House Bill (HB) 5779 was among the proposals consolidated by the substitute bill. His proposal was to permanently remove the excise tax on fuel. “That would have been the ideal measure, but I also understand the need for the government to continue relying on billions in excise tax collections for vital social services,” he said. Bicol Saro Rep. Terry Ridon also welcomed the committee’s passage of the substitute bill. “It ensures that government can immediately intervene when global crises threaten to drive up fuel prices and worsen the economic burden on ordinary Filipinos,” Ridon said. Ako Bicol Rep. Jan Chan also welcomed the committee approval of the substitute bill. “Amid oil price volatility in the world market, it is important that the government has a swift way to ease the additional burden borne by motorists and ordinary Filipinos,” Chan said in Filipino and English in a statement. The substitute bill still has to go through plenary consideration.

- TUCP and business groups urge Marcos to scrap 12% VAT on electricity (2026-03-10 16:21)

THE Trade Union Congress of the Philippines (TUCP), the nation's largest confederation of labor federations, renewed its call to President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. to certify House Bill 6740 as urgent. The measure seeks to abolish the 12-percent value-added tax (VAT) on electricity amid warnings from the Energy Regulatory Commission that prices could rise further due to increases in international coal, oil, and liquefied natural gas prices, as well as tightening supply conditions in global energy markets. Meanwhile, the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PCCI), the Employers Confederation of the Philippines, and the Philippine Exporters Confederation echoed the TUCP's call in a joint statement. "Unlike other countries in the region, the Philippines not only does not subsidize fuel and electricity but also taxes these industries. Removing excise taxes temporarily will benefit all sectors, rich and poor alike, which is a better solution than providing 'ayuda' only to the poor," said PCCI Chairman Emeritus Sergio Ortiz-Luis Jr. The business groups noted that high power costs remain one of the country's biggest barriers to competitiveness, particularly in manufacturing. Removing VAT on electricity would reduce operating costs, helping factories expand production, attract new investments, and increase the sector's contribution to GDP and job creation. The groups added that the measure would safeguard existing jobs and support the creation of new ones. The TUCP noted that it has been 24 years since Republic Act 9136, or the Electric Power Industry Reform Act, promised reliable and affordable electricity. However, only four years later, RA 9337 amended the National Internal Revenue Code and imposed the 12-percent VAT on electricity, including the sales of generation, transmission, and distribution companies. "We are not only paying VAT on electricity we actually consume, but are even charged VAT on system losses or the electricity we never used in the first place. Mr. President, now more than ever, we should put an end to this extremely excessive taxation imposed on our extremely expensive power by certifying as urgent House Bill 6740," the group added. TUCP President Raymond Democrito Mendoza said it is a rare occurrence that both labor and business — which often clash on issues such as wages and contractualization — stand shoulder to shoulder for a common cause. "When both workers and employers raise the same urgent call, the government must listen," Mendoza said. TUCP Vice President Luis Corral said exempting electricity sales from VAT would provide immediate relief to workers and consumers while triggering more quality job opportunities. "This is the better approach than the age-old palliatives and ayuda (aid)," Corral added.

- Marcos reaffirms PH partnership with UN (2026-03-10 16:20)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. met with United Nations (UN) Secretary-General António Guterres to tackle various issues, including the Philippines' bid for a non-permanent seat on the UN Security Council, Malacañang said Tuesday. Marcos and Guterres held a bilateral meeting at the UN headquarters in New York on the sidelines of the president's working visit to the United States, the Presidential Communications Office (PCO) said. The PCO said the two leaders' meeting reaffirmed the "long-standing partnership between the Philippines and the global body." "The meeting is a strong testament to the Philippines' long-standing partnership with the UN and reaffirmed its commitment to strengthening multilateral cooperation, as reflected in the country's Security Council candidature," the PCO said. The president was accompanied by Foreign Affairs Secretary Ma. Theresa Lazaro, Philippine Permanent Representative to the UN in New York Ambassador Enrique Manalo, Philippine Ambassador to the United States Jose Manuel Romualdez, and acting Presidential Communications Secretary Dave Gomez. Marcos last met Guterres in October 2025 at the sidelines of the 47th Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) Summit and Related Summits in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. Guterres expressed his appreciation for Marcos' efforts in promoting peace and democracy in the Philippines, Palace Press Officer Claire Castro said. Castro said Guterres expressed hope that the Philippines' voice would continue to be heard in the UN, as he described the country as a "bridge-builder." The Philippines is vying for a non-permanent seat at the UN Security Council, with the elections to be held on June 3. The UN Security Council, composed of 15 members (five permanent and 10 non-permanent), is primarily responsible for maintaining international peace and security. A non-permanent member serves temporarily on the council to help make decisions regarding international peace and security and is elected by the UN Member States. The five permanent members are China, France, the Russian Federation, the United Kingdom, and the United States. Ten non-permanent members are elected for two-year terms by the General Assembly. Guterres also expressed the UN's full support for the Philippines' chairmanship of the Asean, noting the regional bloc's crucial role in strengthening global cooperation. He commended Asean for upholding the primacy of international law and respecting the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea. In response, Marcos reaffirmed the Philippines' commitment as a "proud partner" and one of the founding members of the UN.

- Lacson slams Marcoleta for interference (2026-03-10 16:19)

SEN. Panfilo Lacson on Tuesday slammed fellow Sen. Rodante Marcoleta for "targeting" him and interfering with his job as chairman of the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee investigating anomalies in government. The Senate president pro tempore defended the committee's procedures from Marcoleta's "pagbibida-bida" (know-it-all actions) on the panel's investigation of the flood control scandal. In a privilege speech, Lacson refuted what he called Marcoleta's "tirades and prevarications in and out of the Senate" targeting him. "Much as I would like to abide by what my elders had taught me, that 'silence is the best response to nonsense,' I am constrained to take the floor to set the record straight and correct the prevarications spewed on this very floor by one of our colleagues, namely Senator Rodante Marcoleta," he said. "Like on many past occasions, I could have effortlessly dismissed Senator Marcoleta's statements, as I refuse to dignify his ego-driven provocations," Lacson said. "But when the attacks shift from professional to obsessively personal, I must shut the whole political circus down — firmly, completely, and without ambiguity." Lacson maintained that Marcoleta's release of the so-called "minority report" by the minority bloc and its contents was an affront to the Blue Ribbon Committee and to him as its chairman. The minority report claimed that the Blue Ribbon Committee cannot compete with national prosecution services and the judiciary in disposing of the cases. “Out of line. Out of place. So, is it any surprise that my reaction is that this report belongs to nowhere else but the trash bin?” Lacson asked. He also dismissed Marcoleta’s complaint that he has yet to receive a copy of the draft partial committee report. He pointed out that his office furnished an advanced copy of the report to Blue Ribbon members’ offices as early as Feb. 11. Lacson said that his office followed up with the other senators if they wished to sign the report, even if they intended to dissent or interpellate. Yet, only Sen. Bam Aquino signed it, he noted. “Why is he now looking for a Blue Ribbon Committee report that had been in his office for a month?” Lacson stressed. As for Marcoleta’s dare to name 67 so-called “cong-tractors,” Lacson said he was informed about it by a congressman-friend and that he does not have such a list. Lacson said Marcoleta may have become obsessed with him to the extent of stalking his interviews and social media updates and nitpicking every statement he uttered. “I don’t know. Since I shut down Marcoleta on the floor, he appeared to hold a grudge against me,” he said.

- Imee Marcos urges Palace to seek Duterte's release (2026-03-10 16:18)

SEN. Imee Marcos on Monday urged the government to seek the immediate release of former president Rodrigo Duterte from detention at The Hague, the Netherlands. She filed Resolution 340 on the eve of Duterte’s first year in detention. The International Criminal Court (ICC), in coordination with the International Police, arrested Duterte on March 11, 2025 to face the charges. The ICC conducted the confirmation of charges hearing from Feb. 23 to Feb. 27 related to Duterte’s case. The pre-trial chamber granted Duterte’s request to waive his right to attend the hearing. The senator said one year has passed since the Executive department “carried out the extraordinary rendition” of Duterte. “Yet, to this day the government has failed to provide accountability or meaningful redress for the ongoing impairment of FPRRD’s (former president Rodrigo Duterte’s) constitutional and statutory rights,” she said. The senator asked Malacañang to “redress the continuing violation” of his rights and file “appropriate representations to the International Criminal Court for his immediate return to the country.” Marcos also asked the Senate to urge the Executive department to “fully disclose all communications, agreements, authorizations, requests and operational directives relating to cooperation with the ICC” in connection with the arrest and transfer of Duterte. She pressed the Marcos administration to “issue a categorical clarification of the official policy of the Philippine government regarding present and future cooperation with the ICC.” Marcos said the government should “acknowledge the violations of Duterte’s constitutional and statutory rights and hold accountable the officials responsible.” She asked the government to “refrain from bypassing the Philippine judiciary and engaging in unconstitutional acts in relation to future ICC arrest warrants, if any.” Marcos said that the circumstances surrounding the arrest and surrender of Duterte and the government’s dealings with the ICC “are matters of the highest public interest and under the settled jurisprudence, not even the executive privilege can be invoked to conceal wrongdoings or shield acts that constitute violations of the Constitution.” “The Executive department’s persistent lack of transparency, its grave violations of the Bill of Rights, and its circumvention of the Philippine judicial system now give rise to serious and imminent concerns that similar actions may again be undertaken against the political opponents of the administration and retired police officials — thereby threatening to normalize the erosion of constitutional safeguards and the rule of law,” she added.

- Income tax and minimum wage exemptions of Barangay Micro Business Enterprise

Dear PAO, I am a retired policeman and I am planning to put up a water refilling station in our house. I watch Facebook reels stating that barangay-level businesses such as sari-sari stores are exempted from paying income taxes and are not required to pay the minimum wage to employees. Is this true? If yes, how can I apply? IbramDear Ibram, The answer to your query is governed by the provisions of Republic Act (RA) 9178, otherwise known as the Barangay Micro Business Enterprises (BMBEs) Act of 2002, which was approved on Nov. 13, 2002. The declared policy of the State under this statute is to accelerate national economic development by encouraging the establishment and growth of barangay micro business enterprises, and by granting them incentives and benefits designed to generate employment opportunities and alleviate poverty. Pursuant to Section 3 of RA 9178, a Barangay Micro Business Enterprise (BMBE) is defined as “any business entity or enterprise engaged in the production, processing or manufacturing of products or commodities, including agro-processing, trading and services, whose total assets including those arising from loans but exclusive of the land on which the particular business entity’s office, plant and equipment are situated, shall not be more than Three Million Pesos (P3,000,000.00).” Section 7 of the same Act expressly provides that duly registered BMBEs shall be exempt from income tax on income derived from the operations of the enterprise. Moreover, local government units (LGUs) are encouraged either to reduce or exempt such enterprises from the payment of local taxes, fees, and charges. In addition, Section 8 of RA 9178 states that BMBEs shall be exempt from the coverage of the Minimum Wage Law, provided, however, that employees of such enterprises shall remain entitled to statutory benefits accorded to regular employees, including, but not limited to, social security and health care benefits. With respect to registration, an applicant seeking to avail of the benefits granted to BMBEs may file an application through any of the following modes: (1) by submitting online application through the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) electronic BMBE portal; or (2) by personally filing the application with the nearest DTI Negosyo Center or the Office of the City or Municipal Treasurer having jurisdiction over the business. The application shall be subject to evaluation by the DTI. Upon a finding of compliance with the statutory qualifications, a Certificate of Authority shall be issued, which shall remain valid for a period of two years, and may be renewed for another two years. We hope that we were able to answer your queries. This advice was based solely on the facts you have narrated and our appreciation of the same. Our opinion may vary when other facts are changed or elaborated. Thank you for your continued trust and support. Editor’s note: Dear PAO is a daily column of the Public Attorney’s Office. Questions for Chief Acosta may be sent to dearpao@manilatimes.net

- Senators push for budget reform to boost transparency, fiscal discipline (2026-03-10 16:16)

SENATORS on Tuesday pushed for sweeping reforms in the country's national budget process to ensure greater transparency and stronger fiscal discipline. During a public hearing of the Senate Committee on Finance chaired by Sen. Sherwin Gatchalian, lawmakers discussed several measures aimed at overhauling the budgeting system and institutionalizing reforms in public financial management. The proposed reforms aim to expand the participation of local government units and civil society organizations in the budget process, make budget documents more accessible for public scrutiny, and clarify technical budget terms such as "unprogrammed funds" and "special accounts." The measures also propose the full digitization of the budgeting process — from data gathering and preparation to the final signing of the spending plan — to improve efficiency and accountability. Gatchalian said the proposals were prompted in part by controversies surrounding the 2025 budgeting process, which drew scrutiny following corruption allegations linked to Department of Public Works and Highways flood control projects. "2025 was a tumultuous year for the budgeting process," Gatchalian said. "We implemented various reforms during the deliberations on the 2025 budget. We introduced transparency measures to help the public better understand the budget process and to provide a clearer view of how the budget is deliberated, debated and eventually enacted." However, the senator noted that many transparency initiatives were introduced on an ad hoc basis and were not yet embedded in law. The proposals aim to institutionalize such reforms to ensure consistency in future budget cycles. Among the measures discussed was Sen. Erwin Tulfo's Senate Bill 1358, which seeks to strengthen the country's public financial management system and reinforce Congress' constitutional power over government spending. Tulfo stressed that the national budget — formally known as the General Appropriations Act — is the most significant piece of legislation passed by Congress each year, as it determines how government funds are allocated across key sectors such as infrastructure, health, education and social services. "The national budget, also known as the General Appropriations Act, is widely regarded as the most important piece of legislation that Congress passes each year," Tulfo said in Filipino. "It sets out how we allocate government funds to programs and projects that affect the lives of our people." He added that the existing budgeting system remains fragmented and vulnerable to inefficiencies due to limited transparency and public participation. "To address these concerns, we need to strengthen public financial management and institutionalize reforms that will make the process more accountable and transparent," Tulfo said. He cited reforms introduced during deliberations on the 2026 national budget, when bicameral conference committee meetings between the Senate and the House of Representatives were livestreamed for the first time, allowing the public to observe negotiations on the final allocation of funds.

- ‘Ban political violence vs women’ (2026-03-10 16:14)

FORTY-TWO lawmakers on Tuesday filed House Bill 8393, which seeks to define and punish violence against women in politics, or VAWP. "While existing laws address gender-based violence, they nonetheless fail to capture the political dimension of these attacks," the lawmakers said in the bill's explanatory note. They said the Anti-Violence Against Women and

Their Children Act “is limited to violence within intimate or domestic relationships.” The Safe Spaces Act, they said, “addresses sexual harassment in public and online spaces, but treats these as general offenses.” The Cybercrime Prevention Act “penalizes online crimes but lacks a gender-sensitive and political lens,” they added. “When a woman is attacked in politics, it is not merely an interpersonal dispute; it is a systemic attack intended to dismantle democratic participation,” the note read. “Addressing VAWP is therefore not only a matter of protecting women’s rights but also of safeguarding our democratic institutions and ensuring inclusive governance.” The bill defines VAWP as “any act or omission directed at, or affecting a woman in politics, which can be done in public or private, and which can occur online or offline, that results in, or is likely to result in, physical, sexual, psychological, economic, institutional, or symbolic harm or suffering to women in politics.” This includes threats, harassment, coercion, intimidation, discrimination, or deprivation of rights committed on account of gender. Under the bill, the penalty for economic violence against a woman in politics is imprisonment of six months to six years, a fine of P100,000 to P500,000, or both. “Any public officer, political party officer, or responsible official of a political organization who commits institutional violence shall suffer the penalty of imprisonment of not less than one (1) year but not more than six (6) years, and a fine of not less than P200,000 but not over P1 million,” the bill stated. “If the offender is a public officer, the penalty shall further include perpetual disqualification from holding public office and forfeiture of retirement benefits, without prejudice to administrative sanctions.” Acts constituting physical violence would be punished by a penalty one degree higher than those provided under the Revised Penal Code or other applicable laws when committed to prevent or punish a woman’s political participation. The penalty for psychological violence is imprisonment of one to six years and a fine of P100,000 to P500,000. For doxxing, the penalty is imprisonment of two to six years and a fine of P200,000 to P1 million. The penalty for “technology-facilitated violence or online political abuse” is imprisonment of two to six years and a fine of P200,000 to P1 million, “without prejudice to prosecution under the Cybercrime Prevention Act of 2012 and other applicable laws.” The penalty for semiotic violence is imprisonment of six months to three years, a fine of P100,000 to P300,000, or both. Sexual violence “shall be punished by the penalty one degree higher than that provided under the Revised Penal Code, the Anti-Rape Law, the Safe Spaces Act, and other applicable laws, when committed against a woman in politics by reason of or in relation to her political participation, candidacy, or exercise of public office,” the bill read. Any “analogous act” resulting in VAWP would be punished by the penalty corresponding to the most analogous prohibited act. The bill stated that if a candidate or nominee is the offender, a final conviction shall include disqualification from public office and deprivation of the right to vote. The bill also listed aggravating circumstances, including the use of public resources and “disinformation and falsification with gendered intent.” The bill was filed by Mamamayang Liberal Rep. Leila de Lima, La Union 1st District Rep. Francisco Paolo Ortega V, Laguna 1st District Rep. Ann Matibag, Dinagat Islands Rep. Arlene Bag-ao, Surigao del Norte 2nd District Rep. - Philippine senators push to revamp Labor Code for modern work setups (2026-03-10 16:13)

SENATORS on Tuesday sought to update the 50-year-old Labor Code of the Philippines to address modern work setups, safeguard workers and promote economic growth. Sens. Risa Hontiveros and Francis Pangilinan raised the need to address the challenges both employers and workers face with the rise of artificial intelligence (AI), online jobs and even during times of war. The Senate Committee on Constitutional Amendments and Revision of Codes, led by Pangilinan, tackled the proposed Revised Labor Code and Revised Government Auditing Act. Pangilinan said the proposed Revised Labor Code “makes workers’ rights easier to understand, easier to claim, and easier to enforce.” The senator also said the nearly 50-year-old Audit Code should be modernized to allow the Commission on Audit to monitor digital, public-private partnership and off-budget transactions. Hontiveros raised the need to update the labor law following the emergence of contractual work, subcontracting, freelancing, platform-based jobs, online work and the gig economy. She said the updated Labor Code should “integrate international labor standards and plug policy gaps in worker protections — including those addressed by jurisprudence and executive issuances.” Hontiveros said war, pandemics, the rise of AI, increasing oil prices and other issues contribute to workers’ problems. “It is time for our labor laws to catch up,” she said. The senator said the Labor Code should be synchronized with the recently enacted Expanded Maternity Leave Law, Expanded Solo Parents Welfare Law and Anti-Pogo (Philippine Offshore Gaming Operators) Act, among others. “The snail-like resolution of thousands of labor cases, which helps perpetuate labor injustices, must end,” Hontiveros said. Pangilinan sought to protect Filipino workers and ensure government accountability amid rising oil prices and other economic challenges. He warned that without an updated code, workers would face gaps in protections. “A modernized code strengthens COA’s power to disallow irregular spending, recover lost funds and pierce the veil of so-called private implementers in corruption scandals,” he said.

- Marcos orders action vs MWO staff (2026-03-10 16:13)

A VIRAL video showing the mistreatment of overseas Filipino workers in Bahrain by a Migrant Workers Office (MWO) staff member has drawn the ire of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr., Malacañang said. In a press briefing, Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Undersecretary Claire Castro said Marcos immediately ordered Migrant Workers Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac to take action against the MWO personnel, identified as Anthony Allermo. “President Marcos Jr. did not let pass the incident between MWO Bahrain employee Anthony Allermo and overseas Filipino workers there. The president was not happy about it. He was angry for our OFWs because of the mistreatment they received from some public servants,” Castro told reporters in Filipino on the sidelines of Marcos’ engagements at the United Nations Headquarters late Monday night. “A public servant should not abuse their power. There is no reason to brag or ignore our countrymen,” she added. The official was referring to a video shared across social media platforms where Allermo was seen shooing away Filipinos from the consulate. The OFWs were seeking assistance as they were affected by the recent hostilities in the Middle East. Allermo could also be heard saying that nothing could be done, no matter where or to whom they aired their grievances. “When the president saw the viral video showing Allermo mistreating OFWs, he immediately ordered DMW Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac to investigate and take action on the incident,” Castro said. She added that anyone who lacks a genuine desire to serve the public has no place in government, and that erring employees and officials should resign or be terminated. Castro also addressed criticisms that the government has neglected Filipinos asking to be flown back to the Philippines amid the volatile situation in the Middle East. The official noted that the DMW has processed flight bookings for those wanting to flee the hostilities. “Today, 16 OFWs from Tel Aviv, Israel, traveled by land to the southern Israel town of Eilat, which borders Egypt via the Taba border crossing. These 16 OFWs crossed the Egyptian border and will take the Cairo-to-Muscat-to-Manila flight with an ETA in Manila on March 11, 9:30 p.m. Philippine time,” Castro said. “We have 20 OFWs from Dubai, with nine OFW dependents, who traveled from Dubai to Oman via the Khatmat-Malaha border crossing in northern Oman. Upon crossing the Omani border, they will go to Muscat and take the Muscat-to-Manila flight with an ETA in Manila on March 10, 9:30 p.m. Philippine time,” she added. In the United Arab Emirates, the Philippine government also booked commercial flights for OFWs and their dependents coming from Dubai. Flights are also being arranged for citizens in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, with the earliest departure set for March 14. This repatriation operation will be funded through the Emergency Repatriation Fund of the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration, an attached agency of the DMW, Castro noted. More than 400 Filipinos have returned to the Philippines since the conflict in the Middle East began.

- Villanueva seeks social media ban for minors (2026-03-10 16:12)

CITIZENS’ Battle Against Corruption (Cibac) party-list Rep. Eddie Villanueva filed a bill aiming to ban minors aged 16 and below from creating social media accounts. House Bill 8262 was filed on March 3. “Protecting minors from unfiltered and harmful social media exposure is a moral and national responsibility,” Villanueva said. He added that the unchecked impact of social media on the youth “poses long-term risks not only to individual well-being but also to social cohesion and civic life.” Under the bill, no one aged 16 and below “shall be permitted to create, maintain, or access an account on a social media platform. This prohibition shall apply regardless of whether access is obtained directly, indirectly, or through third-party tools.” The measure mandates that parents and guardians shall exercise reasonable supervision and parental authority to ensure that those aged 16 and below “under their care do not access or use social media platforms in violation of this Act.” In cases of gross negligence and repeated violations, parents and guardians will be required to attend digital safety, responsible technology use, or parenting support programs to be crafted by the Department of Information and Communications Technology in coordination with the proper agencies. Under the bill, it “shall be unlawful for any social media platform operator to allow those aged 16 and below to create and maintain active accounts.”

