Comprehensive Security Analysis Report for Macau (November 04, 2026 - November 11, 2026)

Executive Summary

Macau's security landscape during this period was primarily shaped by significant internal legal developments and ongoing efforts to counter cybercrime, alongside regional geopolitical events. The sentencing of former lawmaker Au Kam San under expanded national security laws marked a critical moment, drawing strong condemnation from the European Union and highlighting concerns over fundamental freedoms. Concurrently, Macau police achieved a substantial success in dismantling a vast network of fraudulent websites, underscoring the persistent cyber threat. The upcoming APEC Economic Leaders' Week in nearby Shenzhen also prompted heightened security measures and flight restrictions impacting Macau. These developments collectively point to an intensified focus on internal security and cyber resilience, while navigating complex diplomatic relations with international partners.

Key Security Developments

- National Security Conviction and Sentencing

On November 6, 2026, former lawmaker and democracy campaigner Au Kam San was sentenced to 12 years and six months in prison by a Macau court for subversion and other offenses. This marks the first conviction under Macau's national security laws, which were expanded in 2023 to align more closely with mainland Chinese security legislation. The trial proceedings were held behind closed doors in September, and the verdict has been seen as a significant step in the application of national security legislation in the Special Administrative Region.

- EU Condemnation of National Security Trial

The European Union (EU) strongly condemned the sentencing of Au Kam San on November 6, 2026, expressing its rejection of the conviction and warning of the deterioration of freedoms in Macau. The EU emphasized the importance of respecting the rights and freedoms protected for Macau residents under the Basic Law, the 1987 Sino-Portuguese Joint Declaration, and international commitments. This follows previous EU criticism of Au's arrest in July 2025, which was highlighted in the EU's 26th annual report on Macau.

- Macau Rejects External Interference in Judiciary

In response to the European Parliament's criticism of Au Kam San's trial, the Macau Special Administrative Region (SAR) Government and the Legislative Assembly issued statements on November 9, 2026, expressing strong opposition. Macau authorities asserted that the prosecution of national security offenses is a strictly internal matter and that external forces would not be permitted to interfere with the SAR's judicial independence.

- Large-Scale Cybercrime Infrastructure Dismantled

On November 10, 2026, it was reported that Macau police uncovered more than 33,000 fraudulent websites as part of INTERPOL's Operation Synergia III. These websites operated as counterfeit casino portals and spoofed platforms, designed to harvest personal and financial credentials. The global operation, concluded in March, dismantled a total of 45,000 malicious servers and IP addresses worldwide, highlighting a significant international effort against cybercrime.

- Heightened Regional Security for APEC Summit

The Civil Aviation Authority of Macau announced a prohibition on all flight activities, including unmanned aircraft, across the Macau SAR from November 11 to November 22, 2026. This measure is being implemented to ensure the successful conduct of the 33rd Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) Economic Leaders' Week, which will be hosted in nearby Shenzhen, China, from November 13 to 19, 2026. The U.S. Consulate General in Hong Kong & Macau also issued a security alert, advising travelers to expect heightened security, road closures, and traffic control in and around Shenzhen, Hong Kong, and Macau during this period.

- Government Focus on Cybersecurity Resilience

Macau's Judiciary Police (PJ) Director Sit Chong Meng reiterated the government's commitment to enhancing cybersecurity resilience. During a sub-forum for the 2026 China Cybersecurity Week in September, Sit pledged to improve compliance guidelines for AI security and data security and strengthen the cybersecurity talent system. This initiative is a key component of Macau's 3rd Five-Year Plan (2026-2030), which emphasizes strengthening security governance in emerging technological areas.

- Diplomatic Engagements with Mainland China

On November 9, 2026, Macau's Chief Executive, Sam Hou Fai, met with the Prosecutor General of the Supreme People's Procuratorate of China, Mr. Ying Yong, at the Government Headquarters in Macau. Earlier in the week, from November 4-5, 2026, the Chief Executive also attended the opening ceremony of the 9th China International Import Expo (CIIE) and the Hongqiao International Economic Forum in Shanghai, underscoring Macau's active participation in national economic and diplomatic initiatives.

- International Forum on Mutual Learning among Civilizations

The "International Forum on Mutual Learning among Civilizations 2026" commenced in Macau on November 9, 2026, at the Galaxy International Convention Center in Cotai. Chief Executive Sam Hou Fai attended the opening, highlighting Macau's unique role as a "precise interlocutor" between China and Portuguese-speaking countries and its integration of Chinese and Western cultures. The forum aims to promote cultural prosperity and foster bonds between peoples, with discussions on cross-disciplinary cultural dialogue and cultural connections.

Cyber Threat Landscape

During the period of November 4-11, 2026, Macau demonstrated proactive measures against cybercrime, notably through its participation in international law enforcement efforts. On November 10, 2026, Macau police revealed they had uncovered over 33,000 fraudulent websites, including fake casino portals and spoofed platforms designed to steal personal and financial credentials. This significant bust was part of INTERPOL's Operation Synergia III, which globally dismantled 45,000 malicious servers and IP addresses. Recent security investigations also highlighted the regional proliferation of Android trojans, such as "Hirudo," which employ transparent screen overlays to intercept digital wallet credentials across Southeast Asian digital commerce. These methods bypass payment gateway perimeters, threatening consumer trust in local mobile wallets.