- OSG recommends acquittal of Maria Ressa (2026-03-10 16:11)

THE Office of the Solicitor General (OSG) asked the Supreme Court (SC) for the acquittal of Rappler Chief Executive Officer Maria Ressa and former researcher Reynaldo Santos Jr. in their cyberlibel case. In a statement, the OSG said it made the recommendation in a Manifestation and Motion filed with the high court on March 9, 2026. The OSG argued that the filing of a cyberlibel case against Ressa and Santos in 2019 for an article republished in 2014 was already time-barred. It cited the SC ruling in Berteni Causing v. People, which shortened the prescription period for cyberlibel offenses to one year. “In Causing, the Supreme Court re-examined the interplay of the cybercrime statute and the Revised Penal Code’s provisions on prescription. The Court adopted a limiting principle that fixes a definite, predictable period, reckoned from discovery by the offended party, the authorities, or their agents,” the OSG said. “The Court held that cyber libel prescribes in one year, consistent with Articles 90 and 91 of the Revised Penal Code,” it added. The cyber libel charged stemmed from a May 2012 article, which linked a businessman to the late Chief Justice Renato Corona, who was then facing an impeachment trial. The 2012 article was then republished in 2014 to correct a typographical error, and a cyberlibel case was filed in 2019. Santos was found liable as author of the article and Ressa as then-executive editor of Rappler. Ressa has since given up the post. In 2022, Ressa and Santos lost their appeal against a conviction for cyber libel at the Court of Appeals. “The OSG however underscored that cyber libel is not protected speech. Its penal sanction under existing law remains important, particularly in the digital environment where reputational injury, invasions of privacy, and harm to dignity may be amplified in reach and velocity,” the OSG said. “The OSG reaffirmed the government’s respect for the independence of the Judiciary and emphasized that it will abide by the Supreme Court’s final disposition of the case,” it added.

- DepEd seeks to fix classroom congestion (2026-03-10 16:10)

The Department of Education (DepEd) said Tuesday it is exploring more options to advance classroom decongestion efforts in public schools nationwide. Education Secretary Sonny Angara reiterated his call for a closer collaboration between the national and local governments to expedite resolutions for classroom shortage during the League of Municipalities of the Philippines (LMP) General Assembly on Monday. In a statement, the education chief said the department is now looking into various strategies to address campus congestion. “We are no longer content with the old system. We are changing the way we deliver to make it faster, more efficient, more effective, and more transparent,” he said. Included in the strategies is the potential pilot launch of a “4+1” blended learning model. “(It will be) four days onsite and one day online,” Angara said. The DepEd is also considering the expansion of vouchers in primary education, the leasing or acquiring of foreclosed private properties, as well as the mobilization of private sector donations for 2,000 learning spaces. Angara said by accessing foreclosed properties, the DepEd can immediately use 1,000 classrooms. He also cited the use of pre-fabricated Learning Continuity Spaces (LCS), which were already piloted in Masbate and Davao del Norte, saying 2,571 units are slated for installation across 1,017 municipalities within the year. Angara, meanwhile, led the ceremonial signing of the memorandum of understanding with the LMP to accelerate classroom constructions in the country. “Education is a shared responsibility, and our LGUs are the best-positioned partners to ensure these funds are translated into actual, usable classrooms for our learners,” he said. Earlier, the DepEd signed a memorandum of agreement with provincial and city governments to impose special provisions on school building construction. The DepEd seeks to build 30,000 classrooms through 2028 through conventional procurement; and 16,000 classrooms in high-congestion areas through Public-Private Partnerships under the recently approved PPP for School Infrastructure Project Phase III.

- Nominations open for award promoting Philippines-China relations (2026-03-10 16:09)

THE Association for Philippines-China Understanding (APCU) opened nominations Tuesday for the 2026 Award for Promoting Philippines-China Understanding (APPCU), its Chairman and President Raul Lambino said. Lambino said that this will be the sixth APPCU event organized by the group in coordination with the Chinese Embassy. APCU Director Mafee Cai said that, in addition to the APCU website, nominations can be submitted via email. “All Filipinos are qualified to nominate fellowmen who are fostering better understanding with China,” Cai said. Lambino thanked the Federation of Filipino Chinese Chambers of Commerce and Industry Inc. for providing the venue for the event. The awards were first organized in 2020 by then-Education secretary Alejandro Roces and former president and current Pampanga Rep. Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo. “We are fostering better relations between China and the Philippines through education and people exchange, or in the field of medicine,” he said. Lambino, former presidential adviser for Northern Luzon, reiterated that APCU recognizes and awards government officials for fostering China-Philippines understanding. He stressed that China has provided aid by donating 100 tons of rice through the APCU and Chinese businessmen. “The people-to-people exchange continued until diplomatic relations were established in 1976,” Lambino said. Meanwhile, the APCU head noted that under the One China policy, issues in the West Philippine Sea or South China Sea are best resolved by the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA). “I am sure in the capability of DFA Secretary Teresa Lazaro and the DFA personnel in establishing good diplomatic relations with China,” Lambino said.

- Telcos told: Allow free calls to OFWs in Mideast (2026-03-10 16:08)

THE National Telecommunications Commission (NTC) has swiftly acted on President Ferdinand Marcos Jr.’ s directive to order telecommunications companies to connect overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) in conflict-stricken Middle East and their families in the Philippines, free of charge. NTC Commissioner Ella Blanca Lopez said the “Libreng Tawag (free calls)” program has been activated to cover OFWs in Iran, Iraq, Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia. Lopez said in a statement that the NTC ensured telecommunications companies’ compliance with the order. The NTC official reiterated that the commission is ready to carry out the president’ s order, which seeks to help affected OFWs and their families stay connected without worrying about expensive international call, text and data charges. “As the regulatory body overseeing the telecommunications sector, the NTC commends Globe Telecom, PLDT/Smart, and DITO Telecommunity for their swift and compassionate response to the president’ s directive,” Lopez said. “Through these efforts, we want to ensure that our kababayan (countrymen) can remain connected with their families, offer comfort to one another, and confirm their safety without additional financial burden,” she added. To ensure full compliance with the president’ s order, Lopez said call stations in selected mall-based business centers where families can place calls to their loved ones in the Middle East have also been established. “The commission stands ready to monitor implementation of the president’ s directive, facilitate any necessary coordination, and ensure that all OFWs and their families benefit fully from this vital support initiative, underscoring the government’ s unwavering priority of their welfare and peace of mind,” Lopez said.

- Winnie the pooh marking 100 years (2026-03-10 16:07)

BURBANK, United States — Winnie the Pooh, the self-described bear of “very little brain” who has charmed generations with his homespun and heartfelt wisdom, is turning 100. The beloved children’ s character ambled into the world in 1926 in a book written by English author A.A. Milne, and illustrated by E.H. Shepard. Now Disney, which acquired the rights to Pooh and his pals from Hundred Acre Wood in the 1960s, is holding a year-long celebration of the slow-witted bear, whose image is found all over the planet, from Azerbaijan to Zimbabwe. “Winnie the Pooh is all of us,” said Kevin Kern, senior manager of research at the Walt Disney Archives in Burbank, California, where all kinds of Pooh paraphernalia are neatly catalogued. “He shows all the emotions that we show. He sees the things that we see. He struggles like we do; whether he’ s trying to get up a tree to get honey or understand his friends. “He’ s so steeped in wisdom that he himself does not always think he’ s giving, and that’ s so timeless.” Pooh for President Milne’ s first book -- published in Britain and the United States in October 1926 -- was inspired by the author’ s son, Christopher Robin, and his collection of stuffed animals: Pooh, Piglet, Eeyore, Owl, Rabbit, and Kanga and her baby Roo. Two years later, the effervescent Tigger joined the gang for the second book, “The House at Pooh Corner.” When Disney’ s first animated short appeared in 1966, Pooh’ s signature look -- a too-short red t-shirt and nothing down below -- was set. Over the decades, there have been books in dozens of languages, plush toys, backpacks, lunchboxes, watches and feature films, most recently the live-action “Christopher Robin” in 2018, starring Ewan McGregor as an adult Christopher Robin who reunites with Pooh. But the lovable bear’s adventures did not stop there: he even ran for US president, with Disneyland holding a ticker tape parade in 1972 as a lighthearted alternative to the battle between Richard Nixon and George McGovern. In the 21st century, Winnie made another -- albeit unintentional -- foray into politics when Chinese critics of Xi Jinping noted what they said was a resemblance between the country’s leader and the portly bear. Communist Party censors worked to scrub the internet of any reference to the character. And in 2023 after US copyright protections lapsed, Winnie found himself advising children how to avoid a school shooter when a Texas school district pressed him into action for a leaflet to warn them to “Run, Hide, Fight.” That same year, he became a knife-wielding villain in a low-budget slasher film called “Winnie-the-Pooh: Blood and Honey,” which recouped its budget many times over with a theatrical run that surprised industry watchers. Mark Henn, an animator who worked on the altogether more family-friendly 2011 Disney film “Winnie the Pooh,” said he had been thrilled to be able to draw a character he had grown up watching. “He definitely is a bringer of joy,” he told AFP. “He’s very calm. Even when he does get upset, there’s a calmness to his demeanor, which I think most people really gravitate to.”

- Cayetano wants tax amnesty extended (2026-03-10 16:07)

SEN. Pia Cayetano on Tuesday expressed support for extending the estate tax amnesty program until June 30, 2028, saying the measure would help ease the financial burden on families seeking to settle the tax liabilities of deceased relatives. During the March 10 Senate Committee on Ways and Means hearing, Cayetano emphasized the importance of the proposed extension in giving heirs more time to settle estate taxes without being weighed down by accumulated penalties and surcharges. “We have to emphasize what the benefit is. The amnesty, basically, is that interest, penalties and surcharges will not be imposed on you. And interest penalties and surcharges accumulate — every year it goes up,” Cayetano said. The estate tax amnesty program was originally introduced under Republic Act (RA) 11213, or the Tax Amnesty Act of 2019, to encourage heirs to settle long-unpaid estate taxes by offering significantly reduced financial obligations. Under the program, heirs may pay a flat estate tax rate of 6 percent of the net estate without the additional interest, penalties, or surcharges that normally would accrue over time under the National Internal Revenue Code of the Philippines. Lawmakers noted that many families struggle to transfer ownership of inherited property due to unpaid estate taxes, resulting in large numbers of untitled or informally held properties nationwide. Data from the Department of Finance and the Bureau of Internal Revenue previously indicated that the amnesty program has helped generate billions of pesos in revenue while enabling thousands of families to transfer inherited assets legally. Under the proposed extension, qualified heirs would also be allowed to pay the estate amnesty tax in installments within one year, provided that at least 50 percent of the amount due is paid upon filing. The remaining balance can be settled without additional penalties or interest. Supporters of the measure said extending the amnesty period would encourage more taxpayers to avail themselves of the program, improve tax compliance, and help unlock idle or disputed properties that cannot be sold, transferred, or developed due to unsettled estate taxes. Cayetano said the extension would ultimately benefit both the government and the public by making tax compliance more accessible while generating additional revenue. “This gives families a chance to settle obligations that may have accumulated over decades while helping the government collect revenue that might otherwise remain unpaid,” she said. If approved, the extended estate tax amnesty program is expected to continue facilitating the legal transfer of inherited properties and reducing longstanding tax liabilities faced by Filipino heirs.

- AFP: Military operations to continue despite oil crisis (2026-03-10 16:06)

THE Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) on Tuesday assured the public that all scheduled military operations and exercises will proceed as planned despite the global oil crisis due to tensions in the Middle East. “All AFP activities for this year that are operational in nature will continue. We could not afford to have a letdown in performing our mandate,” Rear Admiral Roy Vincent Trinidad, AFP spokesman for the West Philippine Sea (WPS), told reporters in a press briefing at Camp Aguinaldo. Also, the Salaknib (shield) and Balikatan exercises with the United States and Japanese forces will push through as planned from April to May. Last year, Balikatan, an annual large-scale joint military exercise between the Philippines and the United States, mobilized over 14,000 Filipino, American, Japanese and Australian forces. The AFP, however, said that the number of US troops and military assets is up to the American military to determine. As the offensive party, the United States has deployed over 50,000 troops for the Iran conflict. Since the armed confrontation began in late February, critics have warned of depleted US weapon stockpiles. Likewise, Arab states in the Persian Gulf are reportedly running dangerously low on interceptors to take down Iranian retaliatory attacks. US Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth called this claim a “bad miscalculation” and assured American forces that their stockpiles of defensive and offensive weapons “allow us to sustain this campaign as long as we need to.” The Philippines and the United States plan broader security engagements in 2026, including the deployment of US missiles and uncrewed systems to deter aggression in the West Philippine Sea.

- Philippine Army repels 'enemies' in simulated attack (2026-03-10 16:06)

THE Philippine Army (PA) on Tuesday said that its armor and artillery units repelled a simulated enemy attack during a “littoral defense live fire exercise” in Burgos, Pangasinan, last March 9. PA spokesman Col. Louie Dema-ala said the drill was part of the Army’s ongoing “Catex Katihan,” which started on Feb. 26 and is expected to end late this month. “Catex” is short for combined arms training exercise. “The 701st Combined Arms Brigade utilized its armor and artillery assets, which included remote control weapons systems (RCWS) mounted on armored infantry fighting vehicles and 105mm towed howitzers,” he said in a statement. Aside from these military assets, Dema-ala said reservists also deployed combat drones at targets strategically placed near the coastline of Burgos. A total of 4,222 PA soldiers are currently participating in the unilateral exercise, with drills being held at various training areas in Pangasinan and Ilocos Norte. “The littoral defense drill is one of the key highlights of the ongoing third iteration of Catex ‘Katihan,’ which tests the Army’s Land Defense Concept in support of the external security operations,” the PA spokesman said. Dema-ala also said PA chief Lt. Gen. Antonio Nafarrete personally witnessed the live fire drill and commended the participating troops. He added that the Army chief capped his visit by directing PA units to train hard to meet the challenges of the fast-changing global and regional security landscape.

- Troops guard Bangladesh gas depots (2026-03-10 16:05)

THE oil price spike caused by the war in the Middle East has sparked unrest in Bangladesh and exasperation at gas pumps around Asia, where many economies are heavily dependent on fossil fuel imports. Even as governments move to limit the impact on fuel prices, lines have formed at petrol stations in countries including Vietnam, Pakistan and the Philippines, although the situation remains stable elsewhere. In Bangladesh -- which imports 95 percent of its oil and gas needs -- the military has been deployed at major oil depots, as police patrol in and around filling stations. “We haven’t received supply from the depot, but the bike riders weren’t convinced and vandalized the station,” said petrol station worker Ashrafuzzaman Dulal told Agence France-Presse, describing violence on Sunday. On Tuesday his station Shahjahan Traders, one of the oldest in the capital Dhaka, had hung a banner apologizing because its stock had run out. The South Asian nation of 170 million people has started fuel rationing, sent students home and scrapped celebratory light displays over the energy crunch. One man was killed on Saturday night in the southern Bangladeshi district of Jhenaidah after an altercation over refueling with staff. Following the 25-year-old’s death, angry crowds torched three buses and vandalized a filling station, police said. So, so angry’ On Tuesday, queues stretched for 1.5 kilometers (nearly one mile) through Dhaka’s city centre. “My boss left the car here and took a rickshaw to reach his destination,” Kamrul Hasan, who was waiting in a vehicle almost at the end of the queue, told AFP. Filling station worker Akhtar Hossain said he had not stopped for hours. “Even during the Gulf War, we didn’t experience this sort of rush,” Hossain told AFP. Oil prices fell Tuesday after US President Donald Trump said the US-Israel war on Iran could end “very soon”. The previous day, the price of benchmark crude had rocketed past $100 a barrel -- its highest level since Russia’s invasion of Ukraine in 2022. The market instability came as Iran targeted the crude-rich Gulf with missile and drone barrages. Maritime traffic in the Strait of Hormuz -- a key Gulf waterway through which a fifth of global crude passes -- has also all but halted since the war broke out. Thousands of motorbike riders queued for fuel Tuesday in Vietnam, where prices for unleaded gasoline have surged more than 20 percent. Vietnam has so far avoided mass shortages, with the government scraping duties on many imported petroleum products. A 57-year-old who gave his name as Tuan told AFP at a Hanoi gas station that he was “so, so angry.” “I have been waiting in line for almost one hour. Then my turn came, and they said their system is down,” he said as dozens of drivers waited but others gave up. Myanmar price spike Vehicles also lined up in scorching heat at Philippine petrol stations this week, as officials warned against hoarding fuel, with similar scenes unfolding in Pakistan and Sri Lanka. Enrico Guda, a gas station attendant in Metro Manila, said the station had double its usual daily workload as people rushed to fuel up before prices jumped. In Myanmar, which imports 90 percent of its fuel oil and has long suffered from a fragile energy supply chain owing to the civil war consuming the country, traffic curbs are in place. From Saturday, half of private vehicles have been ordered off the roads each day to preserve oil stocks. “Some drivers depend on their vehicles for work and survival... the new system has made it harder for them to run their businesses,” said Hla Htay, 56, a car rental business owner. In the Myanmar frontier town of Tachileik, an AFP reporter saw signs cross-border supplies from Thailand had been cut -- with some petrol stations shut last week after an up-to threefold price spike the day before. In several other Asian countries, from Japan to Indonesia, as well as China, India and Afghanistan, panic appears not yet to have hit, apart from a few sporadic queues for petrol. “I used to fill up regularly once a week, but now I try to fill up whenever I find a cheaper gas station,” South Korean businessman Lee In-tae, 42, told AFP in Seoul.

- Muntinlupa creates task force vs fuel overpricing (2026-03-10 16:04)

THE Muntinlupa City government will form a task force to monitor possible fuel overpricing and hoarding as part of energy conservation measures being implemented amid rising oil prices. Mayor Ruffy Biazon announced the move in a post on his official Facebook page on Monday evening, March 9, saying that the task force will lead efforts to enforce energy-saving measures in the city government and safeguard consumers. “Amid rising oil prices and in line with the president’s directive, we will implement cost-saving measures in the city government,” Biazon said. He said the task force will also oversee monitoring of fuel use in city government operations, including limiting fuel allowance to ensure vehicles are used only for official duties. Biazon added that a separate fuel allocation will be maintained for essential and responder offices to ensure unhampered delivery of critical public services. The city will also implement a compressed workweek from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday to Thursday, in some offices, and frontline and essential offices will continue operating under their regular schedules. On Tuesday, March 10, Biazon said he approved a resolution of the Local Finance Committee authorizing the implementation of cost-saving measures in anticipation of further increases in oil prices. Biazon also said the city government will implement energy-saving measures for electricity use in government buildings and encourage virtual meetings to help reduce travel and operational expenses.

- Expert: Ozempic safe but not for everyone (2026-03-10 16:03)

A HEALTH expert on Tuesday said that Ozempic, a medication primarily used to treat diabetes, can be safely used for weight loss but only for individuals who are overweight or obese and under medical supervision. During the “8 Billion Reasons to Act on Obesity: Stronger Heart, Healthier Kidneys, Better Diabetes Control” event held in Manila, Dr. Elaine Cunanan, vice president of the Philippine College of Endocrinology, Diabetes and Metabolism, Inc. (PCEDM), explained that semaglutide — the generic name of Ozempic — has been proven effective in helping individuals lose weight, even those without diabetes. “Ozempic was originally developed to lower blood sugar levels in diabetic patients, but it was later discovered to have a side effect of weight loss. This led to further studies, which confirmed its effectiveness in helping overweight and obese individuals shed pounds,” Cunanan said. She noted, however, that the drug should not be taken without medical supervision. “These drugs are good for diabetes and particularly for those who are obese. But it’s better to be supervised by a physician because we have criteria to determine the needs of the patient who is obese,” she explained. Cunanan said Ozempic may be prescribed for those without diabetes or other comorbidities if they meet certain criteria. She added that the drug may also be recommended for people with a body mass index (BMI) of 27 or higher, who already have related conditions such as fatty liver, cardiovascular disease, heart attack, or stroke, as these patients are likely to benefit the most from the treatment. She warned the public against using unregulated versions of Ozempic, which are often sold online. While acknowledging its effectiveness, Cunanan urged the public not to rely solely on the drug but also to adopt healthier lifestyle habits. “Eat healthy, exercise. Don’t just rely on the medication,” she said.

- LGUs adopt four-day week in austerity bid (2026-03-10 16:02)

SEVERAL local government units in the National Capital Region (NCR) have adopted a four-day workweek in compliance with the national directive to conserve energy and reduce fuel consumption amid the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. The adjustments follow Memorandum Circular 114 issued by Malacañang, which directs government agencies and local governments to implement energy conservation measures. Marikina, San Juan, Makati, Las Piñas, Muntinlupa, Parañaque, Mandaluyong and Malabon have adjusted work schedules while assuring residents that essential public services will continue uninterrupted. In Marikina City, Mayor Marjorie Ann “Maan” Teodoro signed Executive Order 05, Series of 2026, implementing a four-day workweek in city government offices. Under the order, offices will operate Monday to Thursday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., allowing employees to complete their required 40-hour workweek. Government facilities will remain closed every Friday to cut down on electricity consumption. Teodoro said that essential services and field operations, including the Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Office, public safety units, and street maintenance teams, will remain fully operational. San Juan City also adopted a four-day onsite workweek through Administrative Order FMZ-075 signed by Mayor Francis Zamora, with eligible offices shifting to a work-from-home arrangement every Friday while hospitals, health centers, and other frontline units continue regular operations. In Makati, Mayor Nancy Binay said City Hall will implement the arrangement beginning March 16, with extended service hours from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday to Thursday, to ensure continued access to city services. Las Piñas City, under Mayor April Aguilar, has adopted a schedule of 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday to Thursday, while offices handling health services, disaster response, engineering and traffic management will maintain regular operations. Meanwhile, Muntinlupa Mayor Ruffy Biazon said some city offices will follow a 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. compressed workweek, alongside stricter monitoring of government vehicle fuel use as part of broader energy conservation measures. The Parañaque City government, led by Mayor Edwin Olivarez, will implement a four-day workweek with work-from-home arrangements every Friday, while Mandaluyong City, under Mayor Menchie Abalos, ordered offices to operate 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday to Thursday, under Executive Order 2, Series of 2026. The Malabon City government has also started implementing a four-day workweek schedule for its employees. “We are expecting that all concerned employees and City Hall personnel would cooperate since the directive came directly from the president owing to the rapid fuel increases as a result of the ongoing Middle East conflict,” Mayor Jeannie Sandoval said. Under the new arrangement, employees will have longer work hours from Monday to Thursday, ensuring the continued delivery of essential public services. To initially comply with the 40-hour workweek required for employees, City Administrator Alexander Rosete said the work schedule for the second week of March will be as follows: March 10–11, 2026, 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.; March 12, 2026, 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and March 13, 2026, is a non-working day. After March 13, the regular work schedule will be from Monday to Thursday, 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday will be a non-working day. Rosete said offices that provide frontline services — such as the City Health Department, Ospital ng Malabon, City Social Welfare and Development Department, City Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Office, City Environment and Natural Resources Office, City Engineering Department, and the Public Safety and Transport Management Office — are exempted from the new scheme. “They will continue their regular shifting schedules to ensure the continuous delivery of services to ‘Malabueños,’ ” he told The Manila Times. - Cebu shipping firms raise fares amid oil price shock (2026-03-10 16:00)

TALISAY CITY, Cebu — Shipping companies and ferry operators in the Visayas are imposing temporary fare and cargo surcharges as global oil prices surge as a result of the expanding war in the Middle East. While one local ferry operator has canceled selected routes due to rising fuel costs, others continue operations but adjusted passenger fares, freight rates, and cargo tariffs to manage rising expenses. Lite Shipping Corp. will implement a temporary fuel surcharge on all passenger fares and freight rates starting March 11, 2026. The company said, “This measure is necessary to help offset the rising fuel costs and to ensure the continued safe and reliable operation of our vessels.” Management assured passengers that it will lift the surcharge once fuel prices stabilize. Medallion Transport Inc. will impose a temporary fuel surcharge on passenger fares and cargo rates starting March 10. The company described the measure as a difficult but necessary step to sustain operations during volatile times. Trans-Asia Shipping Lines will apply a 20 percent fuel surcharge on passenger fares effective March 9 and on cargo rates starting March 11. The company said rates remain fluid due to market volatility and cited escalating tensions in the Middle East, which have limited fuel availability and increased maritime operating costs. Gabisan Shipping Lines Inc. announced additional temporary surcharges after local diesel prices rose. The company said it will implement a temporary “fuel crisis charge” on freight and passenger services starting March 11. The advisory detailed increases of P120 on all passenger fares, P1,000 on RORO service, P200 on motorcycle fares, and 20 percent on each loose cargo tariff. It added that the adjustments aim to sustain regular operations amid expected further fuel cost increases. Earlier this week, Roble Shipping Inc. and Super Shuttle Ferry raised fares on March 9. Roble Shipping said, “Our main priority is to keep serving the riding public safely and reliably,” while Super Shuttle Ferry implemented a 20-percent adjustment across all branches to maintain safe and dependable service amid rising fuel costs. OceanJet temporarily suspended several passenger trips connecting Cebu City with parts of Leyte and Bohol from March 6 to March 20, including routes between Cebu and Palompon, Palompon and Cebu, and Cebu and Getafe, citing the ongoing fuel crisis. The company has not indicated when normal operations will resume. Last week, the Maritime Industry Authority (Marina) authorized domestic shipping companies and maritime stakeholders to implement contingency measures to address the potential impact of the escalating Middle East crisis on the maritime industry. Marina Administrator Sonia Malaluan said the measures are intended to ensure that domestic maritime transport remains stable despite global disruptions. “Marina is closely monitoring the evolving situation in the Middle East and its potential effects on global fuel prices and shipping operations. Through these contingency measures, we aim to ensure the continued movement of passengers and essential goods across the country while providing necessary support to the domestic shipping industry during this period of uncertainty,” Malaluan said. Under the advisory, shipping companies may implement operational adjustments, subject to Marina approval, including the consolidation or reduction of trips to optimize vessel capacity and fuel consumption. Shipping operators may also implement fuel surcharges or fare adjustments of up to 20 percent of the base fare, while any increase beyond this threshold will remain subject to Marina’s evaluation. Once the crisis is over, operators must remove any fuel surcharge and revert to pre-crisis passenger and cargo rates, Marina said. Profiteers warned As the country grappled with rising fuel prices, the Palace warned that the government would take legal action against profiteers and hoarders taking advantage of the crisis in the Middle East. In a briefing in New York on the sidelines of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr.’s engagements in the United Nations (UN) late Monday night, Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Undersecretary Claire Castro reiterated that the government will not hesitate to go after those who are found guilty of unscrupulous practices, especially in the middle of skyrocketing oil and fuel prices. “There is a law against hoarding and profiteering,” Castro told reporters in Filipino. “If you are caught violating the law, caught hoarding or taking action or engaging in profiteering, the government will not spare you because you will be sued and charged.” Pump prices on Tuesday rose by double digits with gasoline prices up by as much as P10.20 a liter, diesel by as much as P24.25 a liter, and kerosene by as much as P38.50 a liter. Castro earlier reported that the Department of Energy (DOE) issued a show-cause order to 54 gasoline stations for allegedly hiking prices prematurely. “The president’s call is for us to unite. Amid what is happening now in the Middle East, we should unite and work together.... If you take advantage, you will be in trouble. You will be sued and you may be deprived of the opportunity to do business,” she said. She said the Palace is in close coordination with the Department of Energy (DOE) and Department of Finance (DOF) for the next steps regarding Marcos’ request to Congress to grant him emergency powers to reduce the excise tax on fuel and ease the burden of consumers. Castro appealed to the public to not panic and assured them that the country has adequate supplies of fuel and essential goods despite rising oil prices amid the ongoing war in the Middle East. Sen. Francis Escudero, meanwhile, called for the strict enforcement of laws against fuel hoarding and profiteering, warning that opportunists must not be allowed to exploit the ongoing crisis. Escudero urged government regulators to intensify monitoring of petroleum supply and prices to protect consumers from artificial shortages and unjustified price increases that could worsen the financial burden on Filipino families. “Enforcement must be swift, decisive, and unforgiving to send a strong message that economic sabotage will not be tolerated,” Escudero said. The lawmaker emphasized that fuel hoarding and profiteering are forms of economic sabotage that weaken the country’s ability to withstand external shocks and disproportionately harm vulnerable sectors such as public transport drivers, market vendors, and low-income households. Petroleum supply, he said, should be treated as a matter of national security, especially during periods of geopolitical instability that could affect the global energy market. Sen. Mark Villar expressed concern over the recent surge in global oil prices, warning that a sharp increase in domestic fuel costs could place additional strain on Filipino households and key sectors of the economy. Villar said the government must explore additional measures to cushion the impact of rising fuel prices, particularly on the transportation and agriculture sectors, which are highly dependent on petroleum products. MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. invited American investors to explore opportunities in the Philippines, reaffirming the country’s openness to business and the government’s commitment to improving the investment climate. “We are ready to work with you. The Philippines is open—and I mean that not as a slogan, but as a commitment from my administration,” Marcos said during a dinner reception hosted by the LT Group, Inc. (LTG) in New York on Monday. “We have been working hard to improve our investment climate, cut red tape, make it easier to do business, and build something lasting in our country. We are also at a moment of real opportunity,” he added. Citing manufacturing as an example, Marcos said that, with changes in the global supply chain, businesses no longer concentrate their operations in a single location and are now actively seeking trusted, capable, and strategically located alternatives. He said the Philippines was an option, given its skilled, adaptable, and English-speaking workforce and its continuously improving infrastructure. The country also has one of the youngest and fastest-growing populations in Asia, the President said. “I encourage you—talk to each other; find the opportunities; and when you do, know that you have a partner in the Philippines who is serious about making it happen,” he added. Attendees include members of the US-Philippines Society, US-Asean Business Council, Philippine-American Chamber of Commerce, US businessmen and the Philippine business delegation. The LT Group, Inc. is a leading diversified holding company in the Philippines, founded in 1937 with major interests in banking, tobacco, distilled spirits, beverages, and property development.

- Lacson: Marcoleta liable for indirect bribery over undeclared campaign donations (2026-03-10 14:26)

MANILA, Philippines — Sen. Rodante Marcoleta may be liable for indirect bribery over his alleged undeclared campaign funds in the 2025 midterm elections, Senate President Pro Tempore Panfilo Lacson said Tuesday. Lacson said Marcoleta's attempt to explain his failure to disclose his campaign contributors in his Statement of Contributions and Expenditures (SOCE) "smacks of an admission against interest." According to Lacson, Marcoleta claimed he received the contributions before he became a senatorial candidate. However, Lacson noted that Marcoleta was already a public official at the time, serving as a representative of the SAGIP party-list. Marcoleta served as SAGIP party-list representative from 2016 to 2025. Lacson also pointed out that after the Commission on Elections (Comelec) issued Marcoleta a show cause order, the senator allegedly tried to backtrack on his earlier argument by saying he received the contributions when he was not yet considered a candidate, based on a Supreme Court ruling. "Why has the Comelec not issued a resolution on Marcoleta's SOCE case up to now?" Lacson asked. In a privilege speech, Lacson said Marcoleta and his legal team may have believed they were being "smart" by focusing on the technical timing of the contributions. "But the funny thing is that he admitted receiving contributions, so he would have a debt of gratitude to the contributors. This is a clear admission against interest, as lawyers say," Lacson added.

MANILA, Philippines — American manufacturer US Medical Glove Company (USMGC) has expressed interest in building a medical glove manufacturing facility in the Philippines, President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. announced Tuesday. In a social media post, Marcos said the company's planned investment could create more than 2,000 jobs for Filipinos. "I met with the US Medical Glove Company to discuss their plans to build a medical glove manufacturing facility in the country. The project could create more than 2,000 jobs for our kababayans," Marcos said. "It will also allow us to produce essential medical supplies locally and open new opportunities in the growing global medical manufacturing industry," he added. The President met with USMGC officials on Monday on the sidelines of his participation in a United Nations event in New York, where he delivered the country's national statement at the Commission on the Status of Women. Malacañang said the American company's investment would help strengthen local capacity to produce medical-grade supplies, with the government expressing support for industries that enhance health security and supply chain stability. The Philippines is well positioned to benefit from the planned investment due to its young workforce and expanding industrial base, it added. .

MANILA, Philippines — The low pressure area (LPA) outside the Philippine Area of Responsibility (PAR) has intensified into a tropical depression, the state-run weather agency said on Tuesday. Weather specialist John Manalo of the Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said the weather disturbance was estimated to be some 1,325 kilometers east of Eastern Visayas (outside PAR). Pagasa maintained that the tropical depression would not be directly affecting the weather conditions in the country as it was also not expected to enter PAR. However, its trough or extension is being experienced over Eastern Visayas, Northern Mindanao, Caraga, Davao Oriental, Davao de Oro, Sulu, and Tawi-Tawi at which cloudy skies with scattered rains and thunderstorms would prevail. Other parts of the archipelago, including Metro Manila, have been affected by the northeast monsoon or "amihan" which brings partly cloudy to overcast skies with isolated light rains in 24 hours, the national weather bureau said.

MANILA, Philippines — The Sandiganbayan Sixth Division on Tuesday denied the bail petitions of nine people charged along with former lawmaker Elizaldy Co. The Office of the Ombudsman filed the case—for alleged malversation of public funds through falsification of public documents—before the Sandiganbayan last November in connection with a road dike construction project in Oriental Mindoro. In a 41-page resolution promulgated on March 10, 2026, the court said it found that Gene Ryan Altea, Ruben Santos Jr., Dominic Serrano, Montrexis Tamayo, Dennis Abagon, Juliet Calvo, Lerma Cayco, Gerald Pacanan, and Felisardo Casuno were "not entitled to bail." "It must be emphasized that the Courts ruling herein is not a prejudgment of the guilt of the said accused. The Court merely determined the weight of evidence for the purposes of bail," it said.

At least 25 travelers were accommodated overnight at the airport's Pre-Departure Area. According to CAAP, the cancelled flights were attributed to unfavorable weather conditions associated with a low-pressure area (LPA) affecting parts of Mindanao, compounded by the prevailing Northeast Monsoon. MANILA, Philippines — Government agents have intercepted another shipment of illegal drugs at the Central Mail Exchange Center (CMEC), involving abandoned parcels worth P6.1 million. Port of NAIA District Collector Yasmin Mapa on Tuesday said that approximately 795 tablets of MDMA (Ecstasy), 1,096 grams of powdered ecstasy, 8 grams of cocaine, 14 grams of ketamine, and 11 grams of an undetermined substance were discovered on March 6, 2026. The items were found inside eight inbound parcels arriving from the Netherlands, France, and Spain. The illegal substances were reportedly consigned to several individuals across the country. The shipments were falsely declared as ordinary items in an apparent attempt to evade Customs inspection. As of March 2026, the Bureau of Customs-Ninoy Aquino International Airport (BoC-NAIA) has intercepted at least 21 parcels containing a significant volume of illegal drugs at the CMEC in Pasay City.

- Marcos angered by mistreatment of OFWs in Bahrain, orders probe (2026-03-10 11:01)

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. was angered by reports that Filipinos were mistreated in Bahrain by a staff of the Department of Migrant Workers based in that country, Malacanang said on Tuesday. In a press briefing in New York, Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Undersecretary Claire Castro said Marcos immediately ordered DMW Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac to take action against the MWO personnel identified as Anthony Allermo. “President Marcos Jr. did not let pass the incident between MWO Bahrain employee, Anthony Allermo, and overseas Filipino workers there. The president was not happy about it. He was angry for our OFWs because of the mistreatment they received from some public servants,” Castro told reporters in Filipino at the sidelines of Marcos’ engagements at the United Nations (UN) Headquarters late Monday night. The official was referring to a video shared across social media platforms where Allermo was seen shooing away Filipinos from the consulate who were seeking assistance as they, too, were affected by the recent hostilities in the Middle East. Allermo could also be heard saying that nothing can be done no matter where or who they air their grievances to. “When the president saw the viral video showing Allermo mistreating OFWs, he immediately ordered DMW Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac to investigate and take action on the incident,” Castro said. She added that any one who has no genuine desire to serve the public has no place in the administration and erring employees and officials should resign or be terminated from their posts.

- DMW: Family of missing Pinoy seafarer to receive assistance (2026-03-10 10:32)

MANILA, Philippines — The Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) on Tuesday assured full support to the family of a Filipino seafarer who went missing, after a tugboat assisting a distressed ship was attacked near the Strait of Hormuz. DMW Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac said the agency, along with the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA) and relevant regional offices, contacted the seafarer's family to provide help. "Our team a few days ago had already visited the family's home and assured them of our full support during these difficult times while we await the results of the search and rescue at sea," Cacdac said in a statement. The seafarer, who was not named, was a tugboat crew member, who responded to assist another vessel attacked over the Strait of Hormuz. Cacdac said while the seafarer's fellow colleagues were all reported safe, that lone seafarer remains unaccounted for. Around 6,400 Filipino seafarers on vessels in the Middle East were monitored and marked safe, while the DMW keeps track of ships carrying Filipino crew members near the Strait of Hormuz.

- Renault aims to stop selling fuel-only cars in Europe by 2030 (2026-03-10 09:08)

PARIS — French carmaker Renault said Tuesday it aims to end selling simple internal combustion engine vehicles in Europe by 2030 and plans to develop its new electric car platform with Google. Unveiling its new multiyear strategic plan, it targeted a nearly 23 percent increase in sales of Renault brand vehicles by 2030 to two million per year. "By 2030, the brand is aiming for... 100 percent electrified sales in Europe and 50 percent outside Europe," the company said, which includes hybrid vehicles. Some 40 percent of the vehicles the carmaker sold in Europe last year were still equipped with purely fossil fuel-powered engines. It said it also intended to have achieved a shift towards electric mobility at its budget brand Dacia by then as well, increasing the number of electric vehicles in its range from one to four. Renault's strategy is in stark contrast to that of its rival Stellantis, which stunned investors last month with a massive 22-billion-euro ($25-billion) write-down of its EV operations, saying it had misjudged buyers' willingness to shift to cleaner vehicles. Renault chief executive Francois Provost said the company's ambition for the coming years is "to design and produce in Europe products that are best in class in terms of desirability, technology and competitiveness." The group envisages releasing 22 new models in Europe, including 16 electric ones, and 14 models on international markets. The company said it plans to develop its new electric car platform together with Google. "It will also be the first carOS co-developed with the partner Google, based on Android," the company said. Renault said the aim is to have 90 percent of the vehicle functions able to be updated remotely, cutting time to deploy updates, and able to handle ultra-fast charging in as little as 10 minutes. Renault makes less money on electric vehicles than those with fossil fuel-powered engines. Its operating margin fell from 7.6 percent in 2024 to 6.3 percent last year and is set to fall further to 5.5 percent next year. The carmaker said it aims to keep operating margin between five and seven percent.

- Iran vows to fight 'as long as needed' as Trump says war will end 'soon' (2026-03-10 08:24)

TEHRAN, Iran — Iran's Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi said Tuesday his country would keep fighting as long as necessary, casting doubt on US President Donald Trump's insistence that the conflict would be over "soon." The remarks from one of Iran's top leaders, who also ruled out negotiations with Washington, came as Tehran launched a new wave of attacks on US-allied Gulf nations hours after Trump's assurances of a swift end to the rapidly widening conflict. Trump's comments helped reverse the stock market slumps and oil price jumps of a day earlier, with markets in Tokyo and Seoul opening strongly, and oil prices down as much as five percent, a day after benchmark crude rocketed past $100 a barrel. "It's going to be ended soon, and if it starts up again they'll be hit even harder," Trump told a news conference in Florida on Monday, after telling lawmakers that the campaign would be a "short-term excursion." "We've already won in many ways, but we haven't won enough," Trump said. He threatened an attack of "incalculable" size if Tehran blocks oil supplies. "We will hit them so hard that it will not be possible for them or anybody else helping them to ever recover that section of the world, if they do anything." However, in an interview Araghchi told PBS News "the firings continues, and we are prepared. We are well prepared to continue attacking them with our missiles as long as needed and as long as it takes." Iran's Revolutionary Guards also responded to Trump that they would "determine the end of the war." And Araghchi effectively ruled out negotiations with Washington, saying Tehran had "a very bitter experience of talking with Americans." Recalling previous US attacks during earlier negotiations, he said: "I don't think talking with Americans anymore would be on our agenda." Some oil sanctions waived Early Tuesday, Iranian attacks again targeted Gulf nations. The United Arab Emirates said it was "currently responding to incoming missile and drone threats from Iran," while in Bahrain citizens were told to take shelter as sirens sounded. Both Saudi Arabia and Kuwait also said they had intercepted and destroyed drones. In Iran, local media reported fresh attacks in the capital and Khomein, and Israel said it had struck an Iranian missile launcher shortly after an Iranian barrage that triggered warnings in several parts of Israel. The ongoing fire laid bare the uncertainty that has roiled markets globally, prompting fuel shortages and raising the specter of inflation. In a bid to calm prices, Trump announced he would waive some sanctions on oil, following talks with Russian President Vladimir Putin. Iran has targeted vessels traveling through the Strait of Hormuz, through which nearly 20 percent of the world's crude oil usually transits. French President Emmanuel Macron said Monday his country and its allies were working on a "purely defensive" mission to reopen the strait, aiming to escort ships "after the end of the hottest phase of the conflict." But it was far from clear when that might come. Iran's new supreme leader is hardliner Mojtaba Khamenei, who replaces his father who was killed in the first day of US-Israeli strikes. Trump has called Khamenei a "lightweight" and said he should be involved in choosing Iran's leader. The appointment was welcomed by some in Iran however, with state media carrying images of tens of thousands of people celebrating in central Tehran on Monday, many carrying the new leader's picture. 'Just a bit of bread' The war has spiraled far beyond Iran's borders, dragging in not only its Gulf neighbors but also Lebanon, where Israel carried out fresh strikes on Tuesday. Lebanese authorities said Monday that Israeli attacks since March 2 have killed at least 486 people and wounded at least 1,313. AFP has not been able to carry out a detailed breakdown of the figures. Lebanon was drawn into the Middle East war when Iran-backed Hezbollah attacked Israel after the killing of Iranian supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei. Lebanese President Joseph Aoun has accused Hezbollah of working to "collapse" the state, while the head of the group's parliamentary bloc said it had "no other option... than the option of resistance." Syria too criticized the group, saying it had fired artillery shells into its territory from Lebanon overnight, and warning its army "will not tolerate any aggression." Israeli strikes and ground incursions have pushed hundreds of thousands of Lebanese from their homes, with more than 660,000 registered as displaced, according to government figures. Among them is Zainab El Masry, 40, who was sleeping with her husband and children on the grimy pavement of a Beirut square. "We have nothing to eat or drink, just a bit of bread," she told AFP. The conflict comes as Muslims mark the fasting month of Ramadan, and in Iran residents said they were grappling with the war and its impact on prices. "What amazes me the most is that people insist on sitting out on the terrace to watch the bombardments, as if it were a show," said cafe manager Reza, 36, in the northeastern city of Boukan. "The real problem is money: banks no longer distribute cash and many bank cards are blocked," he said. "So in my cafe, I made a simple decision: for those who can't pay for their coffee, it's on the house."

- House panel okays bill authorizing president to suspend, cut fuel excise tax in economic emergencies (2026-03-10 08:15)

MANILA, Philippines — The House of Representatives' Committee on Ways and Means on Tuesday approved a substitute bill that aimed to authorize the country's president to suspend or cut fuel excise taxes during national or global economic emergencies. The bill stated that the president "may, upon the recommendation of the Development Budget Coordination Committee, in coordination with the" secretary of the Department of Energy (DoE), "suspend the imposition of, or reduce the excise taxes on fuel, "subject to conditions. The conditions were: when the average Dubai crude oil price based on the Mean of Platts Singapore has reached or exceeded $80 per barrel for a month "immediately preceding the issuance of the suspension or reduction order;" or the president has declared a state of national emergency or calamity, "and such condition has resulted in extraordinary increases in domestic pump prices of petroleum products as certified by the" DoE secretary. Under the bill, the suspension may cover specific petroleum products. It allows full suspension or partial reduction of the excise tax rates. Also under the bill, the suspension or reduction can only last for up to six months unless Congress extends it or ends it earlier through a joint resolution. The total suspension period, the bill stated, shall not exceed a year. It also stated that "any suspension or reduction shall be lifted when the conditions that warrant the suspension or reduction no longer exist". Also under the bill, the president has the power to temporarily suspend or cut fuel excise taxes only until Dec. 31, 2028. Under the bill, the president must submit, through the Finance secretary, to Congress a report within 15 days from the suspension order's issuance and every month afterward on the "factual basis for the suspension or reduction of excise taxes;" the estimated foregone revenues; and the "expected impact on inflation, fuel prices, and other economic activity."

- Mayor: Offensive language vs women demands apology (2026-03-10 06:09)

MUNTINLUPA City Mayor Ruffy Biazon said on Monday that public officials should apologize rather than justify remarks that offend women, as he weighed in on the controversy sparked by

Quezon City Rep. Bong Suintoy Biazon made the remarks on Monday, March 9, during the city government's flag-raising ceremony, where he stressed that respect for women must be reflected not only in policies but also in the words people choose to say. "It doesn't matter if you say in your mind you are innocent, that you only imagined it, or that you were just joking," Biazon said. "It is how it is received by the person. If we commit a mistake, let's say sorry. Let's not justify it. If you offended someone, then you really have fault. Just simply say sorry and not do it again," he added. Biazon, who said he voted in favor of the Safe Spaces Act when he was still a member of Congress in 2019, said men in particular should think twice before making remarks that may objectify or offend women. He said the issue highlights the need to strengthen a culture of respect and gender equality, adding that a progressive society should recognize the role and dignity of women. The mayor explained that Republic Act 11313, or the Safe Spaces Act, penalizes unwanted or unsolicited remarks or actions that may offend others in public and online spaces, emphasizing that intent does not excuse statements that may be harmful to the person concerned. Biazon said the law was crafted precisely to address situations where people dismiss offensive remarks as jokes or harmless imagination, stressing that the standard is how the statement is perceived by the person at the receiving end. He also noted that the discussion comes at a timely moment as the country observes National Women's Month, which highlights the long-standing struggle of women worldwide to gain recognition and equal rights. According to the mayor, women historically faced social and cultural limitations, including being confined to traditional roles, which prompted global movements such as the campaign for women's suffrage and broader gender equality. Biazon said a truly progressive society recognizes women's role in society and ensures respect is reflected in everyday behavior and public discourse. "If we are saying that we are respecting women in the same manner, and we regard them as our equals, that is why it says gender equality," Biazon said. "It goes to say that it is not only women, but also the members of the LGBT community who also deserve the same respect that we give to others. Everyone deserves the same respect that we give to another person."