The Macau government continues to prioritize cybersecurity, with the Judiciary Police Director Sit Chong Meng pledging in September 2026 to enhance compliance guidelines for AI security and data security and strengthen the cybersecurity resilience of civil society. This commitment is integrated into Macau's 3rd Five-Year Plan (2026-2030), which aims to improve the legal framework and enforcement mechanisms for safeguarding national security and strengthening security governance in emerging areas like cyberspace, data, and artificial intelligence. Background: BRONZE HIGHLAND (China-linked) is a threat actor known to target Macau.

Geopolitical Impact and Regional Dynamics

The recent security developments in Macau, particularly the national security conviction of Au Kam San, carry significant geopolitical implications, primarily reinforcing Beijing's tightening control over the Special Administrative Region under the "One Country, Two Systems" framework. This event, and the strong rejection of external criticism by Macau authorities, signals a reduced tolerance for political dissent and an alignment with mainland China's national security priorities. The European Union's condemnation underscores a growing divergence in values and human rights concerns between Western democracies and Beijing's approach to governance in its SARs.

Regionally, Macau's security environment is influenced by broader Chinese strategic interests and events. The upcoming APEC Economic Leaders' Week in Shenzhen, leading to flight prohibitions and heightened security in Macau, demonstrates the interconnectedness of the Greater Bay Area's security apparatus. While Macau itself is not a direct party to the South China Sea disputes, the ongoing territorial standoffs and stalled negotiations for a code of conduct between China and ASEAN nations contribute to a complex and potentially volatile regional strategic landscape. The U.S. continues to assert its presence and warn of its obligations to allies like the Philippines in the disputed waters, further highlighting the U.S.-China rivalry in the region.

Macau's active diplomatic engagements with mainland Chinese officials, such as the Chief Executive's meeting with the Prosecutor General and attendance at the China International Import Expo, reinforce its integration into China's national development strategy. The "International Forum on Mutual Learning among Civilizations" hosted in Macau also positions the SAR as a platform for cultural exchange, particularly with Portuguese-speaking countries, aligning with China's broader diplomatic initiatives to promote its global civilization initiative. These efforts aim to leverage Macau's unique historical and cultural ties to enhance China's soft power and influence.

EU Relations and Implications

Macau's relations with the European Union during this period were marked by significant friction stemming from human rights concerns. The EU strongly condemned the November 6, 2026, sentencing of former lawmaker Au Kam San to 12.5 years in prison under Macau's national security laws, expressing deep concerns about the erosion of fundamental freedoms and political pluralism in the SAR. This condemnation highlights a persistent point of contention, as the EU had previously criticized Au's arrest in 2025 and continues to monitor human rights and fundamental freedoms in Macau. Macau's government and Legislative Assembly swiftly rejected the EU's criticism, asserting that the national security case is an internal affair and that external interference would not be tolerated.

Despite these diplomatic tensions, there remains a foundation for cooperation. In April 2026, Macau's Chief Executive Sam Hou Fai met with Olof Skoog, Deputy Secretary General for Political Affairs of the EU's European External Action Service, expressing hope for resuming EU-Macao Joint Committee meetings. Both sides discussed deepening cooperation in areas such as economic and trade matters, innovation, green development, higher education, and cultural and tourism industries. The EU remains Macau's second-largest trading partner and third-largest source of foreign direct investment, indicating strong economic ties. However, the recent security and cyber developments, particularly the national security conviction and Macau's firm stance against external criticism, could strain these broader cooperation efforts and potentially impact EU interests and EU-funded projects in sectors like trade, education, and development cooperation, as the EU prioritizes adherence to democratic values and human rights.

Military and Defense Analysis

During the period of November 4-11, 2026, there were no specific reports detailing military activities, defense acquisitions, defense spending trends, or significant capability developments directly pertaining to Macau's own defense forces. Macau, as a Special Administrative Region of China, does not maintain an independent military, with defense responsibilities falling under the People's Liberation Army Garrison in Macau.

However, an aviation security exercise simulating an unlawful aircraft seizure was conducted at Macau International Airport on October 27, 2026, just outside the reporting period. This exercise involved the Public Security Police Force, Unitary Police Force, Macao Customs, Judiciary Police, Fire Services Bureau, Health Bureau, Civil Aviation Authority, and other airport-related entities, demonstrating ongoing preparedness for aviation security emergencies and inter-agency coordination in crisis response. While not a military exercise, it reflects the SAR's commitment to maintaining a robust security posture for critical infrastructure.