- Customs task force to monitor country's oil inventory level (2026-03-10 06:09)

THE Bureau of Customs (BOC) has created a special task force to monitor the country's oil inventory level amid uncertainties over the expanding war in the Middle East and allegations of widespread hoarding of petroleum products even before scheduled fuel price increases take effect. Customs Commissioner Ariel Nepomuceno said Monday he has instructed all 17 Customs ports in the country to strictly comply with the president's directive to track oil importations and assess the inflow of fuel imports. Nepomuceno said Oil Inventory Level (OIL) Task Force will ensure data accuracy and strengthen coordination between Customs and the Department of Energy (DOE), the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR), and other concerned government agencies. The task force will be headed by Allen Dela Cruz, with Victor Pablo Trinidad of the Customs Legal Service as member. Nepomuceno said oil import flows need to be monitored to ensure that government authorities receive accurate information "given the current geopolitical developments." The task force will inspect and oversee the monitoring of oil depots, bulk storage terminals, and other petroleum storage facilities. The group's reports will provide the Office of the Commissioner with situational updates and guide policy or operational responses. The creation of the task force is also expected to strengthen the bureau's implementation of the Fuel Marking Program, a key measure in detecting fuel smuggling, ensuring transparency in fuel distribution, and promoting fair competition in the oil industry. In 2025, the bureau was able to mark 21.102 billion liters of fuel and generated P247.12 billion in tax revenue. The Fuel Marking Program, jointly implemented by the BOC and the BIR, monitors all locally refined finished oil products to ensure correct payment of corresponding excise taxes and value-added tax (VAT). It covers all petroleum products that are refined, manufactured, or imported into the Philippines that are subject to duties and taxes. Petroleum products that do not have the official marker or have the marker but are diluted beyond the acceptable percentage will be presumed to have been withdrawn to avoid paying taxes.

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. has not changed his position on keeping the Philippines out of the International Criminal Court (ICC), Malacañang said Tuesday. In an interview with reporters in New York, Palace Press Officer Claire Castro said that the President's stance on rejoining the ICC remained unchanged. "The President's stance has not changed. We will still not rejoin the ICC," Castro said. The Philippines formally cut its ties with the ICC on March 17, 2019, a year after the country formally notified the United Nations of its withdrawal from the Rome Statute.

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. met with United Nations (UN) Secretary-General António Guterres to tackle various issues, including the Philippines' bid for a non-permanent seat on the UN Security Council, Malacañang said Tuesday. Marcos held a bilateral meeting with Guterres on Monday at the UN headquarters in New York on the sidelines of his working visit to the United States, the Presidential Communications Office (PCO) said. The PCO said the two leaders' meeting reaffirmed the "long-standing partnership between the Philippines and the global body." It added that the Philippines' candidacy for a non-permanent seat on the UN Security Council "will be a manifestation of a further reaffirmation of this long-term partnership." The President was accompanied by Foreign Affairs Secretary Ma. Theresa Lazaro, Philippine Permanent Representative to the UN in New York Ambassador Enrique Manalo, Philippine Ambassador to the United States Jose Manuel Romualdez, and Acting Presidential Communications Secretary Dave Gomez.

MANILA, Philippines—The Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) on Monday announced the end of La Niña. Pagasa Administrator Nathaniel Servando said this signals the return of El Niño. He said that El Niño Southern Oscillation (ENSO)-neutral conditions will likely persist until August this year. Despite the end of La Niña, other weather and climate systems may still influence rainfall distribution in the country, Pagasa said. Rain-bearing weather systems may bring occasional heavy rainfall that could lead to flash floods and landslides, Servando said.

- Metro Manila LGUs adopt four-day workweek (2026-03-10 01:05)

MANILA, Philippines — Several Metro Manila local government units announced late Monday that they would adopt a four-day onsite workweek in government offices following a national directive aimed at conserving energy and reducing fuel consumption amid the ongoing conflict in the Middle East. Marikina, San Juan and Makati adjusted work schedules while assuring residents that essential public services would continue uninterrupted. In Marikina City, Mayor Marjorie Ann “Maan” Teodoro signed Executive Order 05, Series of 2026 in which offices would operate from Monday to Thursday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., allowing employees to complete their required work hours and would be closed every Friday to help reduce electricity consumption. Teodoro said essential services and field operations would remain fully operational, including the Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Office, public safety units, street maintenance teams and other frontline services to ensure continuous emergency response and delivery of public services. Meanwhile, San Juan City adopted a four-day onsite workweek through Administrative Order FMZ-075, Series of 2026, signed by Mayor Francis Zamora. Under the arrangement, city government employees will report onsite from Monday to Thursday, while some offices will implement a work-from-home setup every Friday, with hospitals, health centers, emergency response units and other frontline offices continuing regular operations. Makati City will implement a four-day onsite workweek schedule starting March 16 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday to Thursday, Mayor Nancy Binay said. City officials said the adjustment follows Memorandum Circular 114 issued by the Office of the President directing government agencies to adopt energy conservation measures while maintaining accessible services for the public.

- Government eyes 'exit agreement' with MILF by 2028 (2026-03-10 00:46)

MANILA, Philippines—The government aims to sustain coordination efforts to support socio-economic assistance in the Bangsamoro Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (BARMM) and move toward the eventual signing of an Exit Agreement with the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) by 2028, the Office of the Special Assistant to the President (OSAP) said. In a statement, the OSAP said it was working to complete a clear and accurate baseline report on socio-economic assistance provided under the government’s normalization program in BARMM within the first quarter of 2026. The OSAP said this would serve as the basis for setting targets from 2026 to 2028 and for drafting a Joint Roadmap moving forward. Special Assistant to the President Anton Lagdameo Jr. recently convened a coordination meeting with key agencies to review the status of initiatives under the normalization program, particularly the Camps Transformation Plan, which aims to improve living conditions in communities located in Moro Islamic Liberation Front camps. The program also provides economic for former combatants and their families. There are 26,145 decommissioned combatants under the normalization program who are being provided education and livelihood support. Present during the meeting were officials from the Department of Public Works and Highways, Department of Agriculture and the Office of the Presidential Adviser on Peace, Reconciliation and Unity. DPWH Secretary Vince Vison, Agriculture Secretary Francisco Tiu Laurel, Opapru Senior Undersecretary Isidro Purisima, Presidential Assistant for Bangsamoro Transformation David Diciano, ICCMN Secretariat co-head Wendell Orbeso, Joint Normalization Committee Chairman Ariel Hernandez, Joint Task Force on Camps Transformation co-chairman Baintan Ampatuan and others discussed the validation of project submissions and clarified coverage, targets, and data gaps to determine follow-up actions. "On behalf of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr, allow me to reaffirm this administration's full support for the continued implementation of the Peace Agreements and the normalization process," Lagdameo Jr. said. "We remain committed to ensuring that the hard earned and deeply meaningful [gains] are protected, expanded and carried into the next generation," he added. OSAP emphasized that stronger coordination among agencies is crucial to ensure the timely completion of projects in BARMM.

- LPA outside PAR now has high chance to intensify into tropical depression (2026-03-09 22:03)

MANILA, Philippines — A low pressure area (LPA) outside the Philippine Area of Responsibility (PAR) now has a high chance of developing into a tropical depression within 24 hours, the state-run weather bureau said Tuesday. Weather specialist Veronica Torres of the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said, however, that the weather disturbance is unlikely to enter PAR. "It would not directly affect any part of the archipelago, but its trough or extension has already been bringing cloudy skies with scattered rains and thunderstorms over the Visayas, Mindanao, and Masbate," Torres said in a 5 a.m. briefing. Meanwhile, the Cagayan Valley, Cordillera Administrative Region, Aurora, Quezon, and the rest of the Bicol Region will experience cloudy skies with light rains due to the northeast monsoon, locally known as “amihan.” Pagasa said the same weather system will also prevail over Metro Manila and the rest of Luzon, where partly cloudy to overcast skies with isolated light rains are expected. In its heat index outlook, Pagasa said Metro Manila is likely to experience heat index levels of 31°C to 32°C on Tuesday. The highest heat index, however, could reach 40°C in Coron, Palawan, which falls under the “extreme caution” category.

- Senate passed bill promoting national autism care (2026-03-09 19:20)

MANILA, Philippines — The Senate on Monday passed on third and final reading a bill that would integrate autism detection and screening into primary health care, as well as maternal and child health programs. Senators approved Senate Bill (SB) 1822, or the proposed National Autism Care, Support, and Inclusion Act, which seeks to promote the welfare of persons with autism spectrum disorder (ASD). A report by the Second Congressional Commission on Education showed that there are about 5.1 million children with special needs in the country. Senate Majority Leader Juan Miguel Zubiri said the bill recognizes people with ASD as persons with disabilities (PWDs), making them entitled to the benefits accorded to them under existing laws. The measure also institutionalizes a national framework to strengthen health care, education, and social services for persons with autism, while recognizing the vital role of parents and caregivers. Zubiri, the bill’s principal author, said the measure aims to address the “scattered assistance” available to people with ASD so that “families are no longer forced to navigate services on their own.” Sen. Joseph Victor Ejercito, who co-sponsored the bill, emphasized the importance of ensuring stronger government support for persons on the autism spectrum and their families. “Autism should never be seen as a burden. Rather, it is a different way of viewing and experiencing the world,” Ejercito said. Sen. Joel Villanueva also stressed the need to strengthen access to diagnosis, intervention, and support services for persons with ASD and their families. He said the measure would help families of children with special needs gain access to more trained specialists for timely diagnosis, intervention, and long-term care.

- Lacson: Senate to give 'utmost priority' to President's emergency powers request (2026-03-09 16:29)

MANILA, Philippines -- The Senate will give "utmost priority" to the request of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. for emergency powers to reduce excise tax on petroleum products amid the war in the Middle East, Sen. Panfilo Lacson said. Lacson on Monday said only those who did not want to help "alleviate the suffering of ordinary Filipinos brought about by the uncontrolled increase in the prices of oil in the aftermath of the raging Iran war would refuse to grant such emergency power." "In fact, the Senate is giving utmost priority to tackle the measure toward this end," the Senate president pro tempore said in a statement. Senate President Vicente Sotto III said that since this weekend, they were "in constant coordination with the office of the Executive Secretary regarding the bills needed to suspend the implementation of excise tax on fuel and the bill allowing the importation of biofuel to address the effects of the surge in fuel prices." Senators Bam Aquino and Joel Villanueva last week filed separate bills which authorized the President to suspend or reduce excise tax on gasoline and diesel if its average prices reach or exceed $80 per barrel based on the Mean of Platts Singapore. Aquino filed Senate Bill (SB) 1923 to cushion Filipinos from the impact of sudden spikes in fuel prices. Villanueva filed SB 1922 which mandated the Department of Energy to assess current market conditions to help the Department of Finance complete its recommendations to the President. Aquino filed SB 1923 granting the President the authority to suspend the excise tax on petroleum products during national or global economic emergencies.

- Marcos reaffirms PH's support for women's rights, empowerment in UN forum (2026-03-09 16:14)

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. pushed for women's rights to education, employment, and protection from violence as he faced the United Nations' 70th Session of the Commission on the Status of Women (CSW70) in New York. CSW70 is one of the UN-related events Marcos has in his agenda on his two-day working visit to the United States. His participation in the event, the chief executive stated, signaled the strong commitment of the Philippines to gender equality and women empowerment. He highlighted how Filipino women "have always stood at the center" in the Philippines' way of life "as leaders in government and business, as innovators, educators, health workers, entrepreneurs, and as the steady strength within families and communities." "Their contributions continue to shape our democracy, our economy, and our national character. Our country has worked consistently to translate this belief into policy — strengthening protections for women, expanding opportunities for education and employment, and promoting women's leadership across all sectors of society," he said. "But even as we take pride in this progress, we recognize that the journey toward full equality — both in our country and around the world — is far from complete," he added. The president, however, pointed out that no matter how hard the push for equality and empowerment, if women's rights to be "educated, safe, able to work, able to lead, able to decide the course of their own lives" were not acknowledged and protected, "then no level of prosperity can truly be called progress." "Across many societies, women still face barriers that limit their opportunities. Too many continue to experience discrimination and violence. Too many girls are still denied the education that will allow them to shape their own futures. And that is why the work of this Commission remains as vital today as it was seventy years ago," he said. "Economic empowerment is equally essential. Women must have access to employment, to finance, to entrepreneurship, and to leadership. Societies that fully include women in economic life are not only more just — they are stronger, they are more resilient. And we must remain united in confronting violence against women in all its forms. Violence erodes dignity, weakens communities, and undermines the very foundations of our justice," he added. Beyond all these, Marcos called for all stakeholders to address factors which limited women's roles in many parts of the world and reassured that the Philippines "stands ready to work with all nations to advance this cause." "We cannot hope to solve the great challenges of our time if half of our humanity is excluded from shaping those solutions. Women must be present wherever decisions are made — in government, in business, in science, in diplomacy, and in peace building,” he said. “Because when women rise, societies rise with them. When women lead, nations move forward. And when every girl – no matter where she is born – can stand with confidence and say that her future is truly her own, and then we will know that we have built not only a more equal world...but a better one for all of humanity,” he added.

- Crude prices spike near $120 a barrel (2026-03-09 16:14)

OIL prices spiked near $120 per barrel before falling back Monday as the Iran war intensified, threatening production and shipping in the Middle East and pummeling financial markets. The price for a barrel of Brent crude, the international standard, surged to $119.50 per barrel early in the day but later was trading at $107.80 per barrel. West Texas Intermediate, the light, sweet crude oil produced in the United States, spiked at $119.48 per barrel but fell back to $103 per barrel. The war's toll on civilian targets grew as Bahrain accused Iran of striking a desalination plant vital to drinking water supplies, and oil depots in Tehran smoldered following overnight strikes by Israel. Oil prices have surged as the war, now in its second week, ensnares countries and places that are critical to the production and movement of oil and gas from the Persian Gulf. Prices moderated after the Financial Times reported that some members of the Group of Seven industrial nations were considering releases of strategic oil reserves to alleviate pressure on the markets. The unconfirmed report cited unnamed people familiar with the talks. On Saturday, President Donald Trump downplayed the idea of turning to America's Strategic Petroleum Reserve, saying US supplies were ample and prices would soon fall. Roughly 15 million barrels of crude oil — about 20 percent of the world's oil — typically are shipped every day through the Strait of Hormuz, according to independent research firm Rystad Energy. The threat of Iranian missile and drone attacks has all but stopped tankers from traveling through the strait, which is bordered in the north by Iran, carry oil and gas from Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Iraq, Qatar, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates and Iran. Iraq, Kuwait and the UAE have cut their oil production as storage tanks fill due to the reduced ability to export crude. Iran, Israel and the United States also have attacked oil and gas facilities since the war started, exacerbating supply concerns. The surge in costs for oil and natural gas is pushing fuel prices higher, cascading through other industries and jolting Asian economies that are especially vulnerable due to the region's heavy reliance on imports from the Middle East. The last time Brent and US crude futures traded near the current level was in 2022, after Russia invaded Ukraine. Higher energy costs push inflation higher, straining household budgets and denting the consumer spending that is a main driver of many big economies. Tokyo's benchmark Nikkei 225 index shed 5.2 percent on Monday while other markets also foundered. US futures were down more than 1.5 percent. On Friday, the S&P 500 dropped 1.3 percent and the Dow plunged as many as 945 points before finishing with a loss of roughly 450. The Nasdaq composite sank 1.6 percent. In the US, a gallon of regular gasoline rose to $3.45 on Sunday, about 47 cents more than a week earlier, according to AAA motor club. Diesel was selling for about $4.60 a gallon, a weekly increase of about 83 cents. Energy Secretary Chris Wright, speaking on CNN's "State of the Union," said US gas prices would be back under $3 a gallon "before too long." "Look, you never know exactly the time frame of this, but, in the worst case, this is a weeks, this is not a months thing,” Wright added. If oil prices stay above $100 per barrel, some analysts and investors say it could be too much for the global economy to withstand. Iranian authorities said strikes by Israel on oil depots in Tehran and a petroleum transfer terminal early Sunday killed four people. Israel’s military said the depots were being used by Iran’s military for fuel to launch missiles. Mohammad Bagher Qalibaf, the speaker of Iran’s parliament, warned that the war’s impact on the oil industry would spiral. Iran exports roughly 1.6 million barrels of oil a day, mostly to China, which may need to look elsewhere for supply if Iran’s exports are disrupted, another factor that could increase energy prices. The price of natural gas also has climbed during the war, though not by as much as oil. It was selling for about $3.33 per 1,000 cubic feet late Sunday. That’s 4.6-percent higher than its Friday closing price of $3.19, after rising about 11 percent last week. Dollar gains The safe-haven US dollar took another leg higher on Monday, rising to a three-month peak versus the euro as oil surged past $110 a barrel and stocks slid on worries about the effects of a protracted Middle East war on global energy supplies. “Oil remains the transmission channel into inflation expectations, rates and currency markets, with the dollar’s resurgence echoing the 2022 energy crisis,” said Bob Savage, head of markets macro strategy at BNY. “The week ahead will test whether markets continue to treat the current conflict as a contained shock or begin to price a more durable supply disruption.” The dollar, which notched its sharpest one-week rise in 15 months on the breakout of war last week, has been the most consistent safe-haven asset, as gold has faltered amid broad selling in anything that has lately made sharp gains. The conflict has already led to the suspension of around a fifth of global crude and natural gas supply, as Tehran targets ships in the vital Strait of Hormuz between its shores and Oman, and attacks energy infrastructure across the region. Qatar’s energy minister told the Financial Times on Friday he expects all Gulf energy producers to shut down exports within weeks, a move he said could drive oil to $150 a barrel. High energy prices act like a tax and can also stoke inflation, leaving investors worried that central bankers may be reluctant to cut interest rates. Asian stocks plunge Asian stock markets plunged Monday as oil prices soared 30 percent on fears about supplies from the Middle East as the US-Israeli war against Iran continued into a second week with no sign of letting up. Investors, already spooked by concerns over extended tech valuations and the huge spending on AI, ran for the hills as crude rocketed to its highest level since the Russian invasion of Ukraine in 2022. Fears grew that the Middle East conflict could last for some time after US President Donald Trump said only the “unconditional surrender” of Iran would end the war. He added at the weekend that the spike in prices was a “small price to pay” to eliminate Iran’s nuclear threat, reiterating the White House’s insistence that the rise is temporary. Attacks on oilfields were reported in southern Iraq and in the northern autonomous Kurdistan region, which forced a US-run oilfield to cease production, while the United Arab Emirates and Kuwait have started reducing output. That came with maritime traffic in the Strait of Hormuz — through which a fifth of global crude and gas passes — halted since the war began on Feb. 28. The prospect of high energy prices for a sustained period has fanned fears of a fresh spike in inflation that could hit the global economy while preventing central banks from cutting interest rates to support growth. With the prospect of the global economy taking a blow from the crisis, equity markets extended last week's losses, though they pared some of the early retreat. Seoul, which had been the best performer this year thanks to a tech rally, tumbled more than 8 percent at one point before closing 6 percent down, while Tokyo shed more than 5 percent and Taipei fell more than 4 percent. Hong Kong, Shanghai, Sydney, Singapore, Manila, Bangkok, Mumbai, Jakarta and Wellington were also sharply lower. "Stocks continue to face stiff headwinds, with markets in Europe and Asia, specifically Japan, more vulnerable in the short-term given that those are heavy energy importers, and with those markets having vastly outperformed the US year to date, until the Iran war begun," wrote Pepperstone's Michael Brown. Futures for all three main indexes on Wall Street were down more than one percent, while the dollar jumped against its peers as traders sought out its safe haven status. The prospect of interest rates being kept elevated, or even raised to combat inflation, saw gold prices sink more than 1 percent to around $5,100 an ounce. "The deeper shock is spreading across the production chain," said SPI Asset Management's Stephen Innes. "Gulf producers are scaling back output because storage hubs are filling up and export flows are seizing. Qatar has halted liquefaction at key gas facilities, a move that will take weeks to reverse even if the conflict cools tomorrow. "In other words, the market is not dealing with a headline shock. It deals with a physical disruption of oil molecules. "Oil above $100 is not just a commodity rally. It becomes a tax on the global economy." However, Trump sought to offer reassurance that the spike in crude would not last long. "Short term oil prices, which will drop rapidly when the destruction of the Iran nuclear threat is over, is a very small price to pay for USA, and World, Safety and Peace," he wrote on social media Sunday evening Washington time. But Michael O'Rourke at JonesTrading warned that the pain for investors could last for some time. "The worst is yet to come in the stock market reaction" he said. "I would expect more of a risk-off mood until we get some tangible positive news."

- Mojtaba Khamenei: son and son to Iran's supreme leader (2026-03-09 16:13)

MOJTABA Khamenei, the son of late Iranian supreme leader Ali Khamenei who has been appointed as the new head of the Islamic republic, is a discreet figure who offers continuity of his father's hardline leadership. The 56-year-old had no official post during his father's rule, but was speculated to be acting behind the scenes to pull strings at the heart of power in Iran. He is regarded as close to conservatives, notably because of his ties with the powerful Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps, which swiftly pledged allegiance to the new leader. The Islamic republic's third supreme leader also received endorsements from President Masoud Pezeshkian, the armed forces and the judiciary within hours of his appointment. Because of his discretion at official ceremonies and in the media, Khamenei's true influence has been the subject of intense speculation for years among the Iranian population as well as in diplomatic circles. He was named supreme leader by Iran's top clerical body, the Assembly of Experts, in a statement published shortly after midnight on Monday (2030 GMT Sunday). Even though the Islamic revolution had put an end to a multi-century royal dynasty headed by the shah, the council opted for the kind of hereditary transition that Ali Khamenei had rejected on principle in 2024. Born on Sept. 8, 1969 in the holy city of Mashhad in eastern Iran, Mojtaba Khamenei is the only one of the late supreme leader's six children to hold a public position. Ayatollah Ali Khamenei was killed aged 86 during the first wave of US-Israeli air strikes on Tehran that triggered the war in the Middle East on Feb. 28. Security force links Mojtaba Khamenei, a cleric who has a salt-and-pepper beard and the black turban of the "seyyed" — descendants of the Prophet Mohammed — is a veteran of the Iran-Iraq war in the 1980s. The United States imposed sanctions on him in 2019 during President Donald Trump's first term, saying Khamenei represented his father "despite never being elected or appointed to a government position aside from work in the office of his father." Ali Khamenei had "delegated a part of his leadership responsibilities" to his son, "who worked closely" with Iranian security forces "to advance his father's destabilizing regional ambitions and oppressive domestic objectives," the US Treasury said at the time. Opponents have accused the younger Khamenei of playing a role in the violent crackdown that followed the reelection of ultra-conservative president Mahmoud Ahmadinejad in 2009, which triggered a vast protest movement. According to an investigation by the Bloomberg news organization, which cited anonymous sources and Western intelligence agency reports, Mojtaba Khamenei has amassed wealth estimated at more than $100 million. Money from oil sales had been channeled into investments in luxury British real estate, hotels in Europe and property in Dubai through shell companies in tax havens, according to the investigation. On the religious front, Mojtaba Khamenei studied theology in the holy city of Qom, south of Tehran, where he also taught. He had attained the rank of Hujjat al-Islam, but was presented as ayatollah — a higher rank held by his father and by revolutionary leader Ruhollah Khomeini — upon his appointment as supreme leader. Mojtaba Khamenei's wife, Zahra Haddad-Adel, died in the US-Israeli strikes that killed the former supreme leader, according to Iranian authorities. Israel has issued a stark warning to the new supreme leader and whoever selected him, saying "the hand of the State of Israel will continue to follow any successor and anyone who seeks to appoint a successor." The Assembly of Experts has 88 members who are elected every eight years. It has overseen two leadership transition process to date — this week, and when Ali Khamenei was selected in 1989 following the death of Khomeini.