Outlook and Forecast

Short-term trends (1-3 months):

In the immediate future, Macau is likely to experience a continued emphasis on internal security and stability, particularly in the wake of the national security conviction and the upcoming APEC summit in Shenzhen. The heightened security measures and flight restrictions related to APEC will remain in effect until November 22, 2026, impacting travel and potentially other activities. The Macau government will likely continue to promote its economic diversification plans and cultural initiatives, such as the "International Forum on Mutual Learning among Civilizations," to project an image of stability and openness, while firmly upholding its stance on national security matters. Cybercrime prevention efforts, building on the recent large-scale bust, are expected to remain a high priority, with continued focus on protecting digital commerce and critical infrastructure.

Critical flashpoints and risk areas:

A critical flashpoint remains the erosion of political freedoms and human rights in Macau, as evidenced by the Au Kam San conviction and the EU's strong reaction. Further actions under the expanded national security laws could exacerbate tensions with international partners and potentially lead to increased scrutiny or diplomatic pressure. The ongoing regional geopolitical competition, particularly the U.S.-China rivalry and tensions in the South China Sea, could indirectly impact Macau's economic and diplomatic maneuvering, especially given its role as a bridge to Portuguese-speaking countries. Cyber threats, including sophisticated Android trojans and fraudulent schemes, will continue to pose a significant risk to Macau's digital economy and public trust.

Indicators to monitor:

Key indicators to monitor include any further arrests or prosecutions under Macau's national security laws, which would signal a continued tightening of political space. The nature and frequency of diplomatic exchanges between Macau and the EU, particularly regarding human rights and trade, will be crucial in assessing the trajectory of their relationship. Progress on Macau's stated goals for AI and data security, as outlined in its Five-Year Plan, will indicate the effectiveness of its cyber policy. Additionally, any significant changes in travel advisories or security alerts issued by foreign governments concerning Macau, especially in relation to the national security law, would be important to observe.

Strategic recommendations:

For Macau, a strategic recommendation would be to seek avenues for transparent engagement with international bodies and partners on its legal framework, particularly concerning human rights, to mitigate diplomatic fallout. While upholding national security, demonstrating a commitment to due process and international legal norms could help preserve its international standing. Continuing to invest heavily in cybersecurity infrastructure, public awareness campaigns, and international cooperation against cybercrime is essential to protect its digital economy and reputation. Diversifying its economic partnerships beyond traditional spheres, while leveraging its unique cultural platform, could also enhance its resilience against geopolitical shifts.

• Lawmaker urges broader revenue base as gaming income falls for fifth month (2026-11-11 00:38)

Lawmaker Leong Sun Iok has urged the government to broaden Macau's fiscal revenue, warning that five consecutive months of year-on-year declines in gross gaming revenue, combined with growing competition from casinos in neighboring countries, pose a serious challenge to public finances. Speaking before the agenda was taken up at a Legislative Assembly session yesterday, Leong noted that gaming tax still accounts for more than 80% of public revenue. Under the Basic Law's principles of keeping expenditure within limits and balancing the budget, insufficient revenue would constrain resources for urban construction, social security, public services, livelihood benefits and civil service pay, […]

A bill allowing limited exemptions to open tender for commercial space in public housing passed its final reading in the Legislative Assembly (AL) yesterday, with Secretary for Transport and Public Works Raymond Tam saying such exemptions would remain the exception rather than the rule. "Special circumstances cannot be used as if they were general circumstances," Tam said, stressing that exceptions would not become the norm. • AI poses new oversight challenges for Macau's gaming and financial sectors (2026-11-10 00:48)

With "Black October" cyberattacks, restrictions on AI banking agents and multibillion-dollar investment plans dominating technology headlines, the Times sought an assessment of what the disorder means for Macau. In an exclusive interview, AI governance strategist and author Jonathan Gropper warned that the greatest risks may come not from systems breaking rules, but from following them while defeating their purpose. Gropper calls this the "synthetic outlaw": a system pursuing its objective through gaps in human oversight. "It simply relentlessly optimizes for an objective at machine speed," he said. Asked about Macau, Gropper identified gaming and cross-border finance as particular areas of […]

Artificial intelligence is often associated with younger generations, tech-savvy professionals and people who have grown up surrounded by digital devices. Yet, as AI becomes increasingly embedded in everyday life, one group that could benefit considerably from its development is older adults. For generations who did not grow up with smartphones, online banking or digital communication, adapting to rapidly changing technology has not always been easy. And I say this because, even as a millennial, keeping up with the rapid evolution of technology today is not as easy as it once was. Tasks that once involved speaking to someone over the [⋯]

For more than a decade, Donald Trump defied the rules of politics that applied to everyone else. Tuesday's elections changed that. Voters categorically repudiated a president who imposed unilateral tariffs that undermined the economy and started a war that raised fuel prices and angered Americans opposed to another Middle East conflict. His outside investments and Washington renovations reinforced perceptions that he showed little empathy for people struggling financially. Having survived scandals, impeachments and a criminal conviction, Trump approached the midterms as another hurdle he could clear through personality, insisting the economy was fine and war with Iran was necessary to [⋯]

Two stories about Macau passports have surfaced in recent weeks, and together they raise something more interesting than either does alone: who gets to decide what a Macau document – or a Macau identity – means?