- Marcos set to ask Congress for powers to cut fuel taxes (2026-03-09 16:12)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. is set to issue a request to Congress to grant him emergency powers to reduce the fuel excise tax as part of the government's efforts to cushion the impact of rising fuel prices. In an interview with reporters in New York City, Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Undersecretary Claire Castro said Marcos will be sending his request at the soonest possible time. "Yes, according to (Department of Energy) Secretary (Sharon) Garin. We have spoken to them. We are in contact and this call will be made," Castro said in Filipino. The president earlier said he is considering exercising emergency powers to reduce the excise tax on petroleum products if oil prices reach or exceed $80-per-barrel mark. Oil prices have since breached the $100-per-barrel mark as the war in the Middle East widened. The proposed measure would be temporary and would be authorized by Congress. Castro also said the Palace has been made aware of the 54 gasoline stations that prematurely raised their fuel prices despite the DOE's earlier announcement that there were no price increases in the past week. "The DOE has issued a show-cause order to these 54 gas stations so we can prove whether or not they violated the call not to increase gasoline prices. If it is proven that they have committed fraudulent acts, they can have their transaction permits canceled," Castro said. The official warned profiteers seizing the opportunity to jack up oil prices that the law will go after them for their fraudulent actions. "The president's call is for us to unite [given what is] happening in the Middle East. We must unite and work together. We do not need to tear each other down," Castro said. "And to those people, you should not take advantage (of the situation). What the president wants is for us to work together. If you take advantage, you will be in trouble. You will be sued and you may lose the opportunity to do business," she added.

- Eala wins, reaches Indian Wells 4th round as Gauff retires (2026-03-09 16:11)

FILIPINO tennis ace Alex Eala advanced to the fourth round of the WTA 1000 BNP Paribas Open after World No. 4 Coco Gauff retired due to an injury at the Indian Wells Tennis Garden Stadium 1 in California. Eala was leading 6-2, 2-0 when Gauff retired after receiving treatment on her left arm during a medical timeout late in the final set. Eala is expected to hit a new career-high 28th at the WTA rankings with her third round win, leaping four places from last week's 32nd rank and three notches higher than her previous best of 31st. The 20-year-old Eala got back at the 21-year-old Gauff, who defeated her at the Dubai Tennis Championships quarterfinals nearly three weeks ago, 6-0, 6-2. "I really didn't wanna win this way but this is still really a big moment for me to be able to play in Stadium 1 of Indian Wells against such a great competitor," said Eala after the 58-minute match. "I'm really grateful to be here and I'm super happy," added Eala, who once again drew a huge Filipino crowd that she addressed in Filipino during the post-match court interview. "Mabuhay mga kababayan nandito tayo sa California. Maraming salamat sa suporta at magkita tayo sa next round (Long live my countrymen, we're here in California. Thank you so much for the support and see you in the next round)." While Gauff's injury played a part in Eala's win, the lefty Filipino netter played well and even broke the American's serve four times. Eala's service and return game was working well against Gauff, who started nursing her injury in the latter part of the first set. "I felt it, like, the second game of the first set. I guess a simple way to put it, it felt like a firework was going off inside of my arm, and then my whole arm felt like it was on fire," said Gauff. "And then as the match played, it got progressively worse, even on shots that I wasn't even using my left arm for. It was a scary feeling," she said. Seeking a quarterfinal berth, Eala faces World No. 14 Czech Linda Noskova in the fourth round likely on Wednesday. Noskova defeated Romanian Sorana Cirstea in their round of 32 clash, 6-7 (5), 6-4, 6-4.

- Marcos in New York for UN engagements (2026-03-09 16:10)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. is in New York to participate in high-level discussions in the United Nations, including the situation in the Middle East and women's rights. The chartered plane carrying Marcos and his delegation touched down at the Newark Liberty International Airport at 2:45 p.m. on Sunday (New York time). During his two-day working visit, he will attend the opening of the 70th session of the Commission on the Status of Women (CSW), where he will reaffirm the Philippines' support to efforts championing the rights and empowerment of women and girls. "My participation in the CSW signals the strong commitment of the Philippines to gender equality and women's empowerment," the president said in his departure statement. "It is an opportunity to share the best practices of the Philippines, the challenges we face on women's rights, and the lessons that can be learned from our own journey towards peace," he added. Marcos will meet with UN Secretary General António Guterres, where he will highlight the country's commitment to multilateralism and international cooperation, and reiterate his administration's call for rules-based international order. The president will take the floor at the special session of the UN General Assembly to push the country's bid for a nonpermanent seat on the UN Security Council for 2027 to 2028. "This candidature is about shared responsibility. It is about ensuring that the voice of the Philippines — and of developing countries — is heard at the highest forum of global peace and security," he said. Marcos will also address the General Assembly special session to be convened by Guterres just for the Philippines. Apart from his UN-related activities, Marcos will also have meetings with American business leaders. With the president on the trip are First Lady Liza Araneta-Marcos, Foreign Affairs Secretary Maria Theresa Lazaro, Migrant Workers Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac, Presidential Peace Adviser Carlito Galvez Jr.; and PCO Acting Secretary Dave Gomez. This is Marcos' sixth visit to the US since 2022. He designated Executive Secretary Ralph Recto, Education Secretary Sonny Angara, and Agrarian Reform Secretary Conrado Estrella III as caretakers of the government while he is away. Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Undersecretary Claire Castro said that being a council member would benefit not just the Philippines but the entire Southeast Asian region. The Security Council is a primary UN body charged with maintaining international peace and security, authorized to impose sanctions, authorize force, and dispatch peacekeepers. It is made up of 15 members. Five of them — China, France, Russia, United Kingdom and the US — are permanent members with veto power, with the rest being nonpermanent members elected for two-year terms. The Philippines was a nonpermanent member of the council in 1957, 1963, 1980-1981, and 2004-2005. It was in 2022, when Marcos first visited the US as president, that he renewed the country's bid for a nonpermanent seat. All 193 UN member states will participate in voting for council seats in June.

- De Lima sues for libel over cash delivery claims (2026-03-09 16:09)

REP. Leila de Lima on Monday filed complaints for libel, cyberlibel and perjury against lawyer Levito Baligod and 18 individuals who introduced themselves as former Marines, accusing them of spreading false allegations that she received billions of pesos from former congressman Zaldy Co. De Lima, the representative of the Mamamayang Liberal party-list and a deputy minority leader in the House, filed the cases before the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) and the Department of Justice (DOJ). The cases stemmed from sworn statements and public remarks by Baligod and the other respondents that she and other personalities received cash supposedly delivered by Co to support the building of cases against former president Rodrigo

Duterte. De Lima told reporters after filing the cases that the allegations were “lies” intended to damage her reputation. “It’s very clear to me that these are being done to besmirch my reputation and smear my name,” she said. De Lima also filed a perjury complaint against the 18 individuals over what she described as untruthful statements in their sworn affidavit. The allegations circulated after a press conference organized by Baligod in February, where the group presented a joint affidavit claiming they had served as Co’s security personnel and “bagmen.” They claimed that large sums of money were delivered to several officials, including de Lima. De Lima denied receiving such payments. She pointed out inconsistencies in the accusations, saying the claim shifted from money allegedly delivered in suitcases to cash supposedly placed in a paper bag. Baligod later acknowledged in media interviews that naming de Lima as one of those who received the money may have been an error. He said he and his co-respondents were “ready and willing to face all accusations against us.” De Lima suggested that the allegations could be intended to distract from developments involving Duterte, who has been detained for a year in a facility of the International Criminal Court in the Netherlands while facing charges of crimes against humanity linked to thousands of deaths during his anti-drug campaign. “It could only be the handiwork of the Duterte camp. Just look at the timing,” de Lima said. Catholic priest Flavie Villanueva, who joined de Lima in filing the complaints, said the allegations were also an attempt to discredit witnesses and victims of killings linked to the anti-drug campaign. Villanueva, founder of the shelter program Bahay Kalinga for families of drug war victims, said the accusations were meant to undermine testimony related to the killings. “This is a scare tactic and a smear campaign,” he said. Several officials named in the affidavit have denied the allegations. The Philippine Navy has also said that at least four of the 18 individuals identified in the affidavit were never members of the Navy or the Marine Corps. The controversy has also drawn legal action from Gregorio Pio Catapang Jr., director general of the Bureau of Corrections, who accused the group of falsely linking him to the alleged cash deliveries. The group said Catapang delivered “walong maleta” — eight suitcases containing millions of pesos — to Co at the basement parking area of a hotel in Bonifacio Global City. The accusations were later circulated online after the press conference was streamed on several platforms and discussed in a podcast episode hosted by broadcast journalist Jessica Soho. “I did not deliver eight suitcases of cash to Zaldy Co at BGC Shangri-La or anywhere else, and I did not participate in any kickback scheme,” Catapang said in his complaint. He also filed a perjury case against the 18 individuals before the Las Piñas City Prosecutor’s Office, and a disbarment complaint against Baligod before the Supreme Court. Catapang said the claims in the affidavit were “mathematically impossible.” He said large suitcases could hold between P50 million and P70 million in cash, while medium-sized ones could contain P30 million to P40 million. Based on those figures, the alleged eight suitcases would contain several hundred million pesos. Catapang said the accusations surfaced after he allowed several prisoners to testify before a House Quad Committee inquiry investigating extrajudicial killings linked to the previous administration’s anti-drug campaign. He said a complaint had earlier been filed against him before the Office of the Ombudsman by Manases Carpio, husband of Vice President Sara Duterte, in connection with his cooperation with the congressional inquiry. Catapang also accused Baligod of resorting to “trial by publicity,” saying the lawyer chose to present the accusations during a press conference rather than filing a case before the courts.

- Stricter citizenship verification system urged (2026-03-09 16:08)

SEN. Erwin Tulfo raised the need to tighten the country's citizenship verification system amid questions on the nationality of detained mining executive Joseph Sy. Tulfo batted for a stricter process for granting citizenship during the hearing of the Committee on Justice and Human Rights on the misuse of government-issued identification documents and visas that enable foreigners to circumvent laws and engage in illegal activities in the country. Sy, chairman of Global Ferronickel Holdings Inc., was arrested in August 2025 after immigration authorities linked his biometric records to a Chinese national. The Bureau of Immigration (BI) said Sy and a Chinese national named Chen Zhong Zhen or Shi Zhenzong are one and the same person. Sy went to court to seek release from BI custody despite questions over his citizenship. His passport is under review while deportation proceedings are ongoing. "This case shows gaps in how citizenship is granted. If Sy's citizenship is valid, there is no issue. But if it was obtained illegally, it must be revoked, and those responsible be held accountable," Tulfo said. Sen. Risa Hontiveros slammed the Philippine Statistics Authority (PSA) for delaying an endorsement of the cancellation of Sy's birth certificate. Hontiveros said she was "mystified" that it took PSA almost three months to endorse the cancellation of Sy's birth certificate to the Office of the Solicitor General (OSG). The OSG files a petition for the cancellation of birth certificates after it receives an endorsement from the PSA. She expressed concern that the PSA's delayed endorsement to the OSG would expose a legal loophole that those with questionable birth certificates can exploit. "That should not be what PSA will do. That should not be what PSA will allow. PSA should not deny OSG to be able to do their duty because of this delay," Hontiveros said. Sen. Raffy Tulfo pointed to abuses in the late registration of births and misuse of government-issued identification documents. "Until when will this so-called late registration stop? Because we always have people slipping through," Raffy Tulfo said. He proposed a temporary moratorium to allow citizens to register without penalties. "Let's open late registration for one year, from June 2026 to June 2027, without fines; free registration; and after that, require those registering late at age 10 or older to go to court for careful scrutiny," he said. Raffy Tulfo also called for closer monitoring of local civil registrars to ensure strict compliance with the rules. "We have to find a system where both the Philippine Statistics Authority and local civil registrars work together to make the process more accountable," he added.

- Globe backs stronger protection for OFWs (2026-03-09 16:07)

THE Global Anti-Scam Alliance (GASA) and the Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) have signed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) aimed primarily at strengthening digital safety programs for overseas Filipino workers (OFWs). Globe, which serves as GASA Philippines Chapter chair, said the partnership was expected to deepen cross-border intelligence sharing and widen access to practical tools and resources that would help migrant workers recognize, prevent and respond to scams before real damage is done. DMW Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac said the partnership would strengthen the agency's ability to protect OFWs through better information sharing, stronger digital literacy, and coordinated action across borders. "For our overseas Filipino workers, every peso they earn represents sacrifice, discipline and love for their families. We cannot allow criminals to take that away through deception," Cacdac said. Derick OhmarAdil, Globe's head of Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Privacy Governance, noted in a statement that online scams are becoming more sophisticated and increasingly borderless. For millions of overseas Filipino workers and their families, the risks are real and often personal, especially when it comes to cross-border financial transactions and digital communication, OhmarAdil said. He said that through GASA, which brings together Globe, Gogolook, Meta, Google, Mastercard, ScamwatchPilipinas, and other partners with the Cybercrime Investigation and Coordinating Center, public awareness campaigns could further expand, digital literacy would be strengthened, and more joint training sessions and advanced research initiatives would be carried out. "Overseas Filipino workers make tremendous sacrifices for their families and for the country. They should not have to worry about falling victim to scams while working abroad," OhmarAdil said. "Through this partnership with the Department of Migrant Workers, we are strengthening digital literacy and promoting responsible use of technology so that protection keeps pace with evolving threats," he reiterated. Globe emphasized that the partnership between GASA and DMW would equip OFWs and their families with clear, practical guidance and accessible tools to spot warning signs, verify suspicious messages or transactions, and protect the income they work so hard to earn. Reinforcing Globe's broader commitment to digital safety, cybersecurity and responsible AI governance, the initiative would also highlight the importance of public and private sector collaboration in combating cyber-enabled crimes that do not respect geographic boundaries, OhmarAdil said.

- Court grants plea to attach Zaldy Co properties (2026-03-09 16:06)

THE Sandiganbayan's Fifth Division granted the prosecution's motion to issue a writ of preliminary attachment against certain properties pending a graft case filed against former lawmaker Elizaldy "Zaldy" Co. The Office of the Ombudsman last November filed the case against Co and other persons — including former officials of the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) Mimaropa — before the Sandiganbayan in connection with a road dike construction project in Oriental Mindoro. The Fifth Division said in a resolution promulgated on March 4, it found "sufficient grounds" for issuing the writ to attach Co's properties in the Philippines as part of the Ombudsman's demand that Co pay P215,331,394.47 for "the alleged injury or damages suffered by the government" in connection with the case. Attached to the Ombudsman motion were copies of original certificates of title, transfer certificates of title and condominium certificates of title over the prosecution-enumerated properties "with accused Co, his wife [...], or both spouses, as the registered owners." The court said that during the hearing on Feb. 11, the prosecution asked that a property included in its motion be excluded because it had already been sold last July. It added that Co still has "an adequate and fair opportunity to contest the issuance of this writ."

- LTFRB reviews fare hike bid amid soaring fuel prices (2026-03-09 16:04)

THE Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) said it was reviewing its earlier recommendation for a provisional fare increase for public utility vehicles (PUVs) amid fluctuating fuel prices. LTFRB Chairman Vigor Mendoza II said the agency needed to recalculate its previous proposal because the fuel price assumptions used when the recommendation was first made had already changed. “We will revise our recommendation. When we made that recommendation, the numbers were different,” Mendoza said in an interview on Monday. The LTFRB earlier considered recommending a 50-centavo increase in the minimum jeepney fare when diesel prices were projected to reach between P61 and P65 per liter. However, Mendoza said the agency would review the figures again to determine the appropriate adjustment amid the changing fuel price environment. Under the LTFRB’s rule of thumb, every P10 increase in diesel pump prices could justify a P1 adjustment in minimum fares for jeepneys to help operators absorb higher fuel costs. The same benchmark could also apply to buses operating in Metro Manila, while provincial buses may see a proposed adjustment of about 30 centavos per kilometer. Despite possible adjustments, Mendoza said a provisional fare increase remained the government’s last option as authorities continued to examine other forms of assistance, such as fuel subsidies and service contracting. Mendoza said the agency had been consulting transport groups on possible measures to assist jeepney and bus operators who were grappling with rising diesel prices. He said the government’s first option was to release fuel subsidies for operators, followed by service contracting if needed. “We have been waiting for the green light as far as fuel subsidy is concerned,” Mendoza said. The LTFRB has also instructed its regional directors to identify routes that could benefit from service contracting while other possible interventions are being reviewed. The agency is also studying bus operators’ requests for toll fee reductions to help offset operating costs. LTFRB data show there are 136,980 traditional jeepneys and 9,183 modern public utility jeepneys nationwide, or roughly 146,000 units. The agency has proposed a fuel subsidy of P10,500 to P12,500 per unit for modern jeepneys, and about P5,000 for traditional units. Officials estimate the subsidy could cover fuel expenses for around 10 to 14 days. Funds would be distributed through operators’ LandBank cards once released by the government. Mendoza said authorities were also studying whether buses should be included in the fuel subsidy program. Transport groups have warned that some provincial bus companies have already begun reducing trips due to higher fuel costs, raising concerns about possible disruptions in passenger services. The LTFRB said it has submitted recommendations to the Department of Transportation (DOTr) and other concerned agencies, with discussions ongoing on possible assistance measures. Despite the options, Mendoza acknowledged that a provisional fare increase could become unavoidable if fuel prices continue to climb. “We hope the fuel subsidy and other measures can be implemented first,” he said. “But if those are not enough, the provisional fare increase is there as an option.”

Free LRT, MRT rides
Akbayan Rep. Percy Cendaña on Monday urged the Transportation Department to offer the public free rides on the Light Rail Transit (LRT) and Metro Rail Transit (MRT). Cendaña made the call, fearing increases in fuel prices amid the conflict in the Middle East. “If the DOTr was able to provide free MRT rides as a Christmas gift to commuters, we can very much also make it free while we are facing a crisis,” he said in Filipino and English in a statement. “Commuters will bear the brunt of the rise in fuel prices. If there are free rides, it would ease the effect of the increase in the prices of petroleum and goods,” he said. Cendaña also pushed for quality mass transportation. The statement said Akbayan would file measures seeking “a stronger” government response on issues stemming from the conflict, including proposals to expand and increase the Pantawid Pasada program and encourage local government units to explore service contracting of public utility vehicles. with a report from Reina Tolentino

- Govt agencies begin conserving energy (2026-03-09 16:03)

GOVERNMENT offices and institutions have heeded President Ferdinand Marcos Jr.’s directive to adopt energy conservation protocols in response to looming massive oil price increases amid the widening conflict in the Middle East. In issuing Memorandum Circular 114, s. 2026, the president expects government agencies and instrumentalities, including State Colleges, to implement a four-day onsite work setting beginning March 9, 2026. In compliance with the directive, the University of the Philippines Manila (UPM) has implemented a four-day compressed workweek and designated Mondays as a no-onsite workday starting March 9. UPM Chancellor Michael Tee said on March 8 that Mondays will be designated as a “no onsite workday,” which means administrative personnel will not physically report to campus. Employees will instead complete their required 40-hour workweek across the remaining four on-site days from Tuesday to Friday. The personnel may choose among three work schedules: 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., or 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Unit heads will coordinate with staff to determine which schedule ensures continuous work. Meanwhile, Tee noted that classes will proceed as scheduled. “Teaching and learning remain the university’s primary priority and will not be disrupted by these austerity measures,” the statement reads. Manila LGU response On Monday, Manila Mayor Isko Moreno signed Executive Order (EO) 8, mandating a four-day workweek for city government offices. In a live address on his Facebook, Moreno said that on-site work will be from Monday to Thursday, under two schedules: 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., and on Fridays, office operations will be suspended. “It is the policy of the city government to adopt flexible work arrangements that enhance employees’ welfare while ensuring uninterrupted delivery of essential public services,” Moreno said. Moreno emphasized that “No reduction in pay or statutory benefits shall be imposed without lawful authority and proper consultation.” He clarified that essential and frontline workers are exempted from the mandate. These include emergency response units such as police, fire, ambulance and disaster response teams; health and sanitation services, including public health centers, clinics, solid waste management and markets; as well as utilities and other operations that must remain continuously staffed. “Agencies providing essential services shall prepare staffing rosters and shift arrangements to ensure uninterrupted operations and public service availability; where necessary, rotational schedules shall be applied to ensure on-site coverage,” he added. Uninterrupted services despite 4-day workweek For its part, the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) assured the public that the delivery of its programs and services will remain uninterrupted despite the implementation of a four-day compressed workweek across government agencies. DSWD Secretary Rexlon Gatchalian subsequently issued a memorandum ordering the adoption of a compressed workweek in the department's central and field offices nationwide. Under the compressed workweek setup, the usual 40-hour workload spread over five days will instead be completed in four days, with personnel required to render 10 hours of work per day. Assistant Secretary Irene Dumlao assured the public that the department's programs and services will not be disrupted by the new arrangement. "You can be assured that our department's programs and services will not be delayed," Dumlao said. Dumlao explained that all DSWD offices providing immediate assistance will remain open five days a week to ensure that the public continues to receive timely support. "This includes our Disaster Response Command Center monitoring weather disturbances and other disasters, satellite offices processing Assistance to Individuals in Crisis Situations, outreach for families in street situations, clearance for minors traveling abroad, the Walang Gutom Program and Kitchen, and all DSWD centers and residential care facilities," she said.

Work arrangement at judiciary The Supreme Court has also adopted flexible work arrangements and energy conservation measures in the Judiciary, including a four-day on-site and one-day work-from-home scheme for most of its personnel. In a memorandum circular, the Court ordered that all officials and employees of the Supreme Court shall maintain a five-day workweek, rendering eight hours of work per day from Monday to Friday, consistent with the 40-hour workweek requirement. Under the new arrangement, Fridays shall generally be observed as a work-from-home (WFH) day, "provided that, at least, 25 percent of the employees in each office or division shall report on-site every Friday, as determined by the head of office or division, to ensure continuity of operations." Personnel on WFH shall remain reachable during office hours through official communication channels and shall attend required meetings, hearings, conferences, or on-site work when directed. "The WFH arrangement shall not be used to justify delay, inaccessibility, neglect of duty, or failure to meet required outputs," the circular stated.

Workers' welfare Meanwhile, a group representing government workers and unions has warned that the president's directive for strict energy conservation measures may compromise workers' welfare, occupational safety and health, and quality of public services. The Public Services Labor Independent Confederation, or PSLINK, issued the warning in response to the energy conservation protocols. In a statement, the group said that the energy-saving measures — such as reduced air-conditioning, limited lighting, or restricted equipment use — must comply with workplace safety standards and ensure offices remain safe and conducive for both workers and the public. "Many government offices already suffer from poor ventilation, overcrowded workspaces, outdated infrastructure, and limited natural light. Inadequate cooling may increase heat stress, fatigue, and decreased concentration, affecting employee health and productivity," it said. It pointed out that senior citizens, persons with disabilities, pregnant women, and other vulnerable sectors seeking government services are already at risk under the present situation. The group also noted that the circular's proposed four-day workweek is already part of existing policies on flexible work arrangements, which remain underutilized or poorly implemented. It also raised concern for job order (JO) and contract of service (COS) workers, who may face income loss if work hours are reduced or schedules altered during the implementation of the four-day workweek without safeguards. It claimed further that the memorandum circular demands sacrifices from ordinary employees even as those at the highest levels of government have long engaged in energy-intensive excesses — costly official trips, lavish activities, and other expenditures funded by public resources — with little consequence. with reports from Allen Limos, Moises Cruz,

- QCitizens told: Maximize online services, free bus rides (2026-03-09 16:02)

QUEZON CITY Mayor Joy Belmonte on Monday called on QCitizens to take advantage of the local government's digital services and mobility programs amid soaring fuel prices. Belmonte advised residents to use the city's E-Services portal to access government services and to save time and transportation expenses. "We understand that rising fuel and transportation costs can put additional pressure on many families. That is why we encourage our QCitizens to maximize our online services so they can transact with the city government quickly and conveniently, without the need to travel," she said. Accessible via qceservices.quezoncity.gov.ph, the city government said QC E-Services now offers more than 160 individual services across 34 programs, making it one of the most comprehensive local government digital platforms in the country. Through the portal, residents can apply for business, occupational and building permits; scholarship grants; and burial and medical assistance, including property tax payments — all through a single, streamlined online platform. Belmonte said that those who prefer in-person assistance may visit their nearest District Action Office, where frontline personnel are ready to assist with various service requests. To cushion the impact of potential fare increases, the city government, meanwhile, continues to operate the QCity Bus "Libreng Sakay" (Free Ride) program, which currently serves commuters on eight routes throughout the city, providing free and reliable public transportation. Residents may also take advantage of the city's growing network of protected and shared bike lanes, offering a safe, healthy, and cost-efficient option for daily travel, according to the city's chief executive. "We will continue to find innovative ways to ease the burden on our residents, especially during times when global events affect everyday expenses," Belmonte said. She reiterated that through its digital services, district action offices, free bus rides, and bike-friendly infrastructure, residents would have practical and accessible options to save on transportation while staying connected to essential city services.

- MMDA distributes tents to QC fire victims (2026-03-09 16:01)

THE Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA) distributed 100 modular tents to residents displaced by a massive fire in Quezon City's Pinyahan district. MMDA General Manager Nicolas Torre III led the distribution on Sunday, March 8, a day after the blaze that burned for about nine hours before it was brought under control. The fire swept through a densely populated residential area on Friday, destroying several houses and forcing hundreds of families to evacuate to nearby shelters. Torre said the tents were provided to give temporary shelter to displaced families staying in evacuation centers while they recover from the fire. "In times like these, we see the true strength of our communities — the bayanihan, compassion, and cooperation of everyone,” Torre said. The agency said it will also conduct fogging and misting operations in evacuation centers to help prevent possible health risks among displaced residents. The initiative was also joined by the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO), led by General Manager Mel Robles, which distributed 2,000 “ChariTimba” (charity buckets) containing basic food items to affected families. Torre also spoke with several residents during the visit to listen to their concerns and assess the needs of families affected by the fire. Quezon City Mayor Joy Belmonte expressed gratitude to the MMDA and PCSO for the immediate assistance extended to residents displaced by the blaze. Belmonte said the affected residents are currently housed in eight evacuation sites: Flora Ylagan High School, Pinyahan Covered Court, San Isidro Labrador Parish, NIA Covered Court, the NIA Building, Pinyahan Elementary School, the Napocor Office, and the NHA Balik Probinsiya Covered Court at the Manila Seedling compound. The relief activity was conducted at evacuation sites where families from the affected community are temporarily staying, as authorities continue to assess the damage and coordinate further assistance for those who lost their homes.

- Pump prices rise sharply this week (2026-03-09 16:00)

(UPDATE) THE Department of Energy (DOE) on Monday announced that fuel prices will rise sharply over the next few days starting Tuesday, March 10, as the Middle East conflict continues to disrupt global oil supply and prices. Over this period, oil companies will raise gasoline prices by as much as P10.20 a liter, diesel by as much as P24.25 a liter, and kerosene by as much as P38.50 a liter. Energy Secretary Sharon Garin said the increases would be imposed on a staggered basis over the next several days. Meanwhile, a Palace official said President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. was set to ask Congress for emergency powers to reduce the excise tax on fuel to cushion the impact of the latest price increases. In all this week, Shell will raise gas prices by P8.75 a liter, diesel by P24.25 a liter, and kerosene by P36 a liter. Among the oil companies, its increase in the price of diesel is the highest. Petron, on the other hand, will raise gas prices by P8.80, diesel by P19.20 and kerosene by P32. Total will raise the price of gas by P10.20 and diesel by P20.20. Its price increase for gasoline is the highest among the oil companies. Chevron (Caltex) will hike gas by P7, diesel by P19.20 and kerosene by P38.50. Among the oil companies, its increase in the price of kerosene is the highest. Jetty Petroleum will raise gas prices by P9 and diesel by 19. Seaoil will increase the price of gas by P8.80, diesel by P21.85 and kerosene by P35.95. Unioil will raise the price of gas by P7, and diesel by P19.50. The DOE said the companies would follow the following schedule for their price hikes: Shell will raise gas prices by P5.25 on March 10, P2.65 on March 11 and P0.85 on March 12. It will raise diesel prices by P14.55 on March 10, P7.30 on March 11, and P2.40 on March 12. It will hike kerosene prices by P21.60 on March 10, P10.80 on March 11 and P3.60 on March 12. Petron will increase gas prices by P5.20 on March 10 and P1.80 on both March 11 and March 12. Diesel will go up by P11.60 on March 10, and P3.80 on both March 11 and March 12. Kerosene will go up by P19 per liter on March 10, and P6.50 per liter on both March 11 and March 12. Total said that it will increase its gasoline prices by P5.10 per liter on both March 10 and March 11, and hike its diesel prices by both P10.10 per liter on both March 10 and March 11. Caltex will raise gas by P1 each day starting March 10 to March 16, diesel by P2.50 each day over the same period, and kerosene by P5.50 each day, also from March 10 to March 16. Jetti Petroleum already raised its gas price by P2 on March 8 and P1 on March 9, and will continue to increase gas prices by P2. On March 10 and March 11, and then by P1 on March 12 and March 13. Diesel prices were increased by P3 starting March 8 and will continue going up by this amount until March 13. Seaoil will increase gasoline by P5.20 on March 10 then by P3.60 on March 11. Diesel will go up by P13.95 on March 10 and by P7.90 on March 11. Kerosene will go up by P20.95 on March 10, and P15 on March 11. Unioil, it said that will increase gasoline prices by P3 on March 10 and March 11, and then by P1 on March 12. For diesel, Unioil said that it will hike by P12.00 per liter on March 10, P4.00 per liter on March 11, and P3.50 per liter on March 12. This is the eighth consecutive week that all fuel prices increased. Last week, gasoline prices increased by P1.90 per liter, diesel prices went up by P1.20 per liter, and kerosene prices were raised by P1.50 per liter. Marcos to issue formal request to Congress for emergency powers to reduce fuel excise tax. Excise tax relief In New York, Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Undersecretary Claire Castro said President Marcos is set to request Congress to grant him emergency powers to reduce the excise tax on fuel as part of the government's efforts to cushion the public from the impact of rising oil prices. The president earlier said he is considering such a move if oil prices reach or exceed $80 per barrel. On Monday, they spiked close to $120 a barrel. Castro also said the Palace has been made aware of the 54 gasoline stations that prematurely raised fuel prices ahead of the DOE announcement. "The DOE has issued a show-cause order to these 54 gas stations so we can prove whether or not they violated the call not to increase gasoline prices. If it is proven that they have committed fraudulent acts, they can have their transaction permits canceled," Castro said. The official warned profiteers that the government would go after them. One of these was gas station in Pasig City that raised the price of gasoline from P51.98 to P79.93 per liter, an increase of more than 54 percent, said Energy Undersecretary Felix William Fuentebella, who led the inspection of the establishment. Fuentebella said the gas station was given 24 hours to submit a written explanation on why it allegedly violated the DOE's fuel pricing and loading policies. "Based on the reports we received, on March 6 and March 7, they did not follow these orders, so they must explain within 24 hours," Fuentebella said during the inspection. The inspection determined that the establishment failed to comply with a DOE advisory issued on March 6 directing oil companies and gasoline stations to strictly follow the agency's price directives on petroleum products. Under the advisory, gasoline stations are required to comply with authorized fuel price adjustments, including any staggered price increases ordered by the Energy secretary. The DOE also reiterated that gasoline stations are not allowed to prematurely implement price increases, engage in profiteering, or assist in any form of illegal price manipulation. The agency said it continues to closely monitor fuel retailers to ensure compliance with government pricing policies and to protect consumers from possible overpricing amid the ongoing missile exchanges and escalating conflict in the Middle East. The Manila Times reached out to the gas station involved for comment but has yet to receive a response. Police to monitor gas stations The Philippine National Police (PNP) on Monday mobilized nationwide tracker teams to inspect gas stations all over the country to help the DOE monitor possible profiteering and gas hoarding. "That includes [monitoring of gasoline stations, as we are already on] Day Seven of the crisis in the Middle East. Since Day One, that has been the directive of the chief PNP to the Directorate for Intelligence of the CIDG (Criminal Investigation and Detection Group)," BGen. Randulf Tuaño, PNP Public Information chief, said in a press briefing at Camp Crame. On Saturday, the DOE ordered all oil companies, gasoline stations and downstream oil industry participants to strictly comply with existing fuel pricing and anti-hoarding regulations. Under the directive, gasoline stations are not allowed to implement unscheduled or unauthorized price increases outside established pricing adjustments.

- Filipinos race to fill tanks ahead of petrol price jump (2026-03-09 06:22)

MANILA, Philippines — Queues formed at Philippine petrol stations and officials warned against hoarding Monday as residents raced to fill their tanks ahead of an expected surge in prices driven by the US-Israeli war against Iran. Fuel costs will tick up between 17 and 24 pesos (29 to 40 US cents) per litre this week, Energy Secretary Sharon Garin told a congressional committee on Monday, as oil prices soared on fears about supplies from the Middle East. The expected increase, which was not broken down by specific product, will be spread out over several days, she said. "Some companies have volunteered not to impose the increase in one day. They're staggered over three days or five days, depending on the company," Garin explained in a televised interview. "We have to remember these are not regulated prices. They just have to inform us what the increases are and justify it," she said. At a petrol station in Metro Manila, AFP journalists saw motorcycles, taxis and private cars queuing in scorching heat. Gas station attendant Enrico Guda, 31, said the normal number of vehicles the station handled in a day had doubled to about 1,000 as customers sought to fuel up before prices jumped. "The line started 24 hours ago. Morning, afternoon, even at dawn," he said. Francis Aranda, a 25-year-old university student, told AFP the spike "hurts". "I'm planning to use half my (weekly) fuel allowance so I won't have to worry in the coming days in case the war in Iran continues," he said. Police, meanwhile, have been instructed "to inspect gasoline stations in their localities... and gather evidence of profiteering or hoarding", Philippine National Police spokesman Brigadier General Randulf Tuano told a news briefing Monday. The ferries that tens of thousands rely on each day to traverse the archipelago nation of 116 million were also in the process of hiking fares. Starlite Ferries, a relatively small operator in the central Philippines, announced that a 25 percent increase would take effect Tuesday for both passengers and cargo. Montenegro Shipping Lines, which operates a fleet of 48 vessels, said its prices would go up 10-20 percent from March 23. President Ferdinand Marcos last week cited the rocketing price of fuel in announcing a shift to a four-day work week for non-essential government employees while ordering agencies to cut their fuel and power consumption by 10-20 percent. He also called on Congress to authorise him to reduce excise taxes on petroleum products if the price of crude oil breached $80 per barrel, a request an administration spokeswoman said Marcos would formalise on Monday. West Texas Intermediate, the main US oil benchmark, and Brent crude prices both sit north of $110 a barrel.

MANILA, Philippines—Manila Mayor Isko Moreno on Monday signed Executive Order (EO) 8, mandating a 4-day work week for city hall employees. In his Facebook live address, Moreno said that on-site work would be from Monday to Thursday under two schedules: 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., and 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. There is no office work on Friday. He clarified that essential and frontline workers were exempted from the order.

- Palace: 54 gas stations ordered to explain price hikes (2026-03-09 04:09)

NEW YORK CITY – Malacañang on Sunday (New York time) warned that gasoline stations charging “unreasonable” prices may be meted with sanctions as the government monitors compliance amid the Middle East crisis. In a media briefing here, Palace Press Officer Claire Castro said the Department of Energy (DOE) has issued show-cause orders to 54 gas stations to determine if they have violated government warnings against hiking fuel prices. “Ngayon po, isinasagawa po ngayon dahil nagka-problema po at marami daw po yatang mga gasoline stations na nagtaas ng presyo (Right now, it is being carried out because there were problems, and apparently many gasoline stations have increased their prices),” Castro said. “So, nag-issue po ang DOE ng show-cause order sa 54 gas stations para po makita natin kung sila ba ay lumabag sa panawagan na huwag magtaas ng presyo ng gasoline (The DOE has issued show-cause orders to 54 gas stations to determine whether they violated the government’s warning not to raise fuel prices),” she added. Castro said the Palace would continue to monitor the situation closely and would take strict action against violators, including possible revocation of permits. “Kasi kapag po napakita rito na sila po ay may mga fraudulent acts, maaari po silang makanselan ng permit sa kanilang mga transaksyon (Because if it is shown that they committed fraudulent acts, their permit to conduct transactions may be canceled),” Castro said. She said the DOE would coordinate with gas stations, stressing that the government’s intervention is intended to prevent price manipulation while promoting fair business practices. The Middle East crisis has triggered global oil price surges, prompting the Philippine government to implement several contingency measures to address the issue. Castro emphasized President Ferdinand R. Marcos Jr.’s call for unity and cooperation during the crisis. “Kapag kayo po ay nagsamantala, meron po kayong kalalagyan. Kayo po ay madedemanda at maaaring matanggalan po kayo ng pagkakataon na kayo ay makapag-negosyo (Those who exploit the situation may face consequences. You may be sued and could lose the opportunity to do business),” she said. “So, tandaan niyo po, ang sabi po ng Pangulo, magtulungan tayo. Pero pag hindi po kayo tumulong at kayo po ay nang-abuso sa kahinaan po na nangyayari ngayon, kayo po ay maaaring mademanda at may kaukulang parusa po ‘yan (Remember, the President says we should work together. But if you fail to help and abuse the weakness amid the situation, you may face lawsuits and corresponding penalties),” Castro added. Consumers were earlier advised to brace for higher pump prices, with gasoline projected to rise by P7.48 per liter, diesel by P17.28 per liter, and kerosene by P32.35 per liter.

- Marcos to request Congress for emergency powers to reduce fuel excise tax (2026-03-09 04:00)

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. is set to issue a formal request to Congress to grant him emergency powers to reduce the fuel excise tax as part of the government’s efforts to cushion the impact of rising fuel prices. In an interview with reporters in New York City, Presidential Communications Office (PCO) Undersecretary Claire Castro said Marcos would be sending his request at the soonest possible time. “Yes, according to (Department of Energy) Secretary (Sharon) Garin. We have spoken to them. We are in contact and this call will be made,” Castro said in Filipino. The president said he was considering exercising emergency powers to reduce the excise tax on petroleum products if oil prices reached or exceeded the $80 per barrel mark. The proposed measure will be temporary and should be authorized by Congress. Castro likewise noted that the Palace has been made aware of the 54 gasoline stations who prematurely adjusted their fuel prices despite the DOE’s announcement that there were no price increases in the past week. “The DOE has issued a show-cause order to these 54 gas stations so we can prove whether or not they violated the call not to increase gasoline prices. If it is proven that they have committed fraudulent acts, they can have their transaction permits canceled,” Castro said.

- De Lima files libel, cyber libel raps vs Baligod, 18 alleged ex-Marines over P805B claim (2026-03-09 03:54)

MANILA, Philippines — Mamamayang Liberal Party-list Rep. Leila de Lima on Monday filed complaints for libel and cyber libel before the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) against lawyer Levi Baligod and 18 individuals who introduced themselves as former members of the Philippine Marine Corps. The complaints stemmed from allegations linking De Lima to the supposed delivery of P805 billion in cash intended for several government officials. Speaking to reporters after filing the complaint, De Lima said the statements attributed to the alleged former Marines and remarks made by Baligod in media interviews contained “lies” meant to damage her reputation. “We are here to file a complaint for libel and cyber libel against the 18 alleged ex-Marines and also against Attorney Levi Baligod,” De Lima said, adding that the sworn statements and subsequent interviews repeated accusations that she had received money. “It’s very clear to me that these are being done… to besmirch my reputation and smear my name,” she said. De Lima denied claims that she received cash deliveries, whether in suitcases, paper bags, or other containers, calling the accusations “pure lies.” “I have not received any cash money, wherever it may have been placed,” she said. The lawmaker said she decided to pursue legal action to prevent the allegations from further damaging her name. “I will not allow them again to destroy my character and malign my name for whatever agenda they may have,” she said. The complaints came after the group allegedly circulated affidavits and made public statements claiming that large sums of money had been delivered to certain officials, with De Lima’s name among those mentioned.

- UP Manila implements 4-day workweek to conserve energy (2026-03-09 02:05)

MANILA, Philippines — The University of the Philippines Manila (UPM) implemented a four-day compressed workweek and designated Mondays as a no-onsite workday starting today as part of energy conservation measures. This comes after President Bongbong Marcos issued Memorandum Circular 114, s. 2026, which mandates government offices to adopt energy conservation protocols, as a massive oil price increase is expected amid the widening conflict in the Middle East. The memorandum requires government offices to implement a 4-day onsite work setting beginning March 9, 2026. In a statement late Sunday, UPM Chancellor Michael Tee said Mondays would be designated as a “no onsite workday,” which means administrative personnel will not physically report to campus. Employees will instead complete their required 40-hour workweek across the remaining four on-site days from Tuesday to Friday. Meanwhile, Tee also noted that classes will proceed as scheduled, emphasizing that teaching and learning remain its top priority.

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. arrived in New York for his engagements in the United Nations where he is expected to participate in high-level discussions, including the situation in the Middle East and women’s rights. The chartered flight carrying Marcos and his delegation touched down at the Newark Liberty International Airport at 2:45 p.m. on Sunday (New York time). On his agenda during his two-day working visit are his attendance to the opening of the 70th session of the Commission on the Status of Women (CSW) where he will reaffirm the Philippines’ support to efforts championing the rights and empowerment of women and girls. He is also slated to meet with UN Secretary-General António Guterres and is expected to highlight the country’s commitment to multilateralism and international cooperation as well as reiterate his administration’s call for rules-based international order and end to conflicts. The president will likewise take the floor at the special session of the UN General Assembly to push the country’s bid for a non-permanent seat on the UN Security Council for 2027 to 2028. Apart from his UN-related activities, Marcos will also be having meetings with American business leaders. The chief executive is accompanied by First Lady Louise “Liza” Araneta-Marcos; Foreign Affairs Secretary Maria Theresa Lazaro; Migrant Workers Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac; Presidential peace adviser Carlito Galvez Jr.; and Presidential Communications Office Acting Secretary Dave Gomez.

MANILA, Philippines – The low-pressure area (LPA) outside the Philippine Area of Responsibility (PAR) has been forecast to develop into a tropical depression within 24 hours, the national weather bureau said on Monday. Weather specialist Aldczar Aurelio of the Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said, however, that the weather disturbance has a slim chance to enter PAR. “It would also be unlikely to affect the country's weather directly, but its trough or extension was already bringing cloudy skies with scattered rains and thunderstorms over Visayas, Mindanao, Sorsogon, and Masbate,” Aurelio said during a 5 a.m. briefing. The northeast monsoon or 'amihan' is expected to prevail over the next three days. Today, it is affecting Cagayan Valley, Aurora, Quezon, and the rest of the Bicol Region, bringing overcast skies and rain. Moreover, the same weather system is affecting the Cordillera Administrative Region, Oriental Mindoro, Marinduque, and Romblon, where cloudy skies with light rain are likely, according to its latest advisory. Pagasa said amihan would also be experienced over Metro Manila and the rest of Luzon, where partly cloudy to cloudy skies with isolated light rains would prevail.

- Oil prices continue rapid climb (2026-03-08 16:18)

(UPDATE) THE price of oil surged higher and showed no signs of halting its rapid climb a week after the US and Israel launched major attacks on Iran that escalated into a war in the Middle East. The conflict, in which nearly every country in the Middle East has sustained damage from missiles or drone strikes, has left ships that carry roughly 20 million barrels of oil a day stranded in the Persian Gulf, unable to safely pass through the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow mouth of the Gulf that is bordered on its north side by Iran. The shipping disruption and damage to key Middle East oil and gas facilities have interrupted supplies from some of the world's largest oil producers. Kuwait, for example, said on Saturday that it would reduce its oil production as a “precautionary” measure due to the war, which could jolt global energy markets even further. Oil prices surpassed $90 a barrel Friday, with American crude settling at $90.90, up 36 percent from a week ago, and Brent, the international standard, climbing 27 percent over the course of the week to land at $92.69. The fallout is ratcheting up what consumers and businesses will pay for gasoline, diesel and jet fuel, with some drivers already feeling it at the pump. “It's crazy. It's not needed, especially at a time when people are already struggling, but not unexpected from all this turmoil that's going on,” said Mark Doran, who was pumping gas in Middlebury, Vermont, on Friday. “I don't think there's been an end in sight to any Middle East conflict that's been started by us, so the fact that they say that there's going to be an end that quickly is not believable, and the Middle East is, you know, a place that the US is not going to solve.” President Donald Trump said Monday that the US expected its military operations against Iran to last four to five weeks but has “the capability to go far longer.” On Friday, Trump appeared to rule out talks with Iran absent its “unconditional surrender.” “The more news we get, the more it seems like this is going to last a really long time,” said Al Salazar, head of macro oil and gas research at Enverus. In the US, a gallon of regular gasoline rose to $3.41 on Saturday, up about 43 cents from a week ago, according to AAA motor club. Diesel was selling for $4.51 a gallon Saturday, up about 75 cents from last week. The price shocks were felt even more heavily in Europe and Asia, markets that rely more heavily on energy supplies from the Middle East. Diesel prices doubled in Europe, and jet fuel prices rose by close to 200 percent in Asia, according to Claudio Galimberti, chief economist at Rystad Energy. Energy prices climbed throughout the week as Iran launched a series of retaliatory attacks, including a drone strike on the US Embassy in Saudi Arabia, and the conflict widened. Iran also hit a major refinery in Saudi Arabia and a liquefied natural gas (LNG) facility in Qatar, halting flows of refined products and taking about 20 percent of the world's LNG supply offline. "We keep seeing news of vessels being hit or refineries or pipelines, so the list is very long," Galimberti said. As a result, roughly 9 million barrels of oil per day are off the market because of facilities being hit or producers taking precautionary measures, he said.

"Right now, with all of this shut-in, we are in a situation of extreme deficit." Trump issued a plan Friday to insure losses up to approximately $20 billion in the Gulf region, aiming to restore confidence in maritime trade, help stabilize international commerce, and support American and allied businesses operating in the Middle East. But some energy experts said extra insurance won't solve the problem. "The problem is that in the oil trading, oil shipping world, people are worried about counterterrorism," said Amy Jaffe, director of the Energy, Climate Justice and Sustainability Lab at New York University, adding that they're worried about automated drone speedboats, weapon-carrying flying drones and mines or other devices. "In order for the United States to create the atmosphere that undoes the current bottleneck at the Strait of Hormuz, there has to be some credible demonstration of solutions to the counter-terrorism problem." Salazar wondered what the "new normal" would look like if the Strait of Hormuz were effectively re-opened, and what effective security would look like. "All it takes is one individual with an RPG (rocket-propelled grenade) to stand on the shore and take out a tanker, right?" Salazar said. "And this is forever, do you know what I mean?" The Philippines is also feeling the aftershocks of the conflict in the Middle East, with increases in pump prices this week expected to be massive. There were reports last week that the per-liter price of kerosene may go up by P24.92, diesel by P19.62, and gasoline by P10.43. Final price movements are scheduled to be announced today, March 9. Some gas stations were reported to have already jacked up their prices. Sen. Panfilo Lacson urged the public to report gas stations that "prematurely" increase prices. Lacson said prematurely increasing fuel prices violates Republic Act 8479, or the Downstream Oil Industry Deregulation Act of 1998 and RA 7394, or the Consumer Act of the Philippines. He said the public can report violations to the Philippine National Police (PNP) and concerned local government units (LGUs). "Amid reports that some gasoline stations have already increased prices, they must be reported to authorities," Lacson wrote on X on Saturday. Another senator, Win Gatchalian, urged the Department of Energy (DOE) to monitor retailers and oil companies for possible profiteering amid what he described as an "energy crisis" stemming from the escalating conflict in the Middle East. DOE Director Rino Abad said the government has no control over the pricing of petroleum products due to the oil deregulation law. "The increase in the oil prices in the world market has just been announced. But some retailers have already raised their prices. This is profiteering," Gatchalian said. "They cannot increase prices immediately because they had bought their current stocks at a lower price. They should sell at a reasonable price," said Gatchalian, vice chairman of the Senate Committee on Energy. Oil companies have an inventory of about 50 days, “so they should not jack up pump prices that quickly,” he said. From January to March 4, gasoline pump prices increased by 13.7 percent, from P55 to P62 per liter. Diesel prices rose by 41.4 percent, from P54 to P76 per liter, while kerosene prices went up by 43 percent, from P79 to P114 per liter. Lacson said Energy Secretary Sharon Garin had instructed the PNP and local governments to monitor and report violations “so [that] appropriate criminal and administrative proceedings may be initiated against erring gas station operators.”

- China maritime militia activity in SCS peaked in 2025 (2026-03-08 16:17)

(UPDATE) CHINA’S maritime militia deployed a record number of vessels in the South China Sea in 2025, particularly around key disputed reefs near areas of tension with the Philippines, according to a Washington-based research project that monitors maritime disputes and activities in Asia. Satellite imagery analysis by the Asia Maritime Transparency Initiative (AMTI) found a daily average of 241 militia vessels operating across monitored reefs in 2025, slightly higher than the 232 recorded in 2024. The figure represents the highest level observed since the group began systematic monitoring in 2021. The militia fleet — composed of professional militia units and civilian vessels belonging to China’s “Spratly Backbone Fishing Fleet” — was detected in all reefs monitored by the initiative, although activity continued to shift toward Mischief Reef and Whitsun Reef, which together accounted for nearly half of the total observed vessels. Researchers said tracking militia vessels remains challenging because most ships turned off their automatic identification system (AIS). Instead, AMTI relied on commercial satellite imagery to count ships massing at key reefs. The study expanded its dataset to 12 reefs with the addition of Mabini (Johnson) Reef, where satellite imagery revealed a moderate seasonal concentration of vessels east of the feature during the past year. Most ships identified were believed to belong to the Spratly Backbone Fishing Fleet, which is numerically larger than the professional militia component. For the study, researchers counted only vessels between 45 and 65 meters in length, a size commonly associated with Chinese militia trawlers and rarely seen among other fishing fleets or the China Coast Guard. Satellite imagery was analyzed roughly four times each month at each reef, with gaps between observations filled using interpolation to allow comparison across locations. Seasonal patterns remained consistent with previous years. Vessel presence was lowest from January to mid-February, rising after the Lunar New Year. Two major surges were observed across most features — one in June and another in late November. At Panganiban (Mischief) Reef, militia presence showed four separate peaks exceeding 200 vessels, reinforcing its role as a key staging point for monitoring disputed areas near the Philippines, including Escoda (Sabina) Shoal and Ayungin (Second Thomas) Shoal. Julian Felipe (Whitsun) Reef displayed a similar seasonal trend, with vessel numbers peaking in the spring before dropping during the summer and early fall and rising again later in the year. Other features recorded increased militia activity compared with previous years. Rozul (Iroquois) Reef showed higher peaks and a stronger baseline presence throughout 2025, while Pag-asa (Thitu) Reef experienced increases in both average and peak vessel counts despite reduced coast guard activity in the area. Burgos (Gaven) Reef maintained peak levels similar to those seen in 2024

but had a higher average daily presence. In contrast, Kagitingan (Fiery Cross) Reef had a sharp drop in militia activity. After averaging 32 vessels per day in 2024, the reef had almost no observable militia presence in 2025, suggesting a possible redeployment of Chinese vessels rather than an overall reduction in militia operations. The research also compared militia deployments with patrols by the China Coast Guard. Despite a record rise in coast guard presence around Bajo de Masinloc (Scarborough) Shoal, militia vessels remained relatively few in the area. Analysts said this pattern suggests that Beijing relies more heavily on smaller but more capable professional militia units and coast guard ships to patrol disputed areas, while larger numbers of Spratly Backbone vessels remain anchored at safer locations such as Mischief and Whitsun reefs. AMTI said the 2025 data mirrors patterns seen in 2024 but with slightly higher overall militia presence and a redistribution of vessels across eastern areas of the Spratly Islands.

• Asean, China ‘heavily invested’ in SCS Code of Conduct (2026-03-08 16:16)

First of three parts THE Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) and China are “heavily invested” in the finalization of the 2026 Code of Conduct (COC) in the South China Sea (SCS), which has dragged on for the past 17 years because of some contentious issues. This was how Foreign Affairs Secretary Ma. Theresa Lazaro described the commitment of Asean and China in the “termination of negotiations” for a COC during the Philippines’ chairmanship of Asean this year. Asean is composed of Brunei, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, the Philippines, Singapore, Timor-Leste, Thailand, and Vietnam. The negotiation for a COC stemmed from the need to address mounting tension in the 1990s amid the overlapping claims in the contested Spratly Islands in the South China Sea. The atolls, islets, and other features in the Spratlys — believed to be rich in oil and mineral deposits — are being claimed in whole by China and in part by Brunei, Malaysia, Vietnam, Taiwan, and the Philippines. The COC timeline or milestones The quest for a COC began in 2002 after the signing of the Declaration on the Conduct (DOC) of Parties in the South China Sea on Nov. 4, 2002, in Phnom Penh, Cambodia. The Philippines’ signatory at that time was then Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) secretary Blas Ople. For the Chinese side, it was Wang Yi, then special envoy and vice minister of foreign affairs. Wang is now China’s top envoy. The DOC states that Asean and China reaffirmed that the “adoption of a code of conduct in the South China Sea would further promote peace and stability in the region and agree to work, on the basis of consensus, towards the eventual attainment of this objective.” The nonbinding DOC was considered to be more of a confidence-building measure to lay down a very important foundation of how Asean and China should work together in the South China Sea to maintain harmony in the region. The parties recognized the need “to enhance favorable conditions for a peaceful and durable solution of differences and disputes” in the SCS. Hence, the need for a COC. Under the DOC, they should “resolve their territorial and jurisdictional disputes by peaceful means, without resorting to the threat or use of force, through friendly consultations and negotiations by sovereign states directly concerned, in accordance with universally recognized principles of international law, including the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (Unclos).” Enforced in 1994, the International Maritime Organization said the Unclos laid down a comprehensive regime of law and order for the world's oceans, including the establishment of rules for the allocation of States' rights and jurisdiction in maritime spaces and the peaceful use of oceans and the management of their resources. They should "undertake to exercise self-restraint in the conduct of activities that would complicate or escalate disputes and affect peace and stability, including, among others, refraining from action of inhabiting the presently uninhabited islands, reefs, shoals, cays, and other features and to handle their differences in a constructive manner," the DOC read. Since 2002, the COC has undergone three phases. Phase 1, which saw the signing of the DOC as its foundation. It took almost nine years, from 2002 to 2011, to craft the COC framework. Phase 2, wherein the drafting of the COC began in 2012. By 2019, Asean and China had completed the crafting of the COC's "table of contents." It was under Thailand's Asean chairmanship that they finished the first review or "first reading" of the draft COC. Phase 3 covered the years 2020 to 2023, wherein new guidelines had been adopted to accelerate the deadline within which to finish the COC. However, the COC discussion was stalled at the height of the Covid-19 (Coronavirus disease 2019) pandemic from 2020 to 2022. It was in 2023, during Indonesia's Asean chairmanship, that the bloc and China managed to approve the COC on "second reading." The Asean foreign ministers in 2023 have agreed that the COC should be finished within three years or in 2026 — which happened to be the Philippines' turn to lead the regional grouping. 2026 'make or break' year for Philippines to finalize COC. Geopolitical analysts viewed 2026 as a "make or break" year for the Philippines to finally realize Asean's aspiration to sign the COC with China that would govern their actions in the SCS to maintain peace, stability and economic growth in the region. Lazaro said as the 2026 Asean chairman, the Philippines has to build up consensus to overcome the difficult task of having Asean and China finally sign the COC. "Right now, we're doing the role of a consensus-builder. So, let's see. We'll cross our fingers." The Philippines "will endeavor to conclude the negotiations of an effective, substantive code of conduct that is in accordance with international law, particularly the 1982 Unclos within this year," Lazaro said. "We are doubly, even triply working hard to make sure that there is something of a confluence or rather some kind of a consensus," she said in a press briefing in January after the Asean Foreign Ministers Retreat held in Cebu City. The so-called four "milestone issues" hampered the completion of the COC. These are: the geographical scope, the link between the DOC and the COC, the legally binding element or the characteristic of the COC, and the definition of self-restraint relative to the claimants' action in the SCS. Chinese Ambassador to Manila Jing Quan had said China and the Philippines hope to accelerate consultations on the COC. "Reaching an agreement would lay a solid foundation for managing maritime differences and advancing bilateral relations," he said. "The COC has been under discussion for more than a decade. It is time to see real results. Both sides should keep the bigger picture in mind and work together to deliver," Jing said. Lazaro said the Philippines would be holding monthly consultations with China and fellow Asean members to address these milestone issues. Some Asean members have expressed "willingness to host face-to-face meetings" to show their commitment to the COC completion. She said the Philippines discussed this proposed monthly meeting with China and hoped that Beijing would agree to this. "I don't see any difficulties with that. I think everybody is trying to do their respective way on how to do things,” the DFA chief said. Lazaro revealed that one of the Asean member-states has come up with a paper on one of the milestone issues. “So now everybody is trying to put in definitions, as well as possible areas of cooperation, in trying to address the milestone issues. We, the Philippines, we’ ll just be open about it.” Asean Secretary General Kao Kim Hourn, in November 2025, said the regional grouping looked forward to the conclusion of a binding COC during the Philippines’ chairmanship of Asean in 2026. “We expect that this will conclude next year as we have agreed to try to conclude around July 2026, which is during the Philippines’ chairmanship,” Kao said during a press briefing with journalists attending the Asean Media Forum in Malaysia. “We should not prolong the drafting of the COC. The process is very important. It is equally important as the outcome,” he stressed. The COC “will make sure that the South China Sea will remain peaceful, stable,” he added. “We have a non-binding DOC already. This is among other issues that need to be sorted out. I am sure we will finalize at some stage. I have every confidence to believe that this work will be finalized next year,” Kao said. Asean Foreign Ministers’ vision in maintaining harmony in the region Lazaro said during their meeting in Cebu City, her fellow Asean leaders “welcomed the positive momentum and progress achieved in the ongoing negotiations” on the COC. “We will endeavor to conclude the negotiation of an effective and substantive COC that is in accordance with international law, particularly the 1982 Unclos, within 2026,” Lazaro said in a statement. “We emphasized the need to maintain and promote an environment conducive to the COC negotiations, including the situation in the South China Sea, and thus welcomed practical measures that could reduce tensions and the risk of accidents, misunderstandings, and miscalculations,” Lazaro added. She said they discussed the situation in the South China Sea, wherein they expressed concerns on “land reclamations, serious incidents in the area, including actions that put the safety of all persons at risk, damage to the marine environment.” They said these incidents may “have eroded trust and confidence, increased tensions, and may undermine peace, security and stability in the region.” “We reaffirmed the need to pursue peaceful resolution of disputes, in accordance with international law, particularly the 1982 Unclos,” Lazaro said in a statement. “We emphasized the importance of self-restraint in the conduct of all activities by claimants and all other states, including those mentioned in the Declaration on the Conduct of Parties in the South China Sea that could further complicate the situation and escalate tensions in the South China Sea,” she said. Lazaro said Asean reaffirmed the importance of maintaining and promoting peace, freedom of navigation in and overflight above the SCS, and recognized the benefits of having the SCS as a “sea of peace, stability, prosperity and sustainable development.” BERNADETTE E. PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. left for the United States on Sunday for a working visit that will include addressing a special session of the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA). The chartered flight carrying the president and his lean delegation, which include first lady Louise “Liza” Araneta-Marcos, Foreign Affairs Secretary Maria Theresa Lazaro, Migrant Workers

Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac, Presidential Peace Adviser Carlito Galvez Jr., and Presidential Communications Office Acting Secretary Dave Gomez took off from the Villamor Air Base in Pasay City at 10:22 a.m. The agenda of Marcos' four-day trip to New York includes his attendance at the opening of the 70th session of the Commission on the Status of Women (CSW) at the United Nations Headquarters, where he will highlight the Philippines' commitment to promoting, advancing and protecting the rights and well-being of women and girls. The chief executive is also expected to speak at the special session of the UNGA where he will rally for additional support for the country's candidacy for a non-permanent seat on the UN Security Council (UNSC) for 2027 to 2028. By getting a seat in the council, the Philippines will have a voice in the discussions concerning global safety and security, Malacañang had said. The Philippines previously served as a non-permanent member of the UNSC in 1957, 1963, 1980–1981, and 2004–2005. The president is likewise scheduled to meet with UN Secretary-General António Guterres to discuss the situation in the Middle East and reiterate the importance of promoting peace and supporting the protection of civilians affected by the crisis in the region. Lazaro said the UN provided the most appropriate platform for the president to call for peace in the Middle East and the protection of civilians, including overseas Filipinos in the region. This is Marcos' sixth visit to the US since 2022, becoming the country that he has visited most during his administration. The president's last visit to the US was in July 2025, meeting with President Donald Trump. But Lazaro said Marcos would not meet with Trump and other state leaders during his visit to the US this week.

- Gulf waters declared 'Warlike Operations Areas' (2026-03-08 16:14)

THE Department of Migrant Workers (DMW) has declared the Persian Gulf, the Strait of Hormuz, and the Gulf of Oman as "Warlike Operations Areas." DMW Secretary Hans Leo Cacdac said the declaration is in keeping with the decision by the Warlike Operations Area Committee (WOAC) of the International Bargaining Forum (IBF) reclassifying the sea lanes around the Gulf following a surge in attacks on commercial shipping and growing instability in the region. Under the advisory, Filipino seafarers are granted immediate and significant protections, Cacdac said. In a video message, Cacdac said the declaration gives seamen the "right to refuse sailing" and decline deployment to high-risk areas before the vessel enters the designated zones. Seafarers who exercise this right are entitled to repatriation at the company's expense, along with compensation equivalent to two months' basic wage. The advisory also mandates that shipowners implement increased security arrangements equivalent to ISPS Level 3, the highest maritime security alert. This includes 24/7 monitoring and strict access control to ensure the safety of the crew while navigating these volatile waters. Financial safeguards have been bolstered. Families of seafarers who are killed or injured within the warlike areas will receive twice the usual compensation. On Sunday, the DMW and the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA) also announced that another batch of Filipinos was returning from the Middle East to escape the conflict in the region. The agencies said 65 overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) and three dependents arrived at Ninoy Aquino International Airport (NAIA) from Dubai in the United Arab Emirates. The latest batch was supposed to fly home last March 3, but their flight was delayed because the airspace in many parts of the region was shut down. The Philippine Embassy in Lebanon has urged Filipinos to take advantage of the government's repatriation program. There are over 14,000 Filipinos in Lebanon, mostly working in Beirut as household helpers. Some of them work as cooks, waiters, salespersons and nurses. The embassy in Iran reported that the internet connection in Iraq is still down. "No one cannot even receive international calls," it said. The embassy in Bahrain urged Filipinos to "avoid public gatherings," in compliance with the directive of the Bahraini government. Majority Leader Ferdinand Alexander Marcos on Sunday said Speaker Faustino Dy III has asked the chamber's Committees on Foreign Affairs and on Overseas Workers Affairs to hold a joint briefing on March 11 on the Middle East conflict. "With a significant number of Filipinos working across the Middle East, it is important that we stay ahead of developments and ensure that the necessary support mechanisms are in place," Marcos said. "The House wants to receive a full briefing on the situation on the ground and on the readiness of our agencies to assist our nationals should conditions require government intervention," he said. Invited were officials from relevant agencies, including the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) and DMW. The Philippine National Police (PNP) on Sunday said it has ordered the deployment of a special team to support the repatriation of OFWs in the Middle East. PNP chief Gen. Jose Melencio Nartatez Jr. directed the Criminal Investigation and Detection Group (CIDG) to lead agencies, such as the DMW and OWWA, in ensuring the safe and orderly return of Filipinos from the region. The team will screen returning OFWs to identify possible victims of illegal recruitment or human trafficking and gather evidence against individuals who may have exploited Filipino workers abroad. “We will not let our countrymen go home without support from the government. We will make sure that those responsible for illegal recruitment and human trafficking will be investigated and held accountable,” Nartatez said. During a hearing of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations last week, DMW’s Cacdac and OWWA’s Cunanan requested additional funding to support the repatriation of OFWs stranded in conflict zones in the Middle East. They said the P1.7-billion 2026 Emergency Repatriation Fund (ERF) may not be sufficient if the conflict escalates and more OFWs request repatriation.

- Marcos vows opportunities for Filipino women (2026-03-08 16:13)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Sunday hailed the contribution of Filipino women to nation-building and vowed to lead a government that works just as hard as they do. In his message for the commemoration of International Women’s Day, Marcos lauded how the Filipina is “a mother, a worker, a leader” and oftentimes, “all of these at the same time.” “The progress of our nation will always carry the imprint of the Filipina, and she deserves a government that works as hard as she does,” he said in a statement posted on his social media accounts. He tagged women as “the heartbeat of every nation,” and particularly lauded Filipino women for facing responsibilities “with resilience and heart, turning obstacles into opportunities and hardship into hope.” The chief executive vowed to keep championing the rights of women and provide equal and additional opportunities for them until his last day in office. “Under this administration, we will continue to expand opportunities, protect rights, and ensure that every Filipina has access to the health, education, and livelihood programs she needs to thrive,” he said. It was in 1996 when the United Nations (UN) formally launched International Women’s Day, commemorating women’s fight for equality and liberation along with the women’s rights movement. It likewise gives focus to issues such as gender equality, reproductive rights, and violence and abuse against women. Support and solidarity In her message during the occasion, Vice President Sara Duterte pushed for support for and solidarity for women. “I stand in solidarity with every Filipino woman this National Women’s Month,” Duterte said. “Women do not just survive crises — we rebuild lives and communities,” she said. “We are the strong pillars of our country, from mothers who thrift every peso, farmers who get back up after flooding, to our women who work in various parts of the world,” she said in Filipino. “But it is time to move beyond just praising our resilience,” she said. Duterte pushed for systems “that will truly support our strength.” “We need real protection for the informal sector,” she said. She also pushed “climate-resilient support” for farmers as well as “genuine access to financing for women entrepreneurs.” Duterte said supporting women “is a strategy for inclusive growth.” She urged Filipinos to unite for a future where “our daughters inherit opportunities, not just duties.” Modern babaylansLast Wednesday, Speaker Faustino Dy III honored Filipinas as babaylan of the modern times. The babaylan served as female spiritual leaders in pre-colonial Philippines. “This National Women’s Month, under the theme ‘Lead Like the Babaylans, Filipinas,’ let us remember the strength that has long been in every Filipina — the spirit of the Babaylan: a leader who has wisdom, compassion, courage, responsibility towards our community,” Dy said in a video message. “This spirit is alive in every mother who fights for the future of her child, in every female teacher who shapes dreams, in every woman leader in government and various other sectors,” he said.Dy vowed that the House would keep pushing measures empowering women. “Your House will strengthen every Filipina, especially those who are marginalized: women in farms, Indigenous peoples, and women with disabilities,” he said. - ‘4-day work schedule to ease oil crisis impact’ (2026-03-08 16:12)

SEN. Francis Escudero urged private companies to consider adopting the proposed four day onsite workweek or implement staggered work hour schemes to cushion the impact of fuel price hikes amid the war in the Middle East.President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. earlier ordered a temporary four day workweek for some executive branch offices starting March 9 to conserve energy and reduce fuel use.The Palace issued Memorandum Circular 114, which mandates, among others, to cut on electricity and fuel consumption by 10-20 percent, maintain air conditioning at 24 C, and suspend nonessential travel and activities.Escudero on Sunday said that flexible work arrangements could help reduce daily transportation demand and lower operating costs as oil prices in the global market remain volatile.The senator said it would provide workers with added relief and reduce billions of pesos in lost opportunities every day because of traffic congestion. “Acting this early as we anticipate what could happen would strengthen the country’s resilience should the situation get worse,” Escudero said.He noted that Congress has long implemented a four day workweek for its personnel. Extending similar schemes in the private sector could help reduce fuel consumption, save energy, and ease traffic congestion.According to a study by the Japan International Cooperation Agency, Metro Manila’s traffic congestion alone costs the economy an estimated P3.5 billion per day, a figure projected to rise to P5.4 billion daily by 2035 if unaddressed. “If we are losing P3.5 billion every single day because of traffic, that means Metro Manila is bleeding roughly P105 billion a month and more than P1.27 trillion a year,” Escudero said.He said, private-sector participation would amplify the benefits of the government’s temporary shift to a compressed work arrangement, especially in major business districts.Escudero urged firms in Makati and Bonifacio Global City to explore flexible setups that can meaningfully reduce peak hour congestion. “These areas experience some of the heaviest daily traffic volumes, making them ideal starting points for mobility oriented workplace reforms,” he said.The circular also allows agencies to implement the four day onsite setup through a compressed workweek or a designated work from home day, consistent with Civil Service Commission policies.He encouraged LGUs in major business districts to collaborate with employers on area wide mobility strategies, including synchronized staggered schedules, improved pedestrian access, and safer cycling routes. He also urged the public to contribute to energy conservation through everyday habits such as biking short distances, carpooling, and adopting energy efficient practices at home.

- P100M illegal drugs seized in 2-day ops (2026-03-08 16:11)

OVER P100 million worth of illegal drugs were seized in a two-day intensified anti-narcotics operation from March 7-8, resulting in the arrest of nine wanted persons, the Philippine National Police (PNP) said. Among those arrested were high-ranking most wanted persons, including the top three fugitives and others listed as top four, top five, top seven, top nine, and top 10 in their regions. The suspects face charges of rape, statutory rape, murder, and violations of the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act of 2002, with several cases carrying no bail recommended. Among them are a 25-year-old suspect in Negros Oriental for violation of the anti-illegal drugs law, one in Davao City for murder, and a 55-year-old from the National Capital Region arrested in Pangasinan for multiple counts of qualified rape of a minor. Other fugitives facing rape charges were separately arrested in Bataan, Davao Oriental, Davao Occidental, Bukidnon, and Rizal, along with another suspect wanted for drug-related offenses. Meanwhile, intensified anti-drug operations resulted in the seizure of illegal drugs with a total estimated value of P99,742,575.00, including shabu worth P1.19 million and marijuana valued at P98.55 million. Authorities also uprooted and destroyed marijuana plants with a combined estimated value of about P28.75 million from plantation sites discovered in Ilocos Sur, Kalinga, and Benguet. In a separate interdiction operation at Clark International Airport in Pampanga, authorities arrested two Chinese nationals and seized marijuana worth approximately P69.8 million. In Cebu City, operatives also arrested a 21-year-old Filipino male classified as a high-value individual and seized around 175 grams of shabu worth approximately P1.19 million. PNP chief Gen. Jose Melencio Nartatez Jr. commended the operating units and reiterated the PNP's firm stance against fugitives and illegal drugs. "It is our job to ensure that these lawless elements are accountable. We will not let them escape. Our operations will continue until they face justice," he said.

- President wants politics-free, swift aid distribution (2026-03-08 16:10)

PRESIDENT Ferdinand Marcos Jr. on Sunday pushed for a faster, politics-free distribution of government aid to Filipinos in need. In his latest BBM VLOG, the chief executive encouraged the public to let their sentiments, big or small, be heard so that the government can provide the appropriate action. "It is only right for you to express your thoughts. There are no big or small grievances; all of them are problems that burden people's lives. And we are here to listen and take action on those things," he said in Filipino. In providing government services and aid, efforts will be streamlined for the convenience of beneficiaries, particularly senior citizens, and reminded that programs must not be used for political promotion and should instead be delivered more efficiently. "You know, as long as these involve national government programs, speeches, and other publicity before distribution, those will not be allowed. Government services cannot be used for politicking or self-promotion," the president said. "This is already stated in the DILG (Department of the Interior and Local Government) Memorandum Circular and is also included in the provision of the GAA (General Appropriations Act) on how public funds should be used. It is no longer allowed in the distribution of aid from the national government,” he added. Among those Marcos wants to improve is the processing of civil registry documents, particularly the correction of birth certificates, as part of the government’s broader push for digitalization and improved public service. He noted receiving countless complaints about the challenges in obtaining documents and applying for an identification card, especially for the vulnerable sector and those living in Geographically Isolated and Disadvantaged Areas (GIDAs).

- Violence against women rap vs businessman junked (2026-03-08 16:08)

THE Department of Justice (DOJ) has dismissed two separate complaints for violation of the Anti-Violence Against Women and Their Children (VAWC) Act (Republic Act 9262) against a prominent Filipino Indian businessman, ruling that the psychological report submitted by the complainant lacked evidentiary value. In a 16-page resolution, the DOJ's Provincial Prosecution Office in Bohol, through Officer in Charge Provincial Prosecutor Eric Ucat, described the psychological report presented by Vicki Narwani as "evidentially bankrupt," noting it relied solely on her personal account and failed to independently establish any psychological or emotional harm allegedly inflicted by the complainant's estranged husband, Rajiv Prem Chandiramani. "Though presented as an expert evaluation, it is wholly dependent on the complainant's unilateral narration and utterly fails to identify — much less analyze — the alleged Panglao, Bohol incident as a factual source of any psychological or emotional injury," the resolution read. Narwani alleged that Chandiramani verbally abused and physically threatened her in May 2018 while on vacation in Panglao, Bohol, claiming that resort employees called the police due to the commotion. She submitted the psychological report, including a sworn statement from SSG. Rommel Roy Villareal, and screenshots from text messages. The DOJ dismissed Villareal's statement as "pure hearsay," citing the absence of official documentation such as a police blotter entry, dispatch log, or incident report. "A careful dispassionate scrutiny of his affidavit... reveals grave, fundamental, and irreconcilable defects that altogether obliterate its credibility," the resolution said. The decision stressed that RA 9262 protects genuine victims but cannot be used to advance "legally untenable, manufactured, or unsupported claims." In a separate 10-page resolution, the DOJ's Provincial Prosecutor in Pampanga also dismissed a similar complaint by Narwani. Associate Prosecutor Mayda Lintag-Ursua found the allegations "couched in general terms lacking details" and noted that the complainant sought psychological consultations 11 years after the alleged Pampanga incident. "Complainant should have subjected herself to a medical examination right after the incident, considering she was seven months pregnant at that time," the Pampanga resolution read, adding that the delay undermined the credibility of her claims. Chandiramani denied all allegations. Both prosecutors concluded that the complaints lacked sufficient evidence to proceed to court, highlighting the psychological reports' failure to provide objective, verifiable proof of harm.

- Acosta hails firemen for saving PAO from fire (2026-03-08 16:07)

PUBLIC Attorney's Office (PAO) chief Persida Rueda-Acosta on Sunday expressed gratitude over firefighters' prompt actions that spared the building which houses PAO and Board of Parole and Pardon (BPP) from Friday's massive fire which displaced over 4,000 families and left residents dead. Rueda-Acosta was likewise hailed by many netizens when she was seen wearing house clothes, among the people, at the height of the fire that swept through a slum area in Brgy. Pinyahan, Quezon City, on Friday night until early Saturday morning. The chief public attorney, who was also with PAO's chief finance officer — Alma Dumago-Latosa — managed to persuade volunteers and firefighters coming from different fire stations in Metro Manila to save the PAO and BPP building from being engulfed by the massive fire, as it was right beside the burning residential area. Rueda-Acosta and Dumago-Latosa were seen mingling with the fire victims as the PAO head promised to seek help from concerned government agencies for assistance. "I would like to express my deepest gratitude to the fire volunteers and firemen coming from different fire stations in the metropolis for their effort, which effectively spared the building from being caught by the fire, as they also tried to put it out, but the blaze was really massive," Rueda-Acosta said. With over 4,000 families that lost their homes, reports from the Bureau of Fire Protection said that one male resident died of a heart attack and four volunteers were injured while the fire was sweeping through the squatters' area, spreading along NIA Road, and lasted until early Saturday morning. Mayor Joy Belmonte, who visited the displaced residents in several temporary shelters, assured them of any assistance, including support to rebuild their homes. Belmonte was with Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO) General Manager Mel Robles and Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA) General Manager Nicolas Torre III when they distributed, also on Sunday, some 2,000 "Charitimba" buckets containing food and other essential supplies as well as modular tents. The city chief executive praised the immediate support and assistance from concerned government agencies, made possible through the directive of President Ferdinand Marcos Jr.

THE Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO), the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA), and the Quezon City local government unit (LGU) joined forces on Sunday to distribute relief assistance to nearly 2,000 families displaced by the fire that hit a residential area in Brgy. Pinyahan, Quezon City, late Friday night. In a statement, the PCSO said 2,000 "Charitimba" or charity buckets containing food and other essential supplies, and modular tents, were distributed at Quezon City Hall's Risen Garden. The distribution was led by PCSO General Manager Melquiades Robles, with Quezon City Mayor Joy Belmonte and MMDA General Manager Nicolas Torre III. "Our teams worked closely with the local government to help ensure that immediate assistance reached the affected families," Robles said in a statement. Meanwhile, the MMDA also provided modular evacuation tents as temporary shelters for the families displaced by the blaze. “The MMDA remains ready to assist local governments during emergencies. Through our coordination with Quezon City and PCSO, we hope to provide temporary shelter and support for families while other relief efforts continue,” Torre said. In all, according to the PCSO’s statement, the goods were distributed to 1,907 families staying in evacuation centers in Flora Ylagan High School, Pinyahan Covered Court, San Isidro Labrador Parish, NIA Covered Court, Pinyahan Elementary School, NHA Balik-Probinsiya Covered Court, and the National Power Corp. (Napocor).

- QC sets up water testing lab for safe drinking water (2026-03-08 16:05)

THE Quezon City government has opened its water testing laboratory to ensure safe drinking water, especially for its QCitizens, citing a report that acute gastroenteritis is the 32nd leading cause of death in the city. Mayor Joy Belmonte said on Sunday that the water testing laboratory, which will be managed by the city’s Drinking Water Quality Monitoring Committee, is located on the second floor of the Quezon City Health Department (QCHD) building within the City Hall compound. “This initiative reflects the city’s commitment to providing clean and safe drinking water to all residents. We are taking proactive steps to protect our communities from diseases related to poor water quality,” Belmonte said. Belmonte said that access to clean and safe water is fundamental to public health and safety. She cited QCHD’s 2023 report, which placed acute gastroenteritis — causing infection of the stomach and intestines due to viruses, bacteria, or parasites in contaminated water — as the 32nd leading cause of death in the city. The city chief executive told The Manila Times that the Sangguniang Panlungsod (city council) also responded by passing an ordinance in 2024, mandating the regular monitoring and testing of water sources across the city. According to the local government, the water laboratory will serve as a testing site in conducting regular microbiological examinations of drinking water from all 382 regular sampling sites (RSPs) in the city. These points represent households served by the water concessionaires, Maynilad and Manila Water, it added. The laboratory will also initially test water from all refilling stations and ice plants operating within the city’s jurisdiction, to ensure compliance with water safety and quality standards established by the Department of Health (DOH) and the Philippine National Standards for Drinking Water 2017. “This initiative is part of the local government unit’s strategy to establish its own laboratories,” Belmonte said. She added that the city government is looking to enhance its capacity to manage water safety once the water laboratory becomes fully functional.

- SC: Corporate execs share liability with agencies for seafarers’ claims (2026-03-08 16:04)

CORPORATE officers of recruitment or manning agencies may be held personally liable, together with their companies, for disability benefits owed to Filipino seafarers, the Supreme Court ruled. In a decision written by Associate Justice Jhosep Lopez, the Court’s Special First Division granted a motion for partial reconsideration in a seafarer’s disability case. The Court had earlier found Magsaysay Maritime Corporation and Princess Cruises Ltd. liable for the disability benefits of their seafarer, Ruthgar Parce. In its latest ruling, it added Magsaysay fleet director Sorwin Joy Rivera as a solidarily liable party. Magsaysay hired Parce as an electrical fitter for Princess Cruises. He suffered an injury while onboard and was repatriated to Manila for treatment. The company doctor diagnosed rotator tendinitis and later declared the treatment period complete, prompting the employer to consider him fit for work. Parce sought a second opinion that found him unfit for sea duty, and asked for a referral to a third doctor, as required when medical findings conflict. Instead, the company asked for the second report and explored a settlement, prompting Parce to file a complaint before the National Labor Relations Commission. A Labor Arbiter awarded him $60,000 in disability benefits, ruling that the company doctor's report failed to clearly state he was fit to work and that the 240-day period to issue a final assessment had already lapsed. The NLRC affirmed the ruling. The Court of Appeals of the Philippines later reversed the decision, but the Supreme Court reinstated the liability of Magsaysay and Princess Cruises and ruled that Rivera must also share liability. The Court cited Section 10 of Republic Act 8042, which provides that officers of recruitment or manning agencies are jointly liable with the company for monetary awards granted to overseas Filipino workers.

- ‘Nearly 5M learners will benefit from 2026 feeding program’ (2026-03-08 16:03)

SEN. Sherwin Gatchalian said that about five million learners would benefit from the government's expanded, school-based feeding program (SBFP) in 2026. The senator, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said on Sunday that with a P28.6 billion budget, the SBFP would cover 4.81 million learners nationwide. He urged the Department of Education (DepEd) to tap local government units (LGUs) to ensure the program's efficient rollout. "The fastest way to implement this is to tap the LGUs. We can go all the way down to the municipal level because the real challenge here is logistics," Gatchalian said in a statement. The 2026 General Appropriations Act authorized DepEd to enter into memoranda of agreement with LGUs, from barangay (villages) to provinces, as implementing partners of the feeding program. The budget increased feeding days from 120 to 200 and covers all kindergarten to Grade 1 learners, while continuing to support wasted, severely wasted, stunted, and severely stunted children from Grades 2 to 6. Dr. Miguel Angelo Mantaring, DepEd's Bureau of Learner Support Services Director, said the department will engage LGUs through the Union of Local Authorities of the Philippines.

- Ban sought on FB groups linked to child trafficking (2026-03-08 16:02)

THE National Authority for Child Care (NACC) is calling on Meta PH to remove several Facebook groups and user accounts involved in online child trafficking, child exploitation and illegal adoption. "We call on social media intermediaries, particularly Meta PH, to totally ban groups and accounts being used as a platform to facilitate child trafficking — especially online baby selling, illegal adoption, and child exploitation," NACC Executive Director and Undersecretary Janelle Ejercito Estrada said on Sunday. Estrada said in a statement emailed to The Manila Times that Meta PH and other social media platforms cannot evade accountability by claiming they do not officially operate within the Philippines. She said it was preparing to officially communicate with Meta PH and other social media platforms like Instagram, Tiktok and YouTube. Estrada said such platforms are liable under Republic Act 11862 or the Expanded Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act of 2022 to knowingly or by gross negligence allow their internet infrastructure to be used for the purpose of promoting trafficking in persons. “More so that social media platforms have a moral obligation to self-regulate. Their responsibility extends to ensuring their services are not used for criminal activity — especially for vulnerable children,” Estrada pointed out. An attached agency of the Department of Social Welfare and Development, the NACC made the call following an entrapment operation by the Philippine National Police (PNP) Women and Children Protection Center, which resulted in the rescue of four children in San Pedro City, Laguna, on Feb. 26. Arrested were two suspects who were common-law partners, ages 43 and 34, who allegedly tried to sell a five-day-old female infant for P35,000. Three other children in their custody, ages 2, 11 and 12, who were deemed at risk, were also rescued. The couple was also trying to sell the two-year-old female child. Police are determining the suspects’ relation to the children. Charges of violating existing laws on anti-trafficking in persons, as well as RA 7610, or the Special Protection of Children Against Abuse, Exploitation and Discrimination Act, were filed against the suspects. The NACC continues to work closely with law enforcement agencies and partners to combat online child trafficking, child exploitation and illegal adoption “to ensure that every child is protected and given the opportunity to grow in a safe, loving, and permanent family,” said Estrada, a former San Juan City vice mayor and daughter of Sen. Jinggoy Estrada.

MANILA, Philippines -- Two policemen and several civilians were arrested in a buy-bust operation over the weekend in Taguig City. In a statement on Sunday, the Taguig City Police Station (TCPS) said the operation, carried out on Saturday with the help of the Philippine Drug Enforcement Group (PDEG), led to the arrest of the unidentified suspects and the recovery of around 100 grams of shabu with an estimated Dangerous Drugs Board value of P680,000, along with police-issued firearms, cellular phones, and identification cards. Taguig City condemned the involvement of its police personnel, reiterating that it maintained zero tolerance for illegal drugs and any form of misconduct in law enforcement.

- Public urged to report gas stations 'prematurely' increasing fuel prices before scheduled adjustments (2026-03-08 03:49)

MANILA, Philippines -- Sen. Panfilo Lacson urged the public to report gas stations that have "prematurely" increased fuel prices as some have reportedly raised pump prices ahead of the scheduled adjustments. Filipinos are bracing for another round of fuel price hikes as crude oil prices in the international market surged amid possible supply disruptions arising from the conflict in the Middle East. Earlier reports indicated prices of kerosene may go up by ₱24.92 per liter; diesel by ₱19.62 per liter; and gasoline by ₱10.43 per liter. Final price movements are scheduled for official announcement on Monday, March 9. Lacson said prematurely increasing fuel prices violated Republic Act 8479, or the Downstream Oil Industry Deregulation Act of 1998 and RA 7394, or the Consumer Act of the Philippines. The Senate president pro tempore said the public could report violations to the Philippine National Police (PNP) and concerned local government units (LGUs). "Amid reports that some gasoline stations have already increased prices, they must be reported to authorities," Lacson wrote on X on Saturday. Sen. Win Gatchalian urged the Department of Energy (DOE) to monitor retailers and oil companies for possible profiteering amid what he described as an "energy crisis" stemming from the escalating conflict in the Middle East. DOE Director Rino Abad said the government has no control over the pricing of petroleum products due to the oil deregulation law.

- China’s maritime militia presence in South China Sea hit record high in 2025, says US-based monitor (2026-03-08 02:53)

MANILA, Philippines -- China’s maritime militia were deployed in record-high numbers across the South China Sea in 2025, with vessels increasingly concentrated around key disputed reefs near areas of tension with the Philippines, according to a Washington-based research project that monitors maritime disputes and activities in Asia. Satellite imagery analysis by the Asia Maritime Transparency Initiative (AMTI) found a daily average of 241 militia vessels operating across monitored reefs in 2025, slightly higher than the 232 recorded in 2024. The figure represents the highest level observed since the group began systematic monitoring in 2021. The “Spratly Backbone Fishing Fleet” composed of professional units and civilian vessels belonging to China was detected across all reefs monitored by the initiative, though activity continued to shift toward Mischief Reef and Whitsun Reef, which together accounted for nearly half of the total observed vessels. Researchers said tracking militia vessels remained challenging because most ships did not broadcast positions through automatic identification system (AIS) platforms. Instead, AMTI relied on commercial satellite imagery collected throughout 2025 to count ships congregating at key reefs. The study expanded its dataset to 12 reefs with the addition of Johnson Reef, where satellite imagery revealed a moderate seasonal concentration of vessels east of the feature during the past year. Most ships identified were believed to belong to the Spratly Backbone Fishing Fleet, which is numerically larger than the professional militia component. For the study, researchers counted only vessels between 45 and 65 meters in length, a size commonly associated with Chinese militia trawlers and rarely seen among other fishing fleets or the China Coast Guard. Satellite imagery was analyzed roughly four times each month at each reef, with gaps between observations filled using interpolation to allow comparison across locations. Seasonal patterns remained consistent with previous years. Vessel presence was lowest from January to mid-February before rising after the Lunar New Year. Two major surges were observed across most features—one in June and another in late November. At Mischief Reef, militia presence showed four separate peaks exceeding 200 vessels, reinforcing its role as a key staging point for monitoring disputed areas near the Philippines, including Sabina Shoal and Second Thomas Shoal. Whitsun Reef displayed a similar seasonal trend, with vessel numbers peaking in the spring before declining during the summer and early fall and rising again later in the year. Other features recorded increased militia activity compared with previous years. Iroquois Reef showed higher peaks and a stronger baseline presence throughout 2025, while Thitu Reef experienced increases in both average and peak vessel counts despite reduced coast guard activity in the area. Gaven Reef maintained peak levels similar to those seen in 2024 but had a higher average daily presence. In contrast, Fiery Cross Reef recorded a sharp drop in militia activity. After averaging 32 vessels per day in 2024, the reef had almost no observable militia presence in 2025, suggesting a possible redeployment of Chinese vessels rather than an overall reduction in militia operations. The research also compared militia deployments with patrols by the China Coast Guard. Despite a record-high coast guard presence around Scarborough Shoal, militia vessels remained relatively few in the area. Analysts said this pattern suggests that Beijing relied more heavily on smaller but more capable professional militia units and coast guard ships to patrol highly contested areas, while larger numbers of Spratly Backbone vessels remain anchored at safer locations such as Mischief and Whitsun reefs. According to the AMTI, the 2025 data mirrors patterns seen in 2024 but with slightly higher overall militia presence and a redistribution of vessels across eastern areas of the Spratly Islands, according to the study. Researchers added that the shift may reflect Beijing's evolving strategy as international scrutiny has increasingly identified the fleet as part of China's maritime militia rather than a traditional fishing force.

SINGAPORE — When the Adventure, Disney Cruise Line's newest ship, opens its doors to tourists for the first time on March 10, 2026, hundreds of Filipinos will be among the more than 2,000 personnel who will ensure that their stay on board will be pleasant and memorable. The Adventure, Disney's biggest cruise ship, has Singapore as its home port. It is the first DCL ship to target the Asian market. The 16-story vessel, which can be considered a floating theme park, can carry over 6,000 guests. One of the Filipino employees interviewed by The Manila Times considers herself lucky to be working on the cruise ship. Although work hours can be long, she said the crew, a mix of various nationalities, cruises along well, reporting to their posts with cheer, always gracious and ready to assist guests. Filipino personnel abound on the Adventure. In the restaurants, pools, shops, recreation rooms or staterooms, one can bump into them at every turn. One employee who hails from Northern Luzon said that he believed Filipinos' innate sense of hospitality and service with a smile, in addition to their mastery of the English language, make them the preferred crew for the cruise industry. He said they worked long hours but Disney compensates well. No figure was given on how many Filipinos have been hired by DCL to work on the Adventure, but by the looks of it, seems like a majority. And if you're a Filipino cruising for the first time, that makes all the difference. Seeing a compatriot who is willing to go the distance can make one's vacation truly more fun and memorable.

- Pagasa monitors low-pressure area outside PAR (2026-03-08 00:10)

MANILA, Philippines – A low-pressure area (LPA) has been spotted outside the Philippine Area of Responsibility (PAR), but is unlikely to affect the country, the state-run weather agency said on Sunday. Weather specialist Veronica Torres of the Philippine Atmospheric Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) said in a 5 a.m. briefing that the LPA, which was estimated to be 1,710 kilometers east of northeastern Mindanao, also has a slim chance to enter PAR. "In fact, it was not seen to intensify into a tropical depression in the coming days," Torres said. She said two weather systems – the northeast monsoon, locally known as 'amihan', and the easterlies – have been prevailing in most parts of the archipelago. These weather systems have been bringing scattered and isolated rain showers and thunderstorms, but hot and humid weather is likely during late morning until mid-afternoon, according to the Pagasa forecaster. In particular, Metro Manila, Ilocos Region, Occidental Mindoro, the rest of Central Luzon, and the rest of CALABARZON (Cavite, Laguna, Batangas, Rizal, and Quezon) would likely have partly cloudy to cloudy skies with isolated light rains due to the effect of amihan, the national weather bureau said. The rest of the country, meanwhile, could experience partly cloudy to overcast skies with isolated rain showers or thunderstorms due to the easterlies – winds that carry warm and humid weather, it added.

Late on Saturday, the DMW said that 19 OFWs returned to the country safely from Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, through coordination with the Migrant Workers Office (MWO) in the city. According to the DMW and the MWO, they were supposed to return home last March 3, but their flight was delayed because of the conflict.
